Location

The most populated city in Thailand is also its capital. With more than 8 million people, Bangkok is a mix of the old and the new; embracing the past and looking forward to the future. On a visit you will see old and opulent Temples and shrines that are absolutely magnificent. But what you will also notice is that this city is growing and new high-tech businesses are being encouraged to develop right here. Along with the old charm of the city streets and waterways, there are new transportation venues, western style malls and luxury high-rise buildings being built with Bangkok's own uniquely Asian flair. You can get just about anything here that you can expect to find in any cosmopolitan and increasingly diverse international city. From the bustling street markets and luxury malls, to the high energy nightlife of Khao San road, there is something for everyone to enjoy during a visit to this vibrant city.

Sights & Surroundings

Bangkok, as the Thai capital, has so much to offer. Some of the highlights include (but are not limited to):

Wat Arun (Temple of Dawn), locally known as Wat Chaeng, is situated on the river and is one of the most impressive temples in Bangkok.

Wat Pho is situated on the opposite side of the river to Wat Arun houses a giant gold reclining Buddha. Rumour has it that you can get an excellent Thai massage here too!

The Grand Palace Bangkok's most famous landmark and for 150 years the home of the Thai King is a must see.

Wat Phra Kaew (The Temple of the Emerald Buddha) is situated within the Grand Palace complex and is one of Bangkok's most iconic temples.

Chatuchak Weekend Market If you love shopping then this is for you. Situated next to a beautiful park, the scale of this market is not to be underestimated! There are rows upon rows of stalls selling everything you can imagine. We recommend getting a market map (just ask when you're there) to help you navigate this shopping maze.

Damnoen Saduak Floating Market Experience and haggle at this authentic Thai floating market or simply relax and enjoy a guided boat tour of the market.
