Chasing God Week– First Things First November 14-17, 2018

Wednesday, November 14: Why Would God Love Me? – Kevin Clark

1. The thing that was first on Kevin’s heart was that God loves you. He is love, and His love covers our sins and makes us significant. Do you wrestle more with “How can God love someone as bad as me?” or “How can God love someone as insignificant as me?” Why might you feel as though you aren’t worthy of God’s love? How can His love still transform you?

Thursday, November 15: How to be Resilient – Geno Olson

2. There are several ways to be resilient: acknowledge the pain, know that trouble is only temporary, and choose what rules you. Of these three options, which do you need to focus more on? Why? How has there be purpose in the pain you’ve experienced?

Friday, November 16: Take Your Mask Off – Steve Huffman

3. One way to experience authenticity with God is to be indifferent to things and decisions. Do you go to God in prayer with your mind already made up? How can you get to the point where you’re willing to come to God without an agenda of how you want things done?

Saturday, November 17: Cut to the Heart – Janice Wood

4. When we feel cut to the heart and it leads to repentance, it changes the direction of our legacy. Describe the spiritual legacy you want to leave. What steps can you take to begin to add to that legacy?

Bonus Question:

5. Of all the “first things” you heard throughout the last week, what is the one takeaway that you need to focus on being “first” in your life? Why?
