A Legacy of Impact

Founded in 1969, the California School of Professional Psychology (CSPP), was one of the nation’s first independent schools of professional psychology. Today, CSPP continues its commitment to preparing the next generation of mental health professionals and advocates.

Our dedication to ensuring every community's access to quality mental health care extends from integrated care to inclusive family therapy, and our students and alumni begin making an impact in the communities they serve from the moment they set foot in our classrooms.

And over 40 unique emphasis areas or specializations.

Visit us at CSPP.alliant.edu

The California School of Professional Psychology’s Clinical Psychology PhD and PsyD programs offered on the Fresno, Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Diego, and San Francisco campuses are individually accredited by the Commission on Accreditation of the American Psychological Association (APA), 750 First Street, NE Washington, DC 20002-4242.

Not all programs are available online or to residents in all states. Programs vary by location and modality; see the Academic Catalog for detail. Alliant is a private university accredited by the WASC Senior College and University Commission (WSCUC). We are an equal opportunity employer and educator.

Welcome Back to the SWPA Convention! And to our first-time attendees welcome to the 68th convention for the Southwestern Psychological Association in Baton Rouge, Louisiana! The theme of this year’s convention is Psychology in a changing world. We have all experienced the significant changes that have taken place and that are continuing to shape our new normal. We have an excellent roster of distinguished invited speakers that will share their work and perspectives on how to plan in the face of uncertainty, the psychology of climate change, how Covid-19 has changed learning and learning environments, the mental health outcomes of the Covid-19 pandemic, and psychology’s role in improving health equity. Our speakers this year include Dr. Susan Clayton (Whitmore-Williams Professor of Psychology and chair of Environmental Studies at the College of Wooster), Dr. Tanecia Blue (Chief of the Behavioral Medicine Service at Tripler Army Medical Center in Honolulu, Hawaii), Dr. Jaque Gray (Associate Director of Center for Rural Health for Indigenous programs at the University of North Dakota School of Medicine & Health Sciences), Dr. Susan Raiford (Senior Research Director, Wechsler Team, Pearson Clinical Assessment), and Dr. Bonnie Green (Professor of Psychology, East Stroudsburg University).

Our affiliate organizations also have a great lineup of invited speakers including Dr. Katie E. Cherry of Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge (Psi Chi), Dr. Jas Sullivan of Louisiana State University (Psi Chi), Dr. Anna Ropp of Metropolitan State University of Denver (SWTop), and Dr. Gina M. Berg of the University of Kansas School of Medicine-Wichita (SAMR). All convention attendees are encouraged to attend SWPA and affiliate organization programming during the convention.

Additionally, we have some great social events and presentations that we hope you attend that will provide networking opportunities and community building. Our generous sponsors and exhibitors also have booths that we hope you will visit to learn about their graduate programs and products. Finally, enjoy visiting the landmarks such as the Louisiana State Capitol, the Capital Park Museum, Mike the Tiger Habitat, and dining at the local restaurants to experience the local cuisine. Welcome Back!

Psychology and climate change: Understanding and responding
Premier Ballroom 1, Friday, 9:00 AM – 10:00 AM

Psychologists have an important role to play in helping society to address climate change. Psychology is necessary to understand how people respond as well as how they are likely to be affected. This presentation will provide an overview of psychological research that addresses people’s perceptions of climate change, the impacts of climate change on human wellbeing, and ways to encourage more pro-environmental behavior. Particular attention will be paid to the emerging area of climate anxiety: what it is and what we know about it. I will close by discussing the potential contributions of psychology as a discipline and highlight the recent report from the American Psychological Association’s Taskforce on Psychology and Climate Change.

Pandemic Impact on Performance-Based Psychological Assessment of Children: What We’ve Learned and How We Can Respond
Premier Ballroom 1, Friday, 2:00 PM – 3:00 PM

Several inflection points over the past two years have introduced uncertainty among practitioners using clinical test norms and interpreting test performance with children. The available data, best practice recommendations, and test development standards and practices are used to illuminate interpretive considerations using standard norms under nonstandard assessment conditions including school interruption and remote instruction, the use of masks and other PPE during assessment, and tele-assessment.

Community Interventions to Address Indigenous Elder Needs During COVID
Premier Ballroom 1, Saturday, 9:00 AM – 10:00 AM

In March of 2020, when many places that served community elderly closed due to COVID-19 and its deadly impact, people had to work quickly to figure out new ways to address the needs of the elderly especially in rural and remote areas. This talk will address what some of the issues were and what types of innovative approaches were developed to address the needs of the elderly. The COVID-19 Pandemic was the first time in over 100 years that Americans had to deal with a deadly contagion. The psychological impact was different for those of different cultural and ethnic backgrounds than for the White members of our population. Specific issues in American Indian and other communities will also be addressed.

Inaugural Diversity, Equity, & Inclusion Keynote Address

Dr. Tanecia Blue
Tripler Army Medical Center

Moving into 2022: Ways psychologists can improve health equity
Premier Ballroom 1, Saturday, 2:00 PM – 3:00 PM

The field of psychology has researched and promoted policies that contributed to the creation and maintenance of a racial hierarchy in American society. Over the past two years psychology organizations have undertaken a process of reviewing past actions, apologizing for those actions, and determining next steps to address equality for all people. This talk will briefly review historical antecedents of racism in psychology. Additionally, key events over the past two years (e.g., police involved deaths, pandemic) along with responses to those events (e.g., apologies by professional associations, refocusing on equity and inclusion) will be discussed. Health equity will be presented as an example of an area where psychologists can focus. Finally, actionable steps that impact change in health equity outcomes will be presented.
Dr. Bonnie Green
East Stroudsburg University

When Life Gives you Limes: Understanding and Evaluating the Role of Attitudes, Behaviors, Cognition, and Other Variables Associated with Success
Premier Ballroom 1, Sunday, 9:00 AM – 10:00 AM

Translational science, a pathway between basic research and practical solutions, has led to countless clinical advances in the field of medicine. During this session, learn how the translation of psychological science can be used to optimize interventions designed to improve outcomes in individuals, particularly those coming from vulnerable backgrounds. Research surrounding both well-established and newly identified variables including the application of Maslow’s Hierarchy of Needs, leadership, organizational effectiveness, attitudes, behaviors, and thought processes associated with success will be discussed.
The confluence of COVID-19, racial injustice, and the 2020 presidential election were a tremendous burden on American society. The talk will highlight the role of psychology in understanding the ways these specific issues have impacted us. Specifically, I will discuss findings from my own research. I will conclude the presentation by providing some recommendations for the discipline, so that it remains an important instrument in understanding the human condition.

This talk will include an overview of the cumulation of research regarding COVID measurement and psychology as well as an opportunity to consider these in terms of our own COVID responses.

Severe Weather Events and Psychosocial Well-Being: Variables that Matter after a Disaster
Cypress 1, Saturday, 10:15 AM –11:15 AM

Severe weather events are happening with increasing frequency today. Hurricanes, floods, and other tragedies that impact peoples’ lives are disruptive and stressful events that may threaten health and well-being. Consequently, there is a great need for knowledge to understand the immediate and long-term consequences of natural disasters and tragic events for people of all ages. In this talk, Dr. Katie Cherry will discuss the impact of hurricanes and flooding on various health indicators across the adult lifespan. She will present select findings from her research program on disaster stressors in connection with the 2016 flooding in south Louisiana. Suggestions for managing post-disaster stress will be examined and strategies for long-term recovery after severe weather events will be discussed.

PSI CHI FOCUS ON DIVERSITY SPEAKER

Dr. Jas Sullivan
Louisiana State University

Cypress 1, Friday, 1:00 PM –2:00 PM

The confluence of COVID-19, racial injustice, and the 2020 presidential election were a tremendous burden on American society. The talk will highlight the role of psychology in understanding the ways these specific issues have impacted us. Specifically, I will discuss findings from my own research. I will conclude the presentation by providing some recommendations for the discipline, so that it remains an important instrument in understanding the human condition.
PRESIDENTIAL ADDRESS

PREMIER BALLROOM 1
SATURDAY, 5:30 PM – 6:30 PM

Dr. Darshon A. Reed
University of Central Arkansas

Why Bother?: When goal setting and planning seem unrealistic during uncertain times

Setting goals and planning how to achieve our goals are normal and expected actions across the lifespan. We affirm our resolutions at the start of a new year, we set and strive toward milestone goals at different ages, we plan career goals that may take varying amounts of time, and we even set and plan for retirement years. Extensive research across the years (Lock & Latham, 1990; Rubin, 2002) that has focused on goal setting and planning suggests goals should be specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, time-bound, evaluated, and reviewed (SMARTER) in order to maximize achievement. However, the Covid-19 pandemic has made setting SMARTER goals nearly impossible when uncertainty of future events disrupts how achievable and relevant a goal is, and the amount of time needed to pursue the goal. So, is goal disengagement and abandonment the only options under uncertain conditions? This talk will overview research conducted at the start of and during the peak of the Covid pandemic that will inform the goal literature and provide goal planning alternatives during times of uncertainty.
The Southwestern Psychological Association has always prided itself on highlighting excellent student research. This year students submitted 14 research proposals for the undergraduate and graduate research competitions. Through a rigorous review process, the SWPA Awards Committee, led by SWPA Past-President Dr. Drew Curtis, selected these excellent students and their projects as finalists.
