Aid 30 tries to make the worst Christmas song worse What's the worst Christmas song? We asked our fans on Facebook and more than 800 of them responded. All kinds of songs got named, as I saw three ships, White Christmas, I saw Mommy Kissing Santa Claus, Auld Lang Syne, that Chipmunks song, and manheim steamroller oeuvre. Even the Beatles are fighting. But here's what ranked highest: All of them racked up a solid 156 mentions, a big win for the war at Christmas. Christmas shoes was the most-quoted particular song, with 50 mentions. Every time I hear that I feel depressed, said Joe Serrago. The most cloying, mawkish tune ever written, Christmas or otherwise, said Kathy Harrington Kraemer. What kind of kid buys his mom shoes? said Jaye Lynne Rooney. Santa Baby got 37 mentions. There shouldn't be anything sexy about trying to sound like a preteen, said Tiffany McBride. Dry lifting, said Jennifer Edney. But Zelda Zamboni defended: She embodies the true meaning and spirit of Christmas. ☺Baby It's Cold Outside came in at just 35 mentions. Date of rape, said Janeen Jackson. Stalkerish-pervy, said Sue Magine Schlicker. Dominick Donkey (Italian Christmas Donkey): This old novelty song, which once defeated Smells Like Teen Spirit in the battle for re-releases, received 26 mentions. If you've never heard of it, good for you. It's obnoxious, stupid, meaningless and sounds like it's sung by a demented hiccupulation frog, Lena Ianna said. Little Drummer Boy, a perfectly beautiful carol, got 24 votes, and I feel personally attacked. The song stinks of hymn-y manure, said Zachary Alvarez. Serious... drum next to the newborn???? said Richard Baize. It's stupid-da-da-stupid, said Robin Courtney Stears. Owned. Grandma got run over by and Reindeer got 21 votes. Cheap, cheap, cheap, said Pat Petersen. Clearly made for an unintelligent hoi polloi, said Steven Collins, an intellectual. Feliz Navidad got 18 votes, though it's actually good. I cringe every time I hear it, said Helene Kale. Jared Mau Battora made a fair point: Repeating 3 lines for the duration of the song is enough to drive someone batty. All I want for Christmas is you picked up 15 mentions, but had your defenders. Blasphemy! Blasphemy! All I want for Christmas is you is a classic! said Nathaniel Ralstin. I have hate-listened to it enough to like it again, said Joe Boan. Wonderful Christmas got 13 mentions, including a thorough beatdown by Margarita Lismore: I can't even begin to talk as well as the thought of it makes me so stressed I want to... grrrr! It always plays when you definitely don't have a wonderful Christmas time. Usually you are in the middle of a big argument with someones-or running around stores that have nothing to buy, with no money left to buy anyway. Just shut up Paul McCartney, why not you. They know it's Christmas, Too many chefs christmas songs, punched under his weight with just 12 mentions. The line 'thank God its place you' is terrible, said Craig Brown. 'This Christmas in Africa there won't be snow.' Yes, not shit, Nicolas Sanchez said. It's called being in the other hemisphere. Why the fuck would Africa snow in the middle of summer? I want hippopotamus for Christmas. The oldest novelty song on the list, received 12 mentions. David Howell had a practical caveat: The hipster waving his tail and spreading crap around the world. Some girl didn't do hip hip hips research. If you hate this ranking, great! You have a chance to fix it with a Lifehacker twitter survey clearing the worst Christmas Song ever. Picture: Orbon Alija/E+/Getty Images Check the centers for the branch of holly... Wait, that's not quite right! Every year, soon after we spend our Thanksgiving turkeys, radio stations and shops start playing Christmas music. Love it or hate it, don't leak it! And what's even crazier is that some people are ing along with these classic tunes without knowing the right lyrics! There's nothing like standing in an elevator with someone singing along to Winter Wonderland, just singing, later we'll sweat by the fire. You'll get the idea! Fortunately, there is a way to improve your knowledge of the Christmas song: listen to them all the time, all year round! Okay, maybe it's a high order. Still, if you start studying right after the Fourth of July, you should be able to remember a good 200 to 300 songs! It gives you a leg up over slouches who actually wait until December to start playing their Christmas music! Plus, you have a wide range of songs to choose from: traditional religious songs, songs about Santa and denizens at the North Pole, songs about snow, songs popularized by cartoon characters and so on! So see where you stand right now. Take the quiz to see if you can still identify these Christmas songs with their brutally confused lyrics. Then you will know your weak areas and which songs to study harder from next summer! Copyright © 2020 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, System1 Company Don Nichols/Getty Images/Getty Images Compiling the perfect Christmas playlist is one of the most important tasks of the holiday season. Sure, you've got to buy gifts, decorate the house, and maybe host a holiday get-together - but the only way to make these activities as festive as possible is by playing a fabulous Christmas soundtrack in the background. For each playlist, you will need an assortment of old and new, cheerful and chill. So while Elvis Presley's Blue Christmas and Nat King Cole's About Come All Ye Faithful will definitely be cut, you should also include some modern Christmas songs. To help you get started, we found the best new Christmas tunes from artists like Mariah Carey, Ariana Grande, John Legend, Ne-Yo, Sia and more. These modern Christmas songs include positive hits that get everyone dancing to the chill ballads you might want to listen to with a cup of cocoa by the fire. We know there's something for everyone's musical taste, whether you prefer a classic cover or like to listen to new holiday hits. Just sit back, relax (preferably with some Christmas candies), and let these tunes take you in the festive spirit. Advertising – Continue reading under 1 Santa Tell Me by Ariana Grande amazon.com Is it possible for a song to be an instant classic? In 2014, Ariana Grande released this holiday single, explaining that it's something about being pretty Santa because he doesn't necessarily pull through all the time. In it, he asks St. Nick not to have it, in love if this guy doesn't have another Christmas in her life. RELATED: The 51 best Christmas songs of all time to get into Holiday Spirit 2 All I Want for Christmas Is You by Mariah Carey amazon.com Twenty-five years after its release, Mariah Carey's ultimate holiday bop is still the go-to tune to get all the parties started. It consistently lands in the No 1 spot on the Billboard Holiday 100. 4 Justin Bieber's amazon.com This song, from Justin Bieber's first Christmas album, Under the Imelo (2011), will inspire you to sobb and dance. In 2011, Bieber told MTV News, it's something I feel like he's going to sing every Christmas. Turns out he was absolutely right. 6 My Gift Is You by Gwen Stefani amazon.com Listen to this song once and it will be stuck in your ear all holiday season (but in a good way). The festive jingle is about choosing love over gifts for Christmas - a sweet message everyone should hear. 7 Snow in California from Ariana Grande amazon.com In some places, a white Christmas just isn't likely - no matter how much we want one. In this song from Ariana Grande's album Christmas Kisses (2013), the singer asks Santa for snow in California. 8 Where To Get Christmas From Faith Hill amazon.com Every '90s kid at your party will scarves along with this classic hit from Dr. Seuss' How the Grinch Stole Christmas.
