It is the third U.S. and the first international single from Fort Minor's debut album, The Rising Tied. The two-version CD single was released, the first being released on November 15, 2005, and the second on 22 November 2005. The song features hip hop band Styles Beyond and Eric Bobo from Cypress Hill. Background Believe Me is one of two songs rising tied (except Red to Black[2]), where Mike Shinoda also sings (without rapping), especially the choir. The main tune of the song is from Apple Inc.'s GarageBand loops titled Orchestra Strings 08. At the end of the album version of the song, it is heard that Mike Shinoda says: Okay, so here's the thing and segues into Get Me Gone. Music video official music video was directed by Lauren Briet. The video simply shows the Fort Minor parking lot in the garage, which is illuminated by lights that extend to one side. The chorus is presented with more exchanging lights in the form of Mike Shinoda's head. Also in the very last second video clip it is possible to see someone (it seems that Tak) is probably tripping over or dancing immediately after the colored light passes Ryu. At the beginning of the video water drops covering the ground synchronize with the beginning of the piano melody. DJ Cheapshot Styles Beyond and Eric Bobo also appear in the video, although none of them play any instrument. Music video is available on fort minor militia DVD. Playlists CD1.No.Title.Length1.
