Movie Review Ocean's 8 Loses Count

By Teddy Durgin
Special to the Examiner

"Ocean's 8" is missing one key ingredient that makes the best heist flicks fun. There's no villain! There's no slimy, scummy, multi-billionaire just begging to be scammed. If the lead crooks pull off their heist in this flick, there is no sense of comeuppance or great achievement other than "they got paid."

It's probably the biggest problem in this hit-or-miss reboot of the "Ocean's" franchise with Sandra Bullock leading an all-female team of criminals out to steal a $150 million diamond necklace during the famed Met Gala that takes place each May in New York City. Bullock is Debbie Ocean, the younger sister of George Clooney's Danny Ocean from the "Ocean's" flicks of the 2000s. We first meet her as we first met Danny in "Ocean's 11," duping her way out of a prison term at a parole hearing and then immediately hatching a plan for a big score.

OK, there is a sort-of bad guy in the form of Richard Armitage's Claude Becker, who sent ex-girlfriend Debbie to jail years earlier and is now living the high life in Manhattan's swank art world. But he's really just a side character. He has a scumbag's beard, but no personality. He doesn't have the marvelous smarm that Andy Garcia brought to Terry Benedict

FAMILY FEATURES

Summer provides an abundance of delicious, fresh-picked flavors, giving home chefs plenty of opportunities to use them in both classic recipes and newfound favorites. From sides to salads to smoothies and everything in between, summer is all about creating dishes that taste tempting, bright and balanced.
Using seasonal ingredients, like peaches and other sun-ripened fruits, can help play up the bounty of summer for all types of eating occasions. However, with a wide variety of available choices, it can be a dizzying task to select recipes you’ll want to make again and again.
This summer, Nature’s Intent Organic Apple Cider Vinegar and celebrity chef Candice Kumai – also known as the “Golden Girl of Wellness” – recommend these make-at-home recipes to help brighten and awaken the best flavors at your table.

“Apple cider vinegar is my favorite natural way to cook, look and feel my very best for all of summer,” Kumai said. “These recipes feature its powerful benefits and bright taste, which awaken summertime cooking.”
Kumai recommends her Carrot Beauty Noodles as a show-stopping side dish to accompany main courses throughout the summer, while a light and savory Miso Kale Caesar Salad can curb and satisfy appetites before dinner. Meanwhile, the fresh-and-fruity versatility of this Peach Smoothie means you can enjoy it at breakfast, as a nutritious midday snack or even for dessert.
All three recipes feature Nature’s Intent Organic Apple Cider Vinegar, which is raw, unfiltered, made with the mother and can be a chef’s secret ingredient to brighten and awaken taste buds to the true flavors of food by enhancing your favorite recipes during the summer or any time of year. Because it’s crafted with care, the clean, crisp flavors provide a difference you can see and taste while helping add a perfect sweet-and-sour balance to traditional meals as well as new favorites.

With so many fresh, delicious choices, summer is the perfect opportunity to make the most of flavors in almost anything you’re making, but selecting the right recipes and ingredients can be the first step toward truly soaking up the brightness of the season.
Find more tips and recipes for enjoying summer flavors at NaturesIntentVinegars.com, and find Nature’s Intent on Facebook, Instagram and Pinterest.

Ocean's 8

or the gleeful corruption that Al Pacino displayed as Willy Bank in "Ocean's 11" and "Ocean's 13," respectively. You REALLY wanted to see those two get heisted.

The necklace in "Ocean's 8" is just that. Your basic, gaudy diamond necklace that's been kept in the vaults of Cartier for 50 years that rapid actress Daphne Kluger (Anne Hathaway, giving the film's best performance) is loaned as part of her fashion ensemble for the Met Gala red carpet.

Honestly, it was more fun and involving watching Charles Grodin try to swipe the Baseball Diamond in "The Great Muppet Caper" and Kermit, Fozzie, Animal, and the gang trying to stop him. "Ocean's 8" director and co-screenwriter Gary Ross doesn't give his flick much urgency.

Even without the urgency, no one seems to be having much fun here. Cate Blanchett is a force of nature, but she's playing the Brad Pitt second fiddle part here with little in the way of quirks or memorable lines. Helena Bonham Carter tries to find a character in down-on-her-luck fashion designer Rose Weil. But her usual eccentricities are also toned down. Rihanna is pretty slick as a hacker named "Nine Ball," but she spends most of the movie typing on a laptop. The real find here is Awkwafina as pick-pocket Constance. She's the only one who seems to take any real glee in her crimes and misdemeanors.

This might have been the case where a female director would have delivered a better product.

In Ross's hands, the ladies aren't allowed to be catty or profane or overly sexy or dynamic in any interesting way. It's probably a politically correct thing where the Powers That Be had more interest in showing women working together in harmony without giving into any sort of male fantasy. But there still needs to be some sort of tension and personality clashing that threatens to undermine the eventual heist.

I did enjoy some of the intricacies of the Met Gala heist, which is eventually revealed to be more layered than initially thought. And a late-game cameo by one of the original "Ocean's 11" crew (alas NOT Clooney, Pitt, or Damon) was most welcome ... and the only moment in the flick where the audience I saw it with responded with anything resembling pleasure.

Sigh. They should have stole more from the original films!

"Ocean's 8" is rated PG-13 for language, brief drug references, and some suggestive content.
