

Initial Sound Table by wonderkind

Today, little ones use initial sounds to navigate the first stages of literacy acquisition. Children learn how to make out the initial sound of a word and match it to a letter. Initial sounds are spoken in a way that actually reflects how they are used, meaning not the letter name "F" but the letter sound "ff". This table lists pictures based on their initial sound together with their corresponding letters.

wonderkind hopes you have lots of fun learning to read!
