Thailand - Hua Hin

Want to know what it's like to participate in a Community Construction Project? This Community Construction program located in Hua Hin has it all!

Once you arrive in Bangkok, your program will start in Hua Hin - a seaside resort city known for its popular beaches, extraordinary night markets and delicious street food. You will have plenty of time to relax in the evening and have fun with your camp buddies.

Program Description

There are many families in Thailand that live under poor housing conditions and many of its local community areas and facilities such as temples, hospitals or schools still need a lot of improvement.

To address this concern, this program aims at participants to help improve the living standards of these local people in need by providing support in much needed construction and renovation work by creating proper sanitation facilities, make housing safer places to live and ensure communities have greater authority over their own development initiatives.

Participants will be asked to engage in tasks ranging from light work such as cleaning the area, mixing cement and painting to harder tasks such as building up the wall (plastering) and repairing roofing. Participants will be instructed and supervised closely by our coordinator who has ample experience in construction work to make sure that all the processes are safe for them and the housing conditions are also safe for the local people to live.
