Ericksonian Terminology: An International Glossary

By Roxanna Erickson Klein

In early 2009 Hayley Klein responded to a call for proposals for a financial award offered by the Milton Erickson Foundation. She proposed an international glossary of Ericksonian terms for the dual purpose of clarifying the meaning of words commonly used in the works of Milton H. Erickson, and providing a structure for consistency and ease of translation. The award money was divided among this project, one originating in Russia, and another in Spain.

Dedicating the winnings for technical assistance, the glossary project moved forward through donated time. The first step involved the construction of an English team to unanimously agree on definitions of approximately 200 selected words. The English version was completed in time for sale (at cost) of a spiral bound copy at the Evolution of Psychotherapy Conference last December.

The next phase of the project was the selection of translation teams. Teams representing the following languages have commenced work on translations: Portuguese, Spanish, Italian, French, Russian, German, Japanese, and Polish. Team members are working in a volunteer capacity, contributing their own time and expertise to advance this project. Participants share a common passion and deep interest in the content of the material as well as the translation process.

In the last year important progress has been made. It is anticipated that one or several translations of the Glossary will be available in downloadable format for the Brief Therapy Conference. It is hoped that this presentation will spawn more translations. The work itself is a testimony to the cooperative and giving spirit intrinsic to Ericksonian approaches.
