Green Fire
Extraordinary Ways to Grill Fruits and Vegetables, from the Master of Live-Fire Cooking

FRANCIS MALLMANN WITH PETER KAMINSKY AND DONNA GELB

World-famous chef Francis Mallmann surprises and delights with an extraordinary book of vegetarian recipes

It’s the iconic Francis Mallmann image: a whole cow, dressed and splayed out over licking flames. But the legendary South American chef is as entranced by the crackling crust of a potato cooked on the grill as he is by a rib-eye steak, and now he shares that love, turning his fire “green” and offering 75 recipes that are sumptuous and satisfying and completely vegetarian.

Green Fire is a journey of rediscovery for the chef known for cooking meat. Rooted in his childhood passion for vegetable gardening, underpinned by decades of experience and innovation with live-fire cooking, and driven by the belief that we must all cut down on consuming animals to ensure a healthier future for both people and the planet, Green Fire celebrates the magic that happens when vegetables and fruits are transformed by flames, coals, and smoke. Tomatoes are burnished on the cast-iron plancha to intensify their flavors, then dressed with garlic and oregano. Beets are buried in the coals, then paired with lemon confit. Eggplant is charred and breaded Milanesa-style. There’s Smashed Artichokes with Crispy Kale; Whole Butternut Squash with Criolla; and desserts—cherries are charred on the plancha, then served over ice cream. It’s pure alchemy, using the oldest of cooking techniques to push fruits and vegetables to such a peak of flavor it’s as if they’d never been truly tasted before.

The World of Natural Wine
What It Is, Who Makes It, and Why It Matters

AARON AYSCOUGH

The most comprehensive and definitive guide to the trending new world of natural wine

Natural wine is the “farm-to-bottle” equivalent of everything that's made farm-to-table such a powerful trend in food. It's wine that comes from organically or biodynamically farmed grapes, aged and bottled without the use of additives, filtration, or chemical manipulation, and expressing, in every sip, a direct link both to nature and to the passionate vintners who create it. It’s wine that has nothing to hide, making it perfect for food-lovers who are realizing that just as they no longer want to eat something overly processed, they don’t have to drink an overly processed wine.

That said, exploring natural wine has much in common with getting to know wine in general—you need a guide! Actually, you need Aaron Ayscough, who writes about natural wine with unmatched expertise and enthusiasm. In The World of Natural Wine, he covers it all. He explains the five principles that make a wine a natural wine, like the use of native yeast, and how vintners rediscovered the wisdom of ancient winemaking practices. We meet the extraordinary cast of characters—quirky, obsessive, often outspoken—who tend the vineyards and make the wine. We learn where the wines are made—predominantly in France, but also in Spain, Italy, and the Republic of Georgia (prepare to be dazzled by its vast and ancient wine culture). All about the bottles and varieties we’ll want to taste. And most important: what we need to “unlearn” in order to taste naturally.

AARON AYSCOUGH is a British American writer based in Paris. Since 2010, he has written a blog and newsletter about natural wine called Not Drinking Poisson. His writing about wine and restaurants has appeared in the Financial Times, T: The New York Times Style Magazine, Eater, and Meininger’s Wine Business International, among other publications. He is the English translator of two works by the French winemaker-scientist Jules Chauvet: Wine in Question and The Aesthetics of Wine, and he’s worked extensively as a sommelier over the past two decades, building wine selections for restaurants in the United States and France. Ayscough is presently studying viticulture at the Lycée Viticole de Beaune in France. Find him on Instagram at @aaronayscough.
Al Fresco
Inspired Ideas for Outdoor Living

JULIE POINTER ADAMS

A celebration of gathering and entertaining in the out-of-doors

Be it a picnic or a party, cocktails in the late afternoon to watch the sunset or an evening around a fire—sharing a meal, roasting marshmallows, swapping stories—nothing is quite so pleasurable as getting together outside with friends and loved ones. Simple yet powerful, these rituals touch us in ways that seem almost timeless, opening our hearts and our senses as we connect with ourselves, with others, and with nature. Which is the magic of Al Fresco.

Written and photographed by Julie Pointer Adams, the author of Wabi-Sabi Welcome and visionary behind the global gatherings that launched Kinfolk, Al Fresco features 35 interviews with a range of tastemakers and regular people from around the world who are bridging indoor and outdoor living, and adds visual and reflective essays, beautiful photographs, and delicious, easy recipes. Organized by location of gathering—By the Water, Right at Home, In Open Spaces, In Intimate Spaces, and more—each chapter includes practical ideas and takeaways, like “Being Well Under the Sun” and “Things to Do Outside with a Friend,” plus prompts like how to transform a moment into an occasion with a single plate of ripe figs. Living al fresco is neither complicated nor expensive—it’s just about making small shifts in our usual way of doing things, and finding new inspiration and joy in being outdoors.

Cooking with Mushrooms
An Inspired Way to Cook with the World’s Most Versatile Ingredient

ANDREA GENTL

A visually stunning and groundbreaking global collection of recipes for the mighty mycelia

Mushrooms have come a long, long way from the generic white button so many of us grew up with. Today a decent grocery store will carry shiitakes, chanterelles, cremini, enoki, king trumpets. Shop at a greenmarket or specialty grocer and the selection is even greater. A good part of the reason is that mushrooms stand at the intersection of several powerful food trends—cooking to explore new flavors and cultures, cooking for health (mushrooms are among the most heralded foods in the wellness world), cooking with less or no meat, and cooking to draw a deeper connection to nature and the outdoors.

Andrea Gentl, who for over 30 years has given so many cookbooks their singular look through her award-winning food and travel photography, now presents her own first cookbook, celebrating the beauty and culinary possibilities of this magical ingredient. Cooking with Mushrooms opens with profiles of 16 mushrooms, guiding readers through the best uses of common and lesser-known varieties with expert advice on how to store, clean, and dehydrate them for your pantry. Then she follows with 50 recipes showcasing mushrooms in all their glory, from pantry staples—use mushroom dust to create a sublime bowl of popcorn—to players in every meal of the day, like Morels on Fried Sourdough for breakfast and King Trumpet Schnitzel or Bucatini with Hen-of-the-Woods for dinner, including a section on using mushrooms specifically for a health boost, like in Lion’s Mane Broth. And even in one intriguing cocktail, the Mezcal Maitake Negroni, for a different kind of wellness.

Andrea Gentl is an award-winning food and travel photographer. Over the span of her 30-year career, she has photographed the food of the world’s leading chefs and culinary pioneers. Best known for her signature light and detailed compositions, Gentl tells a distinct story, entirely her own, through her images. It is from that perspective, as well as through extensive global travel, that she writes, cooks, and creates. Gentl works in collaboration with her husband and partner, Martin Hyers. The Little Flower Recipe Book
142 Tiny Arrangements for Every Season and Occasion

JILL RIZZO

The oh-so-adorable follow-up to the bestselling Flower Recipe Book

Small is beautiful! Especially small flowers, and especially in the hands of Jill Rizzo, beloved florist and coauthor of The Flower Recipe Book, with 112,000 copies in print. Working in that same unique sweet spot of breathtaking-inspiration-meets-step-by-step-practicality, The Little Flower Recipe Book is another breakthrough flower recipe guide, this time showing how to make nearly 150 tiny arrangements that catch the eye and cause an immediate smile.

These are not arrangements that command a room. They are, rather, charming miniatures, ones that the author argues you should make just for yourself—their purpose is really in showing us the pleasure of slowing down, working with something delicate and often otherwise unnoticed, and then marveling at the intricate detail and inherent, fleeting beauty. Among the recipes are those she calls micro arrangements, so small as to fit in a dollhouse (and in fact, dollhouse vases are great containers); others, the minis, are slightly larger, using more stems and larger sprigs. There are also wreaths, garlands, and place settings. Projects are organized seasonally, and range from a thimble-sized vase of pansies to a tiny teacup holding delphinium, phlox, Chinese forget-me-nots, and individual blooms from a larger hydrangea. Readers also learn the best ways to cut and care for the flowers; professional florist tips and tricks, scaled for miniature use (like the importance of tweezers and waterproof tape); even how to forage for the overlooked tiny blooms in and around your neighborhood.

Jill Rizzo is the owner of the floral design company Wild Season Florals. Along with Anna Jane Kocon of Little State Flower Company and Brigid Finn of Brigid Finn Fine Gardening, Rizzo is part of the Farm and Flora Collective, housed in the former Maher Garden Center in Middletown, Rhode Island. Together with her Studio Choo partner, Alethea Harampolis, she is the author of The Flower Recipe Book and Branches & Blooms. Follow her on Instagram at @wildseasonflorals.
Cooking alla Giudia
A Celebration of the Jewish Food of Italy

BENEDETTA JASMINE GUETTA

Recipes and stories at the delicious crossroads of Jewish and Italian culinary cultures

Jews have been living in Italy since the days when it was still the Roman Empire, and over the course of centuries have created classics of Italian cuisine like carciofi alla giudia (fried artichokes), zuppa di pesce (fish soup), and the Venetian specialty sarde in saor (sweet-and-sour sardines). But so little beyond those iconic artichokes is known about this vibrant marriage of culture and customs. Benedetta Jasmine Guetta changes all that.

An Italian-Jewish food writer, Guetta has spent her career digging deep into the Jewish cooking of Italy, preserving, in the face of Italy’s dwindling Jewish population, its extraordinarily rich culinary heritage. Cooking alla Giudia is a lively, thoughtful, beautifully photographed, recipe-packed celebration not just of food but of culture, history, memories, and influences. Forbidden by kosher laws to eat pork, Italian Jews created goose prosciutto—here’s how to make it at home. There are recipes throughout featuring eggplant, which Sephardic Jews expelled from Spain taught Italians how to cook. Here’s how the Jews of Italy celebrate holidays, with treasured recipes for everything from a Passover Egg Soup to a Slow-Cooked Beef in Tomato Sauce for Shabbat to dozens of cakes and cookies. Jewish food, Italian food—it’s the best of both worlds.

Benedetta Jasmine Guetta is an Italian food writer and photographer. In 2009, she cofounded a website called Labna, specializing in Italian and Jewish cuisine, and today she teaches the recipes of the cuisine to a growing number of people in cooking schools, synagogues, and community centers. Her work has been featured in numerous outlets, including the Washington Post, Cosmopolitan, Elle à Table, Saveur, and Tablet. Born in Milan, Guetta now lives in Santa Monica, California. Signs of the Zodiac
A Modern Guide to the Age-Old Wisdom of the Stars

CARLOTA SANTOS

A richly illustrated guide to the fundamentals of astrology

Interest in astrology is booming. In yet another indication of how so many of us are seeking meaning, direction, and comfort in a chaotic, stressful world, there’s a surge in online searches for terms like “birth chart” and “astrology.” As The Atlantic noted a few years ago, “there’s something that’s happened that’s given [astrology] an edginess, a relevance . . . that it hasn’t had for a good 35 years. Millennials have taken it and run with it.”

Signs of the Zodiac is exactly the beautiful, accessible book for every spiritual seeker, everyone obsessed with their and their loved one’s sign, everyone who’s enthusiastic about the zodiac, crystals, tarot, and other New Age practices. Illustrated in a fresh and engaging style, written in an easy, relatable voice, slim yet jam-packed with information, Signs of the Zodiac takes readers on an astral journey through the constellations. It covers the origins of the zodiac. Gives a detailed profile of each sign—virtues and flaws, compatible signs and ruling planets, rituals and amulets, and how best to manage that sign’s specific kind of energy. Digging deeper, Santos also explores the relationship between planets and the signs, phases of the moon, what happens on the cusps. And finally, she guides readers on how to create their own birth charts using illustrated fill-in pages.

Creating a Garden Retreat
An Artist’s Guide to Planting an Outdoor Sanctuary

VIRGINIA JOHNSON

An inspiring, informative, and visually rich guide to making a personal garden

In a love letter to the art of gardening, illustrated on virtually every page with her delicate and beautiful watercolors, Virginia Johnson chronicles her decade-long adventure in transforming a small urban backyard into a lush retreat—a special place to nourish the spirit, delight the eye, express the seasons and rhythms of nature, and invite solitude and easy socializing in equal measure.

Creating a Garden Retreat, like Johnson’s earlier book, Travels Through the French Riviera, brings together inspiration, artistic beauty, and helpful practical information. Her blank canvas started as an empty 20-by-24-foot construction site with one old pear tree in the corner, and her knowledge of how to garden was almost as bare, giving the book an empowering “if I can do it, anyone can” message. But she also tells how she did it—how to think about scale and proportion, like open spots and shady nooks, areas for planting and areas for playing. How to work in non-plant elements like paths and pergolas. How to use the genius of trees to build the bones of a garden, even such a small one, and then layer in shrubs, vines, and finally flowers—abundance is key! Just like life, the garden is forever a work in progress, and what a joy that is.

MARKETING & PUBLICITY

Lunchbox
100 Ingenious Ideas for Kid-Approved Meals

MARNIE HANEL AND JEN STEVENSON

Healthy, delicious, and imaginative themed lunches, packed with joy and made with love

The Happy Birthday lunchbox. The Halloween lunchbox. The Pitasaurus Box, the Summer Roll Model, the Here We Gyoza Again. Even a lunchbox for a child with a Wiggly Tooth, everything nice and soft—except for the toasted corn crunch that looks like the molar that’s about to come out!

Reimagining the chore of packing a kid’s lunch, day in and day out, the irresistibly colorful and creative Lunchbox gives parents all the tools they need to make easy, healthy, tasty, and playful lunches guaranteed to nourish and delight their child. Here are 100 ideas, each illustrated visually, that run the gamut from the personal—do you have a picky child who only likes orange foods?—to the special occasion, like the 100th Day of School. There are variations, like seven takes on the reliable PB&J and six riffs on the popular “breakfast for lunch” idea. And lots of skewers, pinwheels, food cut into letters and shapes. No lunchbox requires more than whipping up one basic recipe—the book includes 50, from Dilly Good Chicken Salad to Quick Chocolate Chip Almond Flour Cookies—and then using store-bought ingredients or repurposed leftovers to complete the theme. There are meal prep guides, shopping lists, and cheat sheets. And, as a bonus, stickers and cards so every lunch includes a little note to say hi, crack a joke, or send love.

Remodelista in Maine
A Design Lover’s Guide to Inspired, Down-to-Earth Style

ANNIE P. QUIGLEY
WITH THE EDITORS OF REMODELISTA

From the experts at Remodelista, a design guide to the singular Maine aesthetic

With its rocky coastline, pristine waters, and piney forests, its emphasis on community and honest work, and its connection to the land and sea, Maine holds a special place in the American imagination. And with its DIY sensibility and ethos of rugged simplicity, it’s become a magnet for makers, artists, designers, and other creatives.

Remodelista in Maine is an homage to the Maine look and a master class on how to bring it into your own home. Written by Annie P. Quigley and the team at Remodelista, whose books—Remodelista, Gardenista, and Remodelista: The Organized Home—have over 200,000 copies in print, this stunningly photographed book features 10 exceptional houses, from a hand-built dwelling in the woods to a renovated farmhouse to an artist’s retreat. We meet the owners, get insights into design choices, linger over the views, and focus on the vignettes that make the interiors so fresh and appealing. But we also learn more about the whole Maine way of life—how to ready a woodpile for the winter and prepare wood for the fire, how to make a driftwood hook or a balsam pillow, and why every home should have a mudroom. There are guides to the best places for design-lovers to visit, season by season; and in keeping with the Remodelista mission, a list of the “Maine 30”—essential items for the home, from an all-weather cotton blanket to carryall canvas totes, wire clamming baskets to a trustworthy ax. Take all together, it’s design inspiration, a travel guide, and a how-to all in one.

Annie P. Quigley is the senior editor at Remodelista; her writing has appeared in Food & Wine, the Wall Street Journal, Food52, and Travel + Leisure, among other publications. She lives in Portland, Maine.
Just a Spritz
57 Simple Sparkling Sips with Low to No Alcohol

Fun, fizzy, flavorful cocktails, perfect for imbibing any time of year

Celebrate the irresistible spritz! Made popular by the drink that’s now everyone’s go-to light summer cocktail—the Aperol spritz, straight from Venice—a spritz is the most refreshing, laid-back low-alcohol drink in the cocktail kingdom, a nearly effortless trinity of bitter liqueur, sparkling wine, and bubbly water. But what goes into or is added to that trinity—therein lies the brilliant charm of Just a Spritz.

Organized by flavor (like flowery, fruity, citrusy, bitter), Just a Spritz serves up 57 recipes to satisfy our craving for a refreshingly fizzy adult drink for any occasion. Here are spritzes for a sultry August afternoon at the beach—think Annette Limoncello, Raspberry Beret, and Cappelletti Shandy, with its juicy IPA foundation. A wintry holiday gathering with the snow swirling outside is the perfect occasion for a sherry-based Nutcracker. There are assertively bitter concoctions guaranteed to stimulate everyone’s appetite for an epic dinner to follow, like the Cynar-Berry and Va-Va Vermouth. Even shrubs and syrups to take your mixology to the next level, and a list of the best spritz snacks—after all, the origin of the spritz is the Italian apéritivo, where no drink arrives without a little salty bite. Naturally low in alcohol by volume, many recipes also offer a zero-alcohol variation; and each section ends with one original “Hold the Booze” cocktail, like the brisk, refreshing Jamaican Rose made of hibiscus tea, lime, tonic, and splash of rose water.

Danielle Centoni is a James Beard Award-winning food writer and cookbook author based in Portland, Oregon. In her two-decade career, she has worked as a staff editor and writer for the Oakland Tribune, the Oregonian, Imbibe magazine, Mix magazine, and Eater Portland, and has also written for Better Homes & Gardens, EatingWell, and The Kitchn. She is the author of several books, including Portland Cooks, and has contributed to many others. Find her on Instagram at @dcentoni.

With his first book since 2012, Thomas Keller celebrates the relationship between his two Michelin Guide three-star-rated restaurants, The French Laundry and per se, both of which continue to rank among the best restaurants in America and the world. In 2017, as part of the Ment’or BKB Foundation—established with chefs Jérôme Bocuse and Daniel Boulud—Keller led Team USA to win the Bocuse d’Or competition in Lyon, France, for the first time ever.

Thomas Keller is the author of The French Laundry Cookbook, Bouchon, Under Pressure, Ad Hoc at Home, and Bouchon Bakery. He is the first and only American chef to have two Michelin Guide three-star-rated restaurants, The French Laundry and per se, both of which continue to rank among the best restaurants in America and the world. In 2017, as part of the Ment’or BKB Foundation—established with chefs Jérôme Bocuse and Daniel Boulud—Keller led Team USA to win the Bocuse d’Or competition in Lyon, France, for the first time ever.

THE FRENCH LAUNDRY, PER SE
THOMAS KELLER, DAVID BREEDEN, COREY CHOW, AND ELWYN BOYLES
WITH SUSIE HELLER AND MICHAEL RUHLMAN
PHOTOGRAPHS BY DEBORAH JONES

With his first book since 2012, Thomas Keller celebrates the relationship between his two Michelin Guide three-starred restaurants, The French Laundry in California and per se in New York. Individually distinctive yet inextricably linked, the two kitchens are uniquely changing the nature of fine dining through the exchange and evolution of chefs, recipes, ideas, and techniques. It is the very embodiment of collaboration, and the whole being greater than the sum of its parts.

In this gorgeously photographed book, Keller and his chefs offer meticulously detailed recipes for more than 100 beloved and iconic dishes—including Summer Corn Parfait and “The Whole Bird”—along with the stocks, sauces, and other basics that make them singular; information about farmers and purveyors; and the kind of revelatory essays from Keller that will change how young chefs and passionate home cooks understand and approach their cooking.

120 color photographs • 400 pages • 11" x 11" • Hardcover, jacketed • $75.00 • ISBN 978-1-57965-849-6 • No. 85849

“Every elegant page projects Keller’s high standard of ‘perfect culinary execution.’ . . . This superb work is as much philosophical treatise as gorgeous cookbook.”
—Publishers Weekly (starred review)
More than 150 recipes for baked goods that are marvels of ingenuity and simplicity, from the famed Bouchon Bakery. As with all of Keller’s books, the deft twists, perfectly written recipes, and glorious photographs make perfection inevitable.

RENÉ REDZEPI & DAVID ZILBER, introducing the Foundations of Flavor

“Accessible enough for novices [and] sure to elevate the practices of those of us already enchanted with the vast realm of fermentation.” —Sandor Katz, award-winning author of The Art of Fermentation

THE NOMA GUIDE TO FERMENTATION (Foundations of Flavor)

RENÉ REDZEPI AND DAVID ZILBER

At Noma, every dish includes some form of fermentation, whether it’s a bright hit of vinegar, a deeply savory miso, or the life-changing shock of a lacto-fermented gooseberry, as experienced by Noma’s chef and co-owner, René Redzepi. Now Redzepi and chef David Zilber, who runs the restaurant’s fermentation lab, share techniques for making Noma’s extensive pantry of ferments at home. And, just as important, they show how to use these ingredients—and transform your cooking—through 100 original recipes and over 500 step-by-step color photographs.

MAD DISPATCHES, furthering our ideas about food

“An all-star lineup of writers . . . touching on how food affects (and is affected by) migration, immigration, war, flight, history, and home.” —The New Yorker

“You and I Eat the Same
On the Countless Ways Food and Cooking Connect Us to One Another

CHRIS YING AND RENÉ REDZEPI

Good food is the common ground shared by all of us, and immigration is fundamental to good food. In 19 thoughtful and engaging essays and stories, You and I Eat the Same explores the ways in which cooking and eating connect us across cultural and political borders, making the case that we should think about cuisine as a collective human effort in which we all benefit from the movement of people, ingredients, and ideas.

FRANCIS MALLMANN, master of live-fire cooking

FRANCIS MALLMANN is the reigning star of food television in the Spanish-speaking world, and the most famous and popular chef in South America. His three restaurants (one in Mendoza, Argentina; another in Buenos Aires; and the third in Garzón, Uruguay) have been named among the top 10 places to eat in the world by the Times (UK) and USA Today.

SEVEN FIRES
Grilling the Argentine Way
FRANCIS MALLMANN WITH PETER KAMINSKY
“Captivating . . . as straightforward as it is appealing.” —The New York Times
South America’s biggest culinary star reinvents the art of cooking over fire with grilling techniques adapted for the home cook. Evocative photos of astonishing wood-fired feasts and the exquisite beauty of Patagonia make this an essential cookbook for any griller.

PATRICIA SCHULTZ is one of the 25 most influential women in travel today (Forbes). When not exploring destinations both remote and in her backyard, she regularly travels across the United States as a keynote speaker at all the annual travel shows (in New York City, Chicago, Los Angeles, and more) as well as to speak at bookstores, libraries, museums, and private events. She also appears as a guest speaker on river and cruise ships, and hosts small groups on special adventures and remote expeditions. A veteran travel journalist with over 35 years of experience, she’s written for Frommer’s and Berlitz, as well as the Wall Street Journal, Condé Nast Traveler, and Travel Weekly, where she is a contributing editor. Her home base is in New York City, but good luck finding her there.

GOOD COMPANY (ISSUE 3)
The Money Issue
The Money Issue focuses on a subject that is about as complicated as it gets: How do we stay true to our goals and yet keep the lights on? What happens when our work is intrinsically “unsaleable”? How do we avoid self-judgment when our skills are undervalued?

GOOD COMPANY (ISSUE 2)
The Fear(less) Issue
The Fear(less) Issue shares words, stories, life lessons, and more as it explores something we all shun, yet which has a power unlike any other to help us succeed.

GOOD COMPANY (ISSUE 1)
The Community Issue
In the debut issue, focusing on community and connection, over 75 creatives and entrepreneurs discuss life, business, and the lessons they’ve learned.
