Knowing that the year is yours for the taking...

Priceless.

Priceless. A word that can be used to describe many things in life. Moments, memories, and events can all be labeled as priceless. So, it is no surprise that to many students, their years spent in high school are often some of the most priceless years of their lives. Priceless moments can be funny, sad, touching, or sentimental. "An especially priceless moment for me was freshman year when I tripped and fell and ripped the butt of my jeans from one seam to the other. I had to wear a sweatshirt around my waist for the rest of the day to hide the enormous rip in my jeans. I will definitely never forget that incident," junior Ashleigh Lough said. Some priceless memories can even be a little cruel. "My best memory of high school so far, was this year when I worked concessions at the football game. When a girl supporting the other team came to buy a pop, I shook it up before I gave it to her and watched as it exploded in her face. I should probably feel bad, but I don't. After all, she was from the other team," sophomore Wil Mayo said. Priceless events can come in all shapes and sizes. These events can include sports tournaments, dances, or even kicking a certain physics teacher's behind in dodgeball. "Poor Mr. [Joel] Ritter. When I got him out two times in dodgeball, I thought he was going to cry. You know, he went home at the end of that day and was gone from school for almost a week. That was definitely my favorite event from high school," senior Jake Simmons said. Priceless events for students can take on many forms. "My most priceless thing about this year was developing school spirit in my new school. Volleyball really helped my pride in this school grow," freshman Gretchen Suehr said. Moments with friends, dances with the perfect date, and nights just hanging out watching movies can be some of the best times in a high schooler's life. Perhaps the most priceless aspect of all, is not one single event, but the entire high school experience itself. Within these pages is our attempt to capture moments that have made this year priceless.

Being paired up with your secret crush...PRICELESS

1. The Interchange held a retro dance in order to raise money. Many students attended, including psychedelic girls junior Mariah McCalley and senior Vannessa Banister. "Mariah and I were having a blast shimmying the night away," Banister said. 2. The day: crazy day. The place: lunch room. The person: senior Vachan Cheruvatath. "It was just like the desert. I was looking for water for my people," Cheruvatath said. 3. Sophomore girls Mindy Sherrill, Anna Harlow, Kadie Quada, Jenna Kiessling, Courtney Martin, and Casey Barnes support the Marshall boys soccer team by wearing their red t-shirts. "I was inquisitively watching the ball roll down the field," Quada said. 4. The green team seniors Evan Sharpley, Sheila Srinivasan, and Jenna Williams show their school spirit during homecoming events. "I was trying hard for a hug, but I couldn't find any takers," Srinivasan said. 5. Everybody knows that high schoolers aren't made of money, so in order to save on the expenses of dresses, the GAP program set up the dress exchange. Freshmen Amy Baranowski, Julie Blossom, and Janaya Loular admire one of the pretty white dresses. "There were a lot of cool dresses, but I ended up wearing my friend's dress," Baranowski said.

Standing Out...priceless.

1. Eating under the display case across from the book store at lunch is a "privelege" many students look forward to all through high school. Senior Ashley Dominique is no exception. "I love sitting under the display case. It's so funny to watch everyone as they walk by. The gum and all the stuff stuck underneath the case is pretty sick, but it is a history of gum that will never be forgotten. We're leaving our own legacy of wrappers up there, too," Dominique said. 2. Sophomores Alex Braner, Jessica Peacock, and Amanda Jeffreys chill at lunch during homecoming week. "Ok, that must be homecoming week because that is definitely a hat on my head, and normally I don't do hats. Homecoming brings out all the craziness in you," Peacock said. 3. Juniors Matt Leahy and Andrew Leahy share some brotherly love before an impending cross country meet. "People always try to tell us that we look alike. I just can't see it," [Matt] Leahy said.

1. Showing off some crazy day spirit are freshmen Angela Eash and Annan Codde. "I knew I wanted to dress up, but I didn't know what types of stuff people usually wear, so I just did it in layers," Codde said. 2. Expressing yourself is important, regardless of how it is done. Senior Nichole Kazmar expresses herself quite artistically, both on paper and off. "The painting I was working on was really fun. I've been super into tribal people, and I include them in a lot of my artwork. It's funny because I drew something on my arm, and at the time this photo was taken, it was fading. It looks really bad, but oh well!" Kazmar said. 3. Seniors Vachan Cheruvatath and Kevin Fidler watch the varsity boys basketball team ball it up at Albion. "Well, I was just watching the game until all of the sudden, I feel [Kevin] Fidler grabbing me. I mean, I guess he was probably just into the game, but it freaked me out," Cheruvatath said. "Uhhh, he's [Cheruvatath] a liar. I did no such thing!" Fidler said. 4. Sometimes, there is no better date than one with your best friends. Sophomore Ambre Wright, junior Emily Kelly, and sophomore Allyson Miko get their boogy on. "Homecoming was a blast. We danced all night. It was like a girl's night out," Miko said.

Face paint: $1...class tee shirt: $10...coming together with your class to compete for one week...Priceless.

Homecoming week is a part of high school that many students never forget. "Homecoming was so fun. It was our last one, and that's fair," senior Nick Hopkins said. Whether one gets excited about the competition of the events and the football game, the fun of dress up days, or anticipating the homecoming dance, there is a little something for everyone. "Homecoming is one of the coolest weeks of the year. Everyone is all excited for the game, not to mention that the events are always really intense," sophomore Shannon Bridges said. The events, held Sunday afternoon at the football field, and then on Thursday in the gym, really bring classes together through competition. "Coming together and competing with your class is so fun because each year everyone learns to work together a little bit more, and I think that is what really makes the whole thing priceless," senior Meagan Mackey said. Whether it is the events, the dress up days, the pep rally, game, or the dance that makes one remember homecoming, some part of it is guaranteed to be a priceless memory.

1. There is nothing like an ice cold drink after a hard day's work. Juniors Bryan Berger, Andrea Meny, Nicholas Brubaker and junior advisor Matt West huddle up to assess their float's progress. "Constant communication is the key to a good float," Meny said. 2. Pretty in purple is senior homecoming queen Tearyne Glover and her king, senior Joe Hutson. "Being voted queen was such an honor. It's something I will never forget," Glover said. 3. Ahhhhh!! "Homecoming events are all about yelling, and I was adding lots of noise!" Sophomore Jordan Sander said. 4. Is that the Adam's Family in the windows of the senior float? Close, but not quite. Seniors Evan Sharpley and Dave Smith work diligently on their float. "Well, we were trying to test out our float's durability, and as you can see, Dave was falling," Sharpley said. 5. Hoola hoops can be tricky. Demonstrating a new approach to the event are sophomores Mandy Hoffmann, Jessica Peacock, and Meredith Line. "We tried to all fit through in a circle, instead of a line because we like circles," Hoffmann said. 6. Freshmen Allison Killewald, Adrian Marrow, and Samantha Biggs show their crazy side at lunch. "Those dress up days were so fun. I can't wait to put together crazier outfits next year," Biggs said. 7. Painting can be a time consuming task. Junior Tara Fitzsimmons knows this all too well. "Painting the people for our float was kind of taking forever. When it was all said and done, I thought they were pretty cute," Fitzsimmons said.

1. The sophomore class unites for a cheer during the events assembly. "It was such a rush cheering with our whole grade. Even though we didn't win, it was fun," sophomore Marisa Loughrige said. 2. Juniors Amanda Nelson, Katy Dulaney, Angela Leahy, Ashley Wright, Amber Wright, and Anna Pizzamenti cheer on their fellow juniors. "Homecoming events this year were really wild. Too bad our float sucked!" Leahy said. 3. Watching the events unfold is freshman Brittany Wright. "It was so cool seeing our class come together. Everyone got along for once," Wright said. 4. Senior Ashley Dominique spray painted her hair green to show her senior spirit. "I wanted to show how much school spirit I have. I don't know if it was worth it because the paint didn't all come out for a few weeks," Dominique said.

Mix it Up

1. Celebrating the senior domination of the hoola hoop contest are seniors Jenna Williams and Anna Braner. Senior Jake Simmons celebrates in the background. "Winning is such an adrenaline rush! Especially when the seniors are totally kicking everyone else's butt," Braner said. 2. Junior John Edlund prepares for the Mountain Dew chugging contest. "Look at how hot my aviators were!" Edlund said. 3. While most students dress to fit in, sophomore Remy Dillon dresses to blend in. "I was going for the sixth man look from last year," Dillon said. 4. During the arm wrestling competition, sophomore Tarrance Glover and junior Dustin Kilbourn duke it out. "That arm wrestling was one of the toughest things I have ever done," Glover said.

Tight in White

1. Matt Roberts, Brandon Schroeder, and Sean Ferencz cheer on their class. "Homecoming was a lot of fun. It was pretty cool representing our class without clothes on," Roberts said.

2. Ben Hicks prepares to wedge his body through the hoola-hoop. "I wish we could have done better but it was an overall incredibly amazing event," Hicks said.

3. The students show off their hard work at the float judging. Lindsay Longwell seems to be proud of the accomplishment. "It was fun. It was kind of a class bonding experience. You couldn't just go and hang out, you had to work," Longwell said.

4. Rachel Delaney and Devanny Anthony strut their stuff on Crazy Day. "I didn't think any of the freshmen were going to dress up, but we ended up looking pretty good," Delaney said. "I think the freshmen really showed their spirit. At first I felt really dumb, but when I saw Jordan Goodwin I was OK," Anthony said.

5. Rachael Simmons tries to pull off a win in the arm wrestling competition. "My adrenaline was pumping and I knew I could beat her," Simmons said. 6. Matt Seibert and Trevor Smolinski prepare to walk into the homecoming madness. "The intensity of homecoming was sweet! Beating the upperclassmen in some events was even better," Seibert said. "The events were sweet even though we lost most of them," Smolinski said.

Seeing Red

1. Anna Harlow, Meredith Line, Jordan Sander, and Hannah Guerra join in during a cheer. "I think our shirts turned out so cool. It took us a minute to get in the correct order though," Line said. 2. Representing their class on the homecoming court are Kayla Vallar and Clay Robinson. "It was a special moment for me because I didn't think anyone would pick me because I was new," Vallar said. 3. The float modeling Survivor took second place in the lawn display competition. "Building the float was a really great time. It was fun spending some time with my family and my class," Robinson said. 4. To show their support for Eric Ebner the sophomores made a sign that said, "Demolish those Ronni's". "Eric was doing great until the pepperoni got caught in his braces. Oh well, maybe he'll have them off by next year," Will Mayo said. 5. With a mouth full of pizza and a cheering crowd behind her, Marissa Loughrige finishes off another slice of pizza. "I thought the pizza would never end. I didn't feel too well for a while after that," Loughrige said. 6. The homecoming events can often bring out a different side of people. "I was ready for a fight. All I could think about was winning," Alec Hakes said.

Black Attack

1. Competing for his class in the spider crawl is Josh Lord. "I was excited to do the spider crawl because I got to wear shorts. I really wanted to show off my legs after soccer season because I worked so hard to build them up," Lord said. 2. "Eat! Eat! Eat," the class chanted as Trevor Kipp competed in the pizza eating contest while Mrs. Angela Krueger looked on. "I've done it all three years because it's so much fun. Plus, who can turn down free pizza? It was exciting this year because we got first place," Kipp said. 3. On game day, the class float was on display in the parking lot outside the game. "Our first float idea fell through, so we tried our hardest to pull it together with the little time that we had," Ashleigh Lough said. 4. Nick Brubaker brings refreshments to his classmates during the float building process. "I was carrying in pop for the kids working on the float. It really helped all of us to keep hyper and keep working on those late nights," Brubaker said. 5. Shooting in the football toss game is Emily Scherer. Watching her shoot are juniors Charlie Ramos, Molly Duckwall, Steve Holstine, and Steve Lasky. "We were cheering on Emily, and I think she made this shot," Duckwall said. 6. Following an intense game of football toss, Geana Godde, Matt Leahy, Ramos, Chad Kalkowski, Kevin Hershock, Josh Hodge, Steve Holstine, Lindsey Reynolds, Lough, Ben Hill, Allison Carlton, Erin Cooley, Kehvren Dobbins, Chela VanSickle, Katherine Carlton, Kam Loveless, and Lucas Fratta celebrate their victory. "We were all psyched because we had just annihilated the seniors in the football toss," Hershock said.

1. Class dismissed! "Marching through the halls with the band to announce the events beginning is like an adrenaline rush," Craig Thomas said. 2. Can you feel the intensity? "The fun just kept on coming," Brendon O'Connell said. 3. "Looking back on homecoming the past four years, this year was definitely the icing on the cake!" Jenna Sopko said. 4. Tiffany Silvers and Darin DeWeese show MHS the ropes. "We practiced up while working on our float. Darin has some intense jumping skills," Silvers said. 5. "I was mad because I was having a bad hair day, and I thought, 'Why not take it out on the underclassmen?' I was told later that a kid wet himself in fear. I don't talk to underclassmen anymore for fear that they will have accidents," David Smith said. 6. All made up and ready to go is Meagan Mackey. "Do I have too much makeup on? I was trying to be subtle, I swear," Mackey said. 7. Showing all the spirit they can muster are Jenny Tefft, Kevin Fidler, Ashley Goodrich, Andrea Phillips, Morgan Damron, and Mackey. "I couldn't really see what was going on because my shades were a little too dark, but I started cheering anyways because Kevin [Fidler] was, and he's never wrong," Goodrich said. 7. Concentrating on the task at hand is Kevin Schook. "Yeah, I was concentrating. The football toss can be a tough event," Schook said.

1. What could be more fun than dancing with your friends? Graduate Danielle Hayes, juniors Amber Munoz and Kayla Swan, sophomore Alyssa Swan, junior Emily Brownell, and sophomore Briana Ramirez make a train at the dance. "My friends and I had so much fun making a dancing line," Munoz said. 2. Seniors Adam Jenks and Tom Albaugh discuss how man's best friend can sometimes turn on you. "Tom was explaining how his dog ravaged his old girlfriend, thus explaining why he had to find a new one to be his date," Jenks said.

Sometimes things are better left in the hands of someone else, as juniors John VanZandt and Kelsey Lange found out. "I was admiring her corsage. My aunt picked it out for me, and she did a great job," VanZandt said.

Outside the cafeteria, junior Mark Olding and sophomore Amanda Frye share a moment as Olding contemplates the beauty of his date. "Amanda looked so nice [that night]. She worked hard to look so good, and in the end she looked really beautiful," Olding said.

Anything can be fun if it involves getting a new outfit, as many girls can tell you. "I like getting all dressed up. I got my hair done and everything. The best part was getting to buy a new dress," freshman Abigail Genise said. Also with Genise at the dance are freshmen Sam Biggs and Teresa Pizzimenti.

Senior Rachel Corralez chats with senior Doug Murphy outside the dance. "I was keeping my friends' date [Murphy] in line," Corralez said.

Some events in life can produce memories that last for a month or two, while others may last a few years before being forgotten. And sometimes, a select few precious memories stay with you for a lifetime. For some students, homecoming is one of those priceless memories that stick. "It's amazing how many memories you can make in one night. It's so cool looking back a week later and knowing that I'll have those memories for the rest of my life," junior Kevin Hershock said. Homecoming can be a blast as many kids can tell you. "I was just having fun with my friends," senior Danielle Hainline said. It's priceless memories like these that help make many students' high school years so enjoyable.

Dances can sometimes be more of a hangout place than anything else. "I was just having a good time hanging out with my friends," sophomore Jessica Lockwood said as she talked with freshman Rachel Simmons.

Hard at Work

getting a huge promotion: Priceless.

Everyone wants to make some extra cash while in high school because there is so much to buy. Christmas, birthday, anniversary presents, clothes, CDs, and a wide variety of foods are available to the discriminating buyer. Since the minimum wage in Michigan is so low, students often end up working long hours. Students also give up the opportunity to do other activities because of job commitments. "I need my job, but I also need to stay after school a lot to work on the yearbook. Sometimes it's a problem balancing the two," senior Amy Baker said. For some people, an after school job is helpful to set them on path to the career of their dreams. "I have enjoyed working at The Mole Hole for the past three years because it has helped me to understand what true customer service is," senior Kara Evans said.

1. Putting together a specialty pas-trami sandwich is senior Joey Caron. "I like working at the restaurant because it's a unique experience, and I've never really done it before," Caron said. 2. Counting comes in handy at many of the jobs on the market right now. Making change at Burger King is junior Sam Rodriguez. "It's good for me to have a job because it pays the bills," Rodriguez said. 3. Sophomore Caitlin Wills is cutting fabric at her job. "It's good living on the edge. First, the floor went crazy, and then the boiler blew up. The people are really nice too," Wills said. 4. Customer service is important to junior Molly Duckwall. "We are like a family," Duckwall said.

Louie's worker, sophomore Megan Sherrill, fills the donut cases with fresh donuts. "The work is very easy, and I get good pay for doing nothing and eating donuts," Sherrill said.

"It's a cool job at BK [Burger King]. You can always have it your way," Sophomore Gordon Murphy said.

Senior Emily Sander patiently does the inventory. "It's fun to work in a really old antique shop downtown. It's a fun experience," Sander said.

Junior Amber Steele fills drinks for thirsty customers. "I have been working at Arby's since the beginning of the school year. I enjoy making easy money and putting all the customers in a good mood, so they will hopefully come back again, soon," Steele said.

While working at Taco Bell, sophomore Amanda Miller happily takes someone's order. "Working at Taco Bell is a lot of fun. It's always really busy, and the people I work with are really cool. I basically just love my job," Miller said.

Dance Off

Tickets: $7...tie: $20...corsage: $25... dancing till your feet hurt...Priceless.

Every once in a while students need to let go, have fun, and dance. Dancing can be a perfect thing to do to relieve stress from school. Winterfest is a great excuse to dress up and go out to a fancy restaurant with a date or just a group of friends. "I really enjoyed the extravagant meal at Georgio's and dancing with a pirate afterwards," sophomore Ambre Wright said. For many students, the evening was filled with smiles, laughter, and dancing. "My favorite thing about Winterfest is that none of my friends can dance, but we don't care," junior Allison Carlton said. With the DJ playing the tracks and people dancing it up on the dance floor, many did not want the night to end. "There was definitely something in the air that night," senior Sheila Srinivasan said. To many students, Winterfest was truly magical.

1. Waiting for their dates are senior Clint Burghdorf and sophomores Ryan Sharpley and Andrew Dayton. "My date was obviously in the bathroom," Burghdorf said. 2. Freshmen Britta Seifert and Brett Merkel move to the music. "Dinner was great, but one can obviously see that Brett had bad breath," Seifert said.

Clapping along with the music are juniors Emily Ours, Paige Gordeneer, Monica Herman, Anna Pizzimenti, and Kaitlin Russell. "I had a lot of fun at Winterfest this year. I fell flat on my face and slid four feet across the cafeteria floor," Gordeneer said.

Taking a break from dancing for a moment are seniors Kevin Schook, Ashley Goodrich, Sheila Srinivasan, and Vachan Cheruvatath. "It was a good way to spend my last Winterfest with my friends. I love them all," Schook said.

Seniors Kelly Hughes and Ian Clifton look like they are having a great time at the dance. "It was a really fun dance and a good last Winterfest," Hughes said. Though the dance was fun for some people, many were looking forward to the after party. "Winterfest was fun, but the after party was even better," Clifton said.

Senior Andrea Phillips laughs while dancing. "I was dancing the night away with my friends. Good times," Phillips said. Sometimes just dancing with friends can be the best part.

1. Senior Darin DeWeese and junior Chris Walsh plot their move. "I really enjoyed this part because it was challenging as well as rewarding," Deweese said. 2. DeWeese, as the music man, tricks the town into following his ideas about a band. Trailing behind him are freshmen Sam Reeves and Ashley Munoz. "I found it really hard not to laugh because Darin was just really funny," Reeves said.

The town, as sophomore Krissy Hogan, freshmen Sam Reeves and Ashley Munoz, sophomore Amber Wright, senior Scott Smith, juniors Kathryn Carlton and Emily Ours, fifth grader Haley Murray, freshman Hannah Richardson, and fourth grader Parker Murray gather together to welcome and thank the audience for coming. "It was the best high school show I have ever been in," Smith said.

Ever wonder how those actors or actresses are lit up on stage to look their very best? Senior Jessi Mees and junior Mariah McCalley work the light levers. "It was oober awesome being on the light crew because we controlled the whole show," McCalley said.

Breaking out of character to check his cell phone is senior Matt Sherrill. "The babes are always calling me, so I had to turn off my cell phone before I went on stage," Sherrill said.

Under the Makeup

Script: $10...set: $65...hearing the applause from the rest of the student body, all of your friends, and family: ...Priceless.

Under the direction of Ms. Petrich, 92 students put together The Music Man. With all of the big roles and the many students to fill them, the play was bound to have some issues. "It was fun, but Darin was a diva," freshman Hannah Richardson said. Issues aside, the play's cast, which included the band, produced four performances in one weekend.

Sometimes there can be pretty tight tension between mother and daughter, and in this scene it shows the worst of it through seniors Tearyne Glover and Vanessa Banister. "My character is frustrated with her daughter, and she just wishes to get a grandchild before she dies," Glover said.

1. On stage, juniors Chris Walsh and Ashley Morford, and senior Darin Deweese open up the scene. "I never understood how musical the word 'kangaroo' could be. Nate [Cox] and Mr. Fitzpatrick, true men of music, taught me life long lessons," Morford said. 2. Junior Paige Gordeneer and sophomore Dylan Hackworth take a break from rehearsal for a moment to play with Mr. Fitzpatrick's son, Jake. "The true star of the play was Jake Fitzpatrick. He's going to be famous someday," Hackworth said.

The cast of the play wait for the directors to give them notes. Juniors Mariah McCalle, Sam Howard, Paige Gordeneer and Chris Walsh, senior Darin Deweese, and sophomores Ambre Wright and Sidne Lyon are waiting for notes. "Nate [Cox] and Mr. Fitzpatrick beat us to near death with their notes, but afterwards they gave us cookies and all was forgiven," Wright said.

Senior Vanessa Banister rehearses at her character's favorite spot, the bar. "My character was a paranoid lush, and she was probably calming her fears with booze," Banister said.

Getting down to the bottom of the mystery is junior Chris Walsh. "I like mysteries. It's fun running around pretending you're about to be killed," Walsh said.

Gathered around the piano are sophomores Ambre Wright and Dylan Hackworth, junior Chris Walsh, and seniors Vanessa Banister, Craig Thomas, and William Newton. "We were playing the game 'Head, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes,' and Vanessa was obviously losing," Newton said.

Dying With Laughter

Props: $98... costumes: $0... donations: $700... finding your maid dead in your closet... Priceless.

Once every year the high school puts on a play that can either make people laugh or cry. This year it was all about the laughs. "The people in the theater always change, but they have always been dedicated to the show and making it great. That's the reason everyone enjoys it so much, too," senior Craig Thomas said. For the cast and crew of The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940, one of the best parts was getting to know everyone and having a great sense of camaraderie backstage.

Co-director Nate Cox blocks a scene with sophomores Ambre Wright and Dylan Hackworth. "On this particular day they were out of carmel apple suckers, so I took my anger out on Nate. Luckily, he survived," Wright said.

1. Juniors Kevin Hershock and Gaby Kuschmann work against the clock to finish a leg for a base of the tower. "I was concentrating to get things done. We stayed longer than I thought we would. I am glad we got things done," Hershock said. 2. In order to make the entrance resemble a French garden, juniors Anna Pizzimenti and Mariah McCalley hang tulle for a canopy. "I was really stressed. I was worried that it wouldn't turn out as I thought it would. It turned out perfectly," Pizzimenti said.

3. Decorating for prom is not always an easy task. It can take planning and a lot of effort. Juniors Mariah McCalley, Paige Gordeneer, Anna Pizzimenti, Ashley Morford and Amanda Bischoff discuss how the chairs should be arranged. "Some people got a little stressed, but I told them they would be all right. Everything went down smooth," McCalley said. 4. Morford gets ready to build a street lamp while she waits for the glue to warm up. "I had studied lamp post engineering three months prior to prom; however, I didn't tell anyone. I put it together and received compliments, and no one knew my secret," Morford said.

The Eiffel tower was over 17 feet tall, and it had to be divided into sections for the set up. Junior Ashley Wright waits for some of the pieces to dry after gluing them together. "There were so many different parts on the Eiffel tower. You had to spend a lot of time gluing them together," Wright said.

The set up date has come, the ballroom is under junior control, and junior Kaitlin Russell arranges tables to simulate a French café. "It was hard to move all the chairs and tables but, it was worth it because everything looked so beautiful and prom was good," Russell said.

It took about six people to raise the Eiffel tower. Juniors Gaby Kuschmann and Emily Ours work together as a team and build the top part of the structure. "It took about four hours to set up the tower. It was so beautiful that all the hard work was worth [it] in the end," Kuschmann said.

Eiffel tower: $150...refreshments and snacks: $260...candles: $50...the magic of A Walk in Paris...Priceless.

As the end of the school year comes closer and spring arrives, many students begin to think about what can be one of the most important nights during high school: prom. As tradition follows, the junior class has the task to come up with a theme and set the dance up at Battle Creek's Federal Center. "I like the Federal Center because the beauty of it emphasizes the elegance of prom," junior Katherine Carlton said. This year's theme was A Walk in Paris. "It is a nice theme because it is elegant and allows for nice decorations without overdoing stuff," junior Missy Huver said. Many students worked hard, and some stayed out working well past 12:30 A.M.. "I was really pleased after all the hard work we did, about how beautiful it looked. It paid off," junior Sarah Brewer said. Tasks ranged from moving out tables to gluing together a 17 foot Eiffel tower. "[Junior] Gaby [Kuschmann] took her time measuring the holes for the lights to make it look nice. It was definitely the best part of decoration," junior Tara Fitzsimmons said. For many students, prom only happens twice in their life. "It is important for everyone to come together and work hard to make prom nice," junior Ashleigh Lough said. All the effort of putting together a prom and enjoying it can make it one of the most priceless memories of being in high school.

1. Senior Lindsay Doneth laughs, while her date, senior Clint Burghdorf gets soaked. "Lindsay wasn't being nice. She was laughing at me because I had spilt my water all down my shirt. Let me tell you, it sure was cold," Burghdorf said. 2. Sophomore Kayla Vallar and junior Ralph Ramon gaze at the people dancing around them. "We were looking at this one kid breaking it down to the music. He was making us laugh. It was very amusing," Ramon said.

Dancing and looking good are what seniors Jake Simmons and Katie Wolf do best. "Prom was a blast. It let us use our two best skills—dancing and looking ridiculously good. Katie agreed with me too," Simmons said.

Seniors Lauren Murphy and Emily Sander look at pictures after prom. "I was just telling Lauren how great the pictures were. It was a Polaroid of the two of us on the dance floor," Sander said.

Hugging after being announced prom queen and king are seniors Amanda Segar and Joey Caron. "It was a surprise and an honor I won prom king. It will be something I will always remember. I am also really glad Amanda was my prom queen," Caron said.

Senior Rebecca Arnold and junior Natalie Kirylo give a look of disappointment at prom. "I was a little disappointed with the decorations. I thought there would have been a little more. However, the Eiffel tower looked really good. It was a little crooked, though," Kirylo said.

A Walk in Paris

Prom Dress: $250...tuxedo: $100...tickets: $40...dancing the last dance of prom 2005 to "Amazed" by Lonestar...Priceless.

Toward the end of the year, there is always one thing for the juniors and seniors to look forward to: Prom. Dancing, pictures, and flowers are all things that can make prom amazing. This year, prom was held at the Federal Center on April 30. To go along with the theme, A Walk in Paris, there was an Eiffel tower. From buying a dress, choosing where to eat dinner, or spending the night dancing with friends, there are many different ways to make prom priceless.

Having no prom date didn't bother juniors Tabitha Van-Wormer and Jessica Lowell. "I didn't take anyone to prom. I just went with a group of friends. It was a lot of fun. I'm glad we got to just hang out and dance," Lowell said.

1. Gathered around the computer bringing back old memories are Amanda Sobel, Kara Evans, Becky Kish and Danielle Hainline. "Our skit was all about the old memories. In this part we were talking about the Oregon Trail computer game. Everyone used to play that game, whether they admit it or not, so we decided to incorporate it into the skit," Sobel said. 2. With the bright lights upon him, Chris Curren is showing off his outfit. "It was so hot that night because of those lights and I was sweating up a storm. But, wow, I sure did look good in that skirt," Curren said.

"All I could concentrate on was how hot Jake Simmons was and how I couldn't keep my eyes off him," Anna Braner said about doing this nerd skit with fellow classmate, Simmons.

Dressed up as a girl on stage is Vachan Cheruvatath. "You've just gotta get in the mood and feel the love," Cheruvatath said.

In her cowboy attire Kara Evans shows off her clogging skills. "Class night was really just practice for my dance recital, the next night. But, I still had fun doing it," Evans said.

Guys in skirts? Showing off their bravery and their attire are Joey Hutson and Eddie Sleeper. "I've never felt so good in a skirt before in my life," Hutson said.

In the beginning of Class Night, Morgan Damron, Ashley Class night brings friends closer together. In Kevin Fidler, Dominique, Kelsey Travis, and Kate Grooms sit upon the stage and Kevin Schook's case, it might bring two friends re-singing the opening song. "This was the opening song and I thought ally close. "Kevin and I were already good friends, but that being up on stage would be frightening, but when you are up dancing together brought us even closer," Fidler said. on stage with your friends it is not so bad," Travis said.

The Grand Finale

Eating fast food all week: $20...missing work to practice skits: negative $50...bonding with the classmates you haven't talked to in years: Priceless.

"It's a marvelous night for a class night..." and so began the seniors' three hour show, featuring various skits, songs, and dances. "It's surprising to see what people come up with. There's some funny kids in this school, I'll tell ya'," Sheila Srinivasan said. Although the seniors come up with performances that make you laugh, there are some that are quite emotional. "I had such bad stage fright. All I could think about was how I just got my haircut. It was too short, and no one knew about it. I was pretty stressed out," Emily Scears said. Now that the seniors are moving on, it easy to see that "...it's going to be a bright, bright future ahead..."

1. Representing the Asians in Marshall High is Matt Sherrill. "All year, us Asians have been trying to get the word out. You best recognize the AZN is in the house," Sherill said.

2. Prancing around in his skirt attempting to hula with the big boys is Evan Sharpley. "Well pink sure does look cute on me. I'm glad I got to show off my favorite skirt," Sharpley said.

3. Party boy Jake Simmons makes a mad dash from the police. "Purple is totally my color. Man, I'm sexy," Simmons said. 4. Napoleon Dynamite impersonator Craig Thomas shows off his dance moves. "My dance was fricken' sweet. Anyone could see that...Gosh!" Thomas said.

"I wonder what time it is...?" Brendan O'Connell asks. Noticing their shirts, it's five. It is their year, and their time to shine. Singing along with O'Connell are Nick Hopkins, Vachan Cheruvatath, and Kevin Schook.

Pretending to be teachers in an eating contest, Meagan Mackey and Matt Stefan play with mustard. "Another one of my skits was coming up and I got so much mustard in my hair," Mackey said.

"After the show, Tom [Albaugh], Mike [Hughes], and I went to a romantic dinner at Schulers. We had the best beef in town. Ravioli?...Holy canoli!" Dave Smith said. During their performance, the group was debating about where to eat.

While performing his elevator skit with Clint Burghdorf, Andrew Hunt has one question for you. "Going up? Well, in the words of The Game: 'I can take you higher'," Hunt said.

Andrea Phillips, Sheila Srinivasan, Meagan Mackey, and Jenna Williams are just giving a word to their mothers. "We all wanted to pour our hearts out to our moms and publicize our musical talent that had never been expressed," Phillips said.

With weather permitting, Rachel DeWolf and Darin DeWeese find a way to cool themselves off. "It was pretty hot out, so Darin and I were fanning ourselves out under the reflection of my hott specks," DeWolf said.

Playing her trombone for the last time with the band is Nichole Anderson-Whiting. "Without band, I couldn't have gotten through high school," Anderson-Whiting said.

Senior pictures: $500...disposable camera: $7...hearing your name over the loud speaker to recieve your diploma...Priceless.

Whether it is in state, out of state, or just taking a bit of time off, the post high school years can be very memorable. "The best part of senior year is knowing that I can graduate as a Redhawk," Molly Lautenslager said. With the help of the staff, many students in the class of 2005 are ready to start the next chapter in their lives. "I wish the senior class the best of luck. I have enjoyed having them for four years," Vice Principal Mike Dahlinger said. It could be tough for the upcoming classes to live up to such a great legacy. Just like the new mascot and nickname that they helped to initiate, the amazing spirit that the senior class has brought to MHS will soar in the hallways forever. Although the mascot in our school has changed, most of the students' spirit has not. "Graduation comes only once, and I'm going to make the best of it and continue having fun," Matt Stefan said.

Under many of those black and red gowns were some rattled nerves. "I was really nervous at first, but thankfully, everything went really well," Emily Sander said.

After one of his famous cartwheels, Dave Smith's hat needs adjusting. "The hat didn't fit my bulbous head because the order got messed up," Smith said.

Kara Evans, Zach Hopkins, and Mathew Horan are led to their seats by Mr. Brian Burns. "As graduation began, I was realizing how much fun I had at MHS these past four years, and how much more fun I will have in the future," Evans said.

1. Using his analogy skills, Tom Albaugh puts graduation into perspective. "Graduation is to life as bush is to tree. They are one," Albaugh said. 2. A variety of different emotions fly at graduation. However, Krista Trehwella only has feelings of excitement. "I'm relieved it's over, but now it's time to rock and roll," Trehwella said. 3. The graduating class flip their tassels in unison under the direction of Joey Caron. "It was a fun moment to flip the tassels because my cousin was leading us, and he is inspiring," Kipp Caron said.

1. After graduation, the students walked down the track to see their families. "It was kinda hard to sit through the speeches, so me, Virginia Gordon, and Ashley Goodrich made up stories," Tearyne Glover said. 2. After receiving their diplomas, the senior class of 2005 threw their caps into the air. "Graduation was really exciting and I'm looking forward to the future," Katie Wolf said.

1. Before the graduation ceremony began, the Marshall Singers sang the Star Spangled Banner. "Being a part of the Marshall Singers was one of the most rewarding parts of my MHS career. Singing with them was an honor," Vanessa Banister said. 2. "The past four years were the best years of my life, and graduation will be a night to remember," Amber Petersen said. Here the seniors are returning down the track after graduation. 3. Danielle Hainline, Kara Evans, Kate Grooms and Amanda Sobel walk together through downtown before graduation. "I was really nervous but also excited. When I saw my mom, she was crying," Hainline said.

Walking down the track after receiving his diploma is Andrew Hunt. "I made it," Hunt said.

Spread your wings

Honors cords: $10...a new outfit: $60...making that final walk down the football field...Priceless.

1. Kyle Sinclair and Justin VanHoose walk onto the football field prior to the graduation ceremony. "School was very hard, and I was very dedicated to my school work- -'just joking'. All I did was screw off," Sinclair said. 2. Before graduation, Michael Hughes, Joey Caron and Nick Hopkins walked down Michigan Avenue in their cap and gowns. "My senior year was great, and I feel as if our class made a lot of accomplishments, but now we're ready to move on," Caron said.

The final good-bye

Admission: $40...door prizes: $2000...food: $250...spending one last night with your class before you all go your own way...Priceless.

For some the class party at the end of the year is a time to hang with friends and celebrate their graduation. "It was a great time to hangout with people for the last time. I had a blast and will miss them all," Kate Grable said. Because of the fact that the party was at the high school and not at Full Blast, Ashley Dominique, like some students, agreed that there was a lot more to do, which made it better than the alternative. "I thought it was better than Full Blast because the parent volunteers were able to invest in lots of food and games. Good class unity," Dominique said. Even with all the activities, many graduates were most anticipating the time they got to share together. "The inflatables were fun. And we got to meet up with all our classmates one last time," Tiffany Maddux said. For some of the grads, the party was a perfect tie up to four years in high school.

1. Ashton Anthony, Joey Caron, Meagan Mackey, Lauren Murphy, Rebecka Quilhot, Amanda Sobel, Ashley Dupuis, Matthew Stefan, Vachan Cheruvatath, Kyle Sinclair, Dennis Holmes, Ashley Dominique, Travis Reniger, and Jenna Williams are watching the Class Night video. "Watching on tape with the other seniors proved we were better than last year," Cheruvatath said. 2. Struggling to get through the obstical course is Leah Brown. "Amy [Baker] and I were racing and we were both struggling up the wall; however, we made it and couldn't stop dying of laughter at the bottom," Brown said. 3. On the stage sleeping under the influence of hypnosis are Andrea Phillips, Stefan and Rachel Dewolf. "It was definitely my craziest experience, no control over anything...weird," Phillips said. 4. Being able to dominate over friends can make it all better. Meagan Mackey and Kelsey Travis duked it out on an inflatable late at night. "Kelsey just couldn't handle my sure power," Mackey said.

Gambling is one thing you should pay special attention while you do it. At the casino, graduates tried their hands with Texas Hold 'em, Black Jack, Roulette, and Razzle Dazzle. Marge Johnson, Darrin Deweese and Amanda Segar played Black Jack. "It was more fun because it was not real money, and cool that we could win prizes for the tokens won," Johnson said.

The Bungee run was a big hit. You could find someone on it almost every time you looked in the gym. David Smith takes his turn and tries to get further than the person he was against. "Once you got to the end, it was really hard, and it pulled you back really fast," Smith said.

Relaxed on the mats and a bean bag are three tired out graduates of 2005. Evan Sharpley sleeps in the back while Adam Jenks and Eri Yasuda watch the Family Guy DVD. "It's awesome. All stuff free, I enjoyed this party," Yasuda said.

In the auditorium with his friends watching the hypnotist is Michael Hughes. "I was watching Kevin Fidler make a fool of himself while hypnotized," Hughes said.

Just back from the carnival with their prizes and cotton candy in hand are Travis Reniger and Ashton Anthony. "Carnival games were hard, but the cotton candy made it all worth it," Reniger said.

Break Time

Plane ticket: $450... sunscreen: $10... spending a week in Mexico with your closest friends...Priceless.

Spring Break: n. 1. Nine days away from all of the stress, worries, and pressure of high school. 2. Can be a time spent with the closest of friends. With all of the diverse personalities at Marshall High School, many spring breaks are spent in all different ways. "Spring Break was the greatest this year because my best friend [junior] Ashleigh Lough came with me to my condo in Orlando. Most of the time we relaxed by the pool, but one day we booked it to all four Disney theme parks. It seems like a lot to do in one day, but we got to ride all of the rides we wanted to. Really, I'm just a big five year old inside," junior Lindsey Reynolds said. Although many of the crazy stories come from the students, they are not the only ones who take full advantage of their week off. "The perfect spring break is going somewhere warm, quiet. My kids are somewhere not arguing, and I can sit by the pool reading my favorite novelist," Mrs. Diane Long said. All in all, spring break is a time well spent. While some people had the opportunity to travel many people find their own home to be just as restful.

1. Clear blue water, the hot sun, and bikinis. Sounds like spring break. "Nothing better than sitting in the luke-warm pool," senior Ashley Goodrich said. 2. Senior Amy Baker looks off into the distance at a beautiful view in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina. "I was just reminiscing about my day at the beach and planning out the beach house I'm going to own some day," Baker said. 3. Who would have thought that seniors Kevin Fidler, Nick Hopkins, Dave Smith, Brenden O'Connell, Adam Jenks, Tom Albaugh, Mike Hughes, Vachan Cheruvatath, and Craig Thomas couldn't go a week without thinking about their teachers. "Steve Sachs had the one with [Mr. Joel] Ritter. Ritter thought it was real for awhile. In Physics he even took the acetone and tried to get it off. Ritter was freaking out," O'Connell said. 4. Spring breakers seniors Shu Ni and Rebecca Arnold, and sophomore Katie Arnold gaze upon the star of Johnny Depp in Las Vegas. "I had just gotten a picture with a Johnny Depp look alike. So I searched the walk of Fame for his star to get a picture with it to go with the picture," Katie Arnold said.

Sometimes just laying in the sun can make one tired. It may even call for a nap in the hammock as senior Dave Smith is illustrating. "I fell asleep and got a really bad sunburn so in the morning when people would try to wake me up they would slap my sunburn, and I would scream really loud," Smith said.

Some people take time on spring break to acquire new skills. Senior Brendon O'Connell does that with chess. "Every night I took the Queen to my room, the King started talking crap. I don't know how to play chess," O'Connell said.

Sophomores Jeremy Karns and Eric Grueber work on their tans for the end of the school year. "My favorite part was playing football and watching the girls walk by," Karns said.

Fifteen feet under the water, senior Craig Thomas swims on his open water training dive. "I was scuba diving off the beach in Cozumel near a place called Palancar Reefs. On my other dives I went down to nearly 100 feet among all the reefs. I saw things like sea turtles, rays, huge lobsters, big schools of fish and a lot of other things," Thomas said.

Enjoying her time in Cancun is senior Lindsay Doneth. "I was relaxing, soaking up the sun, and resting up for a night in Cancun," Doneth said.

1. Junior Angela Leahy joins her friends at a Yackers meeting. "I joined Yackers because it was fun and my friends were joining too," Leahy said. 2. Starting the meeting off with a smile are seniors Kara Evans and Joey Caron. "During seminar most of our meetings start off with a brownie, but then we review and vote on grants," Caron said.

Handing out the money

Two seminars a month: free...volunteering: free... giving away $20,000 a year to change the lives of others...Priceless.

The members of Youth Advisory Council, known as Yackers, do many things throughout the year. Each member has the ability to walk away with a different memorable and priceless experience. Senior Kara Evans thinks helping others and making a difference is what is memorable. "I think our Adopt-a-Family or Sneetches [programs] are the most memorable things we do because we have an opportunity to help others and make a difference in their lives," Evans said. Yackers can also supply learning experiences to its members. "Yackers is a great learning experience and will help me if I want to write grants," sophomore Margaret Oerther said. Yacker's members do many things to try to change lives throughout the community. "I really like how Yackers helps us to do something for this town...It's nice to walk around and think that we made things happen. There are a bunch of things that go on that wouldn't be possible without our funding, and when I see those things happening, it makes me realize how we really are an important part of this community," senior Rachel Dewolf said. Yackers, like many other clubs, give its members chances to change lives.

Wrapping Christmas gifts for the Adopt-a-Family project is senior Amanda Segar. "I've done the Adopt-a-Family before with other groups, but this time we had more resources to use," Segar said.

At the Christmas Parade, junior Lindsey Reynolds hands candy out to children. "I was passing out candy at the Christmas parade, and I was trying not to miss any kids. In fact, I fell 30 floats behind ours because I couldn't stand not giving every kid a piece of candy," Reynolds said.

Seniors Adam Jenks, Kevin Schook, and Rachel Dewolf shop at Kmart for holiday gifts. "I'm spreading the holiday cheer by buying holiday gifts for Adopt-a-Family. It's a gratifying experience," Jenks said.

1. Examining a toy to give the Adopt-a-Family, junior Nick Weaver decides whether to buy it or not. "It's nice to try and make Christmas nice for the less fortunate and have a nice holiday," said Weaver. 2. At a meeting are juniors Allison Carlton and Angela Leahy. "I think Yackers is really fun because it gives me a opportunity to do things for others like Adopt-a-family or Sneetches," Carlton said. 3. Freshman Marc Neidlinger attends a meeting during seminar with the rest of the Yacker's members. "It's fun to help people in the community and to see the impact Yackers has on the kids," Neidlinger said.

Conquering the Slopes

Bindings: $150...skis: $475... lift tickets: $12... beating the slopes by the end of the day...Priceless.

When thinking about ski club, one may think of the good times involved. Ski Club is a time when people who ski or snowboard can come together and join with people of the same interest on a winter day. "Everytime we go to Bittersweet I get the satisfaction of pushing [freshman] Logan [Ross] down," freshman Ruffner Trescott said. It is a place where winter enthusiasts can go to have some fun and not worry about other things. "One time I saw [sophomore] Anna [Harlow] fall over her snowboard and I laughed so hard I ran into somebody and had a massive fall. It was embarrassing," sophomore Kadie Quada said. Ski Club is not a cheap thing to participate in. Renting a board, in some cases, buying a lift ticket, and getting food or drinks can really add up. However, senior Kyle Sinclair finds the experience to be worth the cost involved. "Being there with all your friends to have a good time is always fun and well worth it," Sinclair said. Sharing all the memories that comes from ski club...priceless.

1. Resting on top of the hill is senior Eri Yasuda. "I was climbing up the hill and I got really tired so I thought I would go to sleep for a while," Yasuda said.

2. Sophomore Bekah Galang relaxes from a day of riding the slopes. "I was taking a break from skiing because it was my first time and it was pretty intense," Galang said. 3. On the lift are sophomores Anna Harlow and Jordan Sanders. "I'm preparing myself for all the sweet flips and tricks I'm going to do next," Harlow said. 4. Freshmen Josh Powers, Logan Ross, and Tyler Presely relax on the bus after a long afternoon. "The bunny hill was way too steep and I fell a lot. I needed to recover from it afterwards," Powers said.

Seniors Kyle Sinclair, Tim Posler, Eddie Quada and junior Travis Chambers meet in a group before they head out on the slopes. "We were discussing the recent snowfall and we were anticipating our first run," Quada said as he looked out in the distance. "We were getting ready to go do some jumps in the terrain park," Chambers said.

Sophomore Adam DeWolf rests up before he gets to Bittersweet. "I was sitting there dreaming about the love of my life, [senior] Matt Sherrill," said DeWolf.

On the bus are seniors Karin Irestahl and Alix Behmer. "I was talking to Karin about our fall off the lift. We got tangled up on each other and it was really embarrassing," Behmer said.

Sophomore Mindy Sherrill checks sophomore Kadie Quada's bindings before they head out for the hills. "We were about to hit the slopes to do a couple [of] 360's when we noticed our bindings were wrong," Sherrill said.

Catching his breath after a fall is sophomore Jeremy Karns. "I was checking to see if my legs were broken after the massive air I just caught," Karns said.

It's Showtime!

Guitar: $300...amp: $550...microphone: $70...showing off your talents for the entire student body...Priceless.

The talent show can be a time for students to showcase their talents for the student body. The few brave students that get up and accomplish that feat every year often enjoy every minute of it. "When I saw everybody coming, it scared me, but by the middle of the first song I really got into it and enjoyed it. It was the coolest thing ever," sophomore David Cohoe said. Although the talent show lasted longer than was expected by most, it was declared a success by just as many. "There were a lot of new people playing so it went on longer, but it was enjoyably interesting," sophomore Margaret Oerther said. Many students enjoyed watching the event as much as the performers enjoyed showing off their talents to the student body. "I enjoyed it [the talent show] because it was unlike any other event at our school," sophomore Ashli Brown said. The music that was shared with the student body that day can be considered written and played with great talent. To many, the talent show was more than just an assembly, it was a full blown event.

The love of the music is what most performers thrive on. Juniors Amber Steele, Mariah McCalley, and Ashley Morford are singing a song during the talent show. "I love just being with the girls. We love singing and the music. Being able to sing in front of people together is exciting," Steele said. Some performers love what they do because of who they play for and the joy brought to those fans. "I like the fans, and I like to make people happy through my music," junior Dustin Hugget said.

The love of performing can stem from many different things. "I love performing because I like expressing myself through my music and lyrics," freshman Chris Cox said.

The rituals that happen within groups and among performers are sometimes very complicated and sometimes very simplistic. "I have a ritual before every performance to sit and listen to my music the whole time I'm waiting and just breathe. If I don't breathe while I'm waiting, I just stop," junior Paige Gordeneer said.

The art of performing in front of people can take much talent. The first time practicing this art in front of a crowd can be very nerve-wracking. "I was really nervous because that was the first time we played for anybody. Ever," junior Drew Arizmendi said.

The job of writing music can come from many different forms of inspiration. The ability to write music during high school can be very valuable. "For the first song that I played I got the inspiration from the jazz band I was a part of last year. It is cool to be able to write my music," freshman Jeff King said.

Close Up and Personal

Cost of trip: $1400...spending money for the week: $120...getting up close and personal with our nation's capital...Priceless.

Though the Close Up trip is mainly intended to teach about our country's capital and government, the students and teachers that attend have the opportunity to do much more. They get to go sightseeing at the monuments and statues and also make new friends from other schools that participate in the same program. The teachers that went this year were Ms. Annette Zuehlke and Mrs. Cathie Wigent, and they took twenty-one juniors. For junior Claire Chmura, the trip had an impact on her thoughts of what the capital is all about. "This trip had an impact on how I feel about the government because it informed me of the different parties and what they represent," Chmura said. With a greater number of students attending Close Up this year than last year, it seems as though more students are ready and willing to learn about their government.

The Eternal Flame monument is at the grave site of President John F. Kennedy. "I was very moved by this monument and what it stands for. The whole J.F.K. memorial moved me just because he was one of our better presidents, and we use this to remember him," junior Ben Hill said.

Junior Nick Weaver is standing with one of his roommates giving a presentation. "We were giving an end of the week speech about our experiences that we had with our workshops," Weaver said. Within the workshops, students went sight seeing and spent time together doing other various activities.

"Being at Arlington Cemetary was an eye-opener to see how many people have died defending our country and to see that we appreciate what they have done for us," junior Salena Nickels said. Every half hour the change of the guard at the tomb of the unknown soldier occurs.

The Washington Monument was one that everyone had a chance to check out. This monument is visible from almost anywhere in Washington D.C. "Wow, that monument is tall," junior Alex Gary said.

Standing in a monument are juniors Shawna Frohm and Mariah McCalley with friends from Massachusetts, who also participated in Close Up. "We were becoming the statue," Frohm said. This monument is part of the New Deal memorial which is included in the memorial commemorating President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The Capitol building is one of the main buildings in Washington D.C. that our students were able to visit. "All of the buildings in D.C. were really extravagant, and I was surprised that we were allowed to visit so many," junior Mariah McCalley said. The students were even able to take a tour of the White House.

1. Junior Tara Fitzsimmons takes time out of seminar to pass out ballots for narrowing the mascot ideas down to the final two possibilities. "It was awesome this year to be involved with helping out with the student council in getting a new mascot," Fitzsimmons said. 2. While decorating cookies, junior Anna Pizzimenti takes a moment to look over everyone else's work. "Since making cookies is always fun, it was a cool idea to make cookies for the teachers," Pizzimenti said. 3. Senior Steve Sachs announces to the school the results of the second to last election for the nickname. "Being a leader in running the selection process for a new nickname was sweet. It's cool how what we've accomplished this year will be a part of Marshall forever," Sachs said. 4. Just before beginning a student council meeting over voting for the mascot, student council president, senior Michael Hughes, waits for the go ahead to begin. "We were about to start talking about the upcoming vote to lower the names down to two," Hughes said. 5. Getting cookies ready to bake are sophomore Mandy Hoffmann and senior Brendon O'Connell. "Making cookies for the teachers is always a good time. You have to get them down on the tray before we eat them," O'Connell said.

Counting The Vote

Meetings during seminar: $0...passing out ballots: $0...counting votes after school: $0...helping change the future of Marshall...Priceless.

The student council takes on many things involving the school and community each year, but nothing was bigger this year than the election of a new mascot for MHS. While the final decision is ultimately up to the student body, it might not have been possible without the student council leading the way. The student council spent much of their seminar time and even time after school to bring the students this opportunity. "It was a great opportunity to be able to be involved in this whole process for the nickname," freshman Christopher Wilcox said. It is a priceless first-hand experience for those in the student council to be able to run this history-making event. Being in student council is a great chance for those involved to show their leadership skills and to get their voice heard. "I like having a say in what goes on in the school. It makes me feel like my opinion really matters," sophomore Kara Sherman said. Throughout the year the student council helps in different ways. From doing something simple and nice like making cookies for the teachers, to doing various fundraisers, the student council is here to make our years here the best they can be.

Sophomore Clay Robinson and juniors Eddie Lucke and Tara Fitzsimmons are in the middle of an important meeting about the procedures for voting on the mascot. "I was in deep thought while listening to Mr. Behrenwald talk about the new mascot ideas," Lucke said.

Junior Emily Scherer is frosting cookies as Christmas presents for the teachers. "One of the benefits of being in student council is being able to help the community," Scherer said.

Just pulling out a fresh batch of cookies is class president, senior Joey Caron. "Making cookies over Christmas time is one of my favorite activities to do. It adds a much needed Christmas cheer to MHS," Caron said.

What We Wear

Livestrong wristband: $1...poncho: $30...converse shoes: $40... starting a new fashion trend...Priceless.

Trends can come and go every year. Some people wish the trends would never change, while others remember trends so infamous they will never be lived down. This year sought many fashions in clothing, accessories, and shoes. "The styles this year were very different. People wore what they thought expressed them the most, although many things influenced them," sophomore Nathan Pallett said. This year many made their own style or tried to stick out from the crowd. Sometimes students resorted to drastic dark looks, or even really bright colors. "I like all the bright clothing that have been in stores this year," junior Shawna Frohm said. With all of the different styles that have come along this year, people were given the chance to be unique and have fun with what they wore.

1. Sophomore Annah Darling, with sophomores Caitlin Wills and Kristen Hogan, looks like she came right out of a TV show from the fifties. This retro style seems as if it has made a comeback. "I like the retro style because you can just add stuff to it. I feel like the clothes from the fifties and sixties are really feminine and cute," Darling said. 2. Junior Kellie Fry supports various foundations with her wristbands. It seems that almost everywhere you look, you can find someone wearing the yellow Livestrong wristband, or various knockoffs. "Most of them were for illnesses. I wore a breast cancer one for my mom, and I had the Motts one for my little cousin," Fry said.

Freshman Taft Tice, with freshman Lorne Juday, wears his "Vote For Pedro" shirt from Napoleon Dynamite. "Well, it's the coolest shirt in the world because it's from Napoleon Dynamite and he wears what he wears, so he doesn't try to fit in," Tice said.

Senior Krista Trehwella shows off her slip-on beaded shoes that have become quite popular with the females of the school. "My favorite part of my outfit that day were my shoes," Trehwella said.

Sophomores Katie Fish, Kurt Juday, and Sidne Lyon wear their converse sneakers, a classic childhood footwear that has made a sudden reappearance. "I don't care that everyone else wears converse, I just think they're really comfortable," Lyon said.

In a poncho is sophomore Katie Murphy, but this poncho won't keep her dry from the rain. "It's a fun style from the seventies that is coming back. My poncho rocks!" Murphy said.

1. On a cold day, untangling Christmas lights can almost be fun. "Yeah, Christmas time here is priceless with my family. It is a really great experience to come here to Marshall; all the American culture," Shu Ni said. 2. Basketball is a sport known worldwide that mixes, what some might consider, hard work and skills. Practices can be tough to get through, but also worth it. "I do not care if practice is hard. No matter the intensity, it is still fun," Hans [Chris] Gravaas said. With a basketball team, comes a coach. "Mr. Coddens is a nice, well disiplined person. He wants the best for us, no matter if it is on or off the court," Gravaas said.

1. Physics class can show great demonstrations. "I already have taken years of physics, but Mr. [Joel] Ritter is funny. I love it," Maximillian Wesch said. 2. "Besides ski club, I love basketball. It's my favorite sport," Raphael Peronaci said. Here Peronaci is shooting some hoops. 3. Kathrin Bungenberg, Viviane Silva, and Alix Behmer fool around in a winter wonderland. "I love winter with all the snow and chances to go skiing," Behmer said.

Many exchange students come to America to get a chance to try new things. It could be singing, playing a sport, or even learning a new language. As for Eri Yasuda, it is playing the drums during a school pep rally. "I was really scared, you know, with all the people watching. This was the only time I've played, but I did good. It was cool," Yasuda said.

Changin' it Up

Plane tickets: $500...translator: $30...having fun in a new culture...
Priceless.

As many students can see, the exchange students this year are often becoming involved in school activities. "The cool part about American schools are the activities, like sports, which my school didn't have," Raphael Peronaci said. Peronaci is the manager of the boys varsity basketball team. Some exchange students are even trying new things. "I think it will be hard to try out for soccer [because] I've never played before, but it's fun," Alix Behmer said. Friendships can be made and laughs can be shared. Sometimes trying something new also involves hard work. The most remarkable moments are sometimes when the students are just having fun. "I really love seminar. It is so great because I can always come down to Mrs. [Cheryl] Tobey's room," Viviane Silva said. Now, after all the days spent with them, the exchange students have practically become a part of the Marshall family. "I found a bunch of new friends. I really like it here. It even gives me the chance to experience some more great high school spirit, like prom," Kathrin Bungenberg said. Bungenberg has even decided to stay longer than expected. Spending time in a different country can be a great experience. The memories may even turn out to be best part because not even an expensive translator can show how priceless it really has been.

Halloween is a holiday unique to America. "It was my first time carving a pumpkin, so it was fun," Karin Irestal said.

The Honor System

Stole: $22...rake: $12...being able to look at the finished result...Priceless.

Along with looking good on a resume, being involved in National Honors Society may also have other unexpected perks for the students. Working with peers on a project can help one to build their teamwork characteristics and sometimes even gain a friend. "I have a lot of friends in NHS, but it's nice to have group projects to get to work with all of the people I don't know as well," junior Emily Scherer said. In order to be acknowledged for NHS, a student must be a junior or senior and have at least a 3.67 GPA in all core classes. Although these are impressive traits, there is also more to be looked at. Leadership, service, and character of the student are all major roles in the acceptance of NHS. "For some people the acceptance process [of NHS] is difficult, but it rewards the students who have worked their hardest all throughout the school years," senior Craig Thomas said. With the help of the NHS members, Marshall High School is on its way to a higher standard.

1. The soil is ready to be renewed and junior Allison Carlton is ready to do the dirty work. "One of my favorite things about NHS is being able to take advantage of community service activities like helping out at the VA," Carlton said. 2. At the first NHS meeting of the year, seniors Brendon O'Connell (president) and Mike Hughes (treasurer) start the introductions between the new and old members. "Looking professional isn't a requirement," O'Connell said. 3. The hair is done, the outfit is on, and the parents are watching. Senior Ashley Goodrich and juniors Sarah Brewer, Alison Carlton, Katherine Carlton, Mary Hogan, Danielle Hurst, Elizabeth Kipp, and Natalie Kirylo wait in line for their peers to be inducted. "I was excited and nervous at the same time. I just didn't want to ruin the ceremony," Brewer said. 4. Senior Jake Simmons kicks his feet up to relax. "Wow, I'm really intelligent," Simmons said.

Taking a time out from seminar for a NHS meeting is senior Leanna Longwell. "I am glad that my grade are the ones who can clean the bathrooms. The organization is great this year," Longwell said.

Taking in the work of the National Honors Society is junior Jessica Lowell. "I was happy to help out, because I appreciate everything the vets have done for us," Lowell said.

Junior Gaby Kuschmann's hard work finally pays off as her candle is lit in the annual induction ceremony. "It felt really good to be accepted into NHS. It shows that someone is noticing all my work," Kuschmann said.

Junior girls Lindsey Reynolds, Allison Carlton, Ashley Wright, and Tara Fitzsimmons listen carefully to the future plans of what is to come in NHS. "We were talking about what our group service project would be. We finally decided on the March of Dimes," Reynolds said.

Get the pencils, paper, and brains ready, because it is time to brainstorm! Seniors Becky Kish and Rebecca Arnold share a desk. "It seems that this year we are trying to improve the school for everyone," Kish said.

Students Against Destructive Decisions [SADD] is a group that makes an effort to encourage students to make good decisions. "Joining SADD this year was a really great experience. I believe if we save one person from making a destructive decision, then it was all worth joining this team," sophomore Briana Ramirez said. Being in a group that helps people can be a rewarding experience. "SADD is a great way to get out and meet new people and it's nice to know that you're doing something good for others. That's the kind of thing that makes you feel so much better about yourself," senior Leslie Conklin said. Mr. {Matt} West is the teacher advisor for SADD and has enjoyed being part of SADD this year. "I enjoy watching the group mature and try to help everyone around them. It's a good feeling to know that they are making a difference, and I get to be a part of it," West said. SADD is one of many groups here at the high school that help others in the community and the members get a chance to experience new things.

1. Organization is an important aspect of SADD's success. "I enjoy the drama [of SADD] and making new friends. It was tough to be secretary, but it was all worth it," sophomore Brittani Leach said. With her at a meeting are Sophomores Echo Wright and Sarah Willits. 2. Meetings during seminar can be tough to attend because one may need to do homework for their next class, have music sectionals, or need help from a teacher. There are also those who think that seminar is far from fun and enjoy the meetings. Sophomores Ashley Damon and Brett Leche and Chris Leach are at a SADD meeting during seminar in the south cafeteria. "I like SADD because it gets me out of seminar, so I can hang out with my friends that share similar interests with me. [It] is good to get out and do something worth while," Leach said.

Ready to start selling her candy canes to the student body is sophomore Daniela Cruz. "I joined [SADD] because I support no drinking and driving. We were selling candy canes to help raise money to help the club out," Cruz said.

After retrieving his product of candy canes from his supervisor, sophomore Brett Leche returns to his seat to think about the meaning of SADD. "A decision you make today will effect your future tomorrow. SADD has a very positive influence on me to make good decisions in hope that if I had to make a decision, I would be able to make the best one possible," Leche said.

At an earlier meeting in the year candy canes were handed out in order to raise money for the group. Juniors Alex Gary and Paige Gordeneer receive their candy canes. "Candy canes sell themselves," Gary said.

Attending a SADD meeting are sophomores Cassandra Boehmer, Briana Ramirez, and Amanda Hageman, juniors Alex Gary, Paige Gordeneer, and Amber Munoz. "I joined [SADD] because it makes me feel like a better person. Because if we can just get one person to make better decisions about not drinking and driving, then I feel like we made a difference," Boehmer said.

Solid Success

Most people have a misconception about the name FFA. If you were to walk up to a random person in the hall and ask them what FFA stands for, most people would say Future Farmers of America. Well they are wrong. In 1928 the initials FFA did stand for Future Farmers of America, but in 1988 they decided to change the meanings of the initials. The FFA initials still stand, but now their meaning is the National FFA Organization "Everyone stereotypes us as farmers, but we are not farmers at all. We are much more than that. The three basics of FFA are premier leadership, personal growth, and career success," senior Amanda Segar said. The FFA members do community service and work for different causes within the FFA. "Some of the community service we did throughout the years were a petting zoo, tour guides for home tour, and we were even in Relay for Life," junior Jennifer Boughton said. This year was 75th anniversary for FFA. "We have accomplished so much in 75 years and we are very glad to have it go on for so long and be successful every year," Segar said. The changing of the FFA name has really helped the turn out each year because it is not just for farmers, although it is still run through the agricultural education department it still is for everyone to experience a good learning opportunity.

1. Canoeing up the Sabo River in Grayling are juniors Jennifer Boughton and Sarah Heaton, and senior Nick Schafer. "We got to go on this trip to the Sabo River, because there are point systems at our FFA compititons and we finished in the top seven, so we got to take a trip," Boughton said. 2. Schafer is inspecting and cleaning chickens. "What we do is we take a machine thats sucks out the lungs and guts and other insides of the chicken, so we can clean it out to eat. A lot of the girls thinks that it is gross to do or watch, but I think it is cool looking," Schafer said.

Freshmen Adam Vorce, Rily Parker, and senior Nick Schafer sometimes played cards to pass the time at the national convention in Kentucky. "We were waiting for the convention to start, so we were just relaxing at one of our group meetings and playing cards," Parker said.

The master of ceremonies, senior Amanda Segar, speaks at the fall banquet about FFA. "Our biggest topic was that our 75th year is this year, and we were just talking about how far we have come in 75 years," Segar said.

Trying to set up camp for The Relay for Life are juniors Amanda Nelson and Kellie Fry, and senior Amanda Segar. The FFA members walked all night to raise money for cancer research. "We did so much there to raise money, such as putting people in jail and people having to pay a dollar to get them out. We also tried a pedal tractor race. That was very interesting. They kept breaking and I don't think we made any money," Fry said.

Checking out the chickens to see how clean they are is junior Jennifer Boughton. "What we do first is raise 25 chickens, feed them, and take care of them. Then we pick five out of the 25 that we think are the best. With the remaining five we clean them and see how good they will turn out for eating," Boughton said.

1. Working on a power point project are juniors Sam Mckenzie, Rebecca Rewa, and senior Jessica Burmeister. "Going to the tech center not only allows me to learn, but it also allows me to work and get paid instead. I can go to work and get a grade for doing that. That is a co-op," Burmeister said. 2. Junior Drew Arizmendi listens to music while he takes his networking test. "Don't go into networking unless you are going to commit yourself to a lot of studying," Arizmendi said. Although this class requires a lot of hard study, Arizmendi still finds time to laugh. "We set up a camera to spy on [junior] Ben Degraw's class once, and we saw the things they do. I got them on camera," Arizmendi said. 3. At the Auto Service Repair class, seniors Dan Bearman and Chad Damon remove the motor and radiator from a Buick Skylark. A moment that Bearman remembers as priceless has nothing to do with class work. "I broke the door once as I opened it to go to class. It was so funny that now everybody remembers me as the guy that broke the door," Bearman said. 4. The 21st Century Health students study the different organs of the human body. While senior Nicole Anderson observes the human heart, juniors Whitney Fowlkes and Lane Fuller explore a right kidney. "This class not only looks good in a college application, but it is also preparing me [for] a nursing program," Fowlkes said. 5. In Law Enforcement, junior Haley Barnett acts out a gang bust. "I was getting handcuffed for committing a crime. We [had] just got done watching a video on gangs," Barnett said.

Safety glasses: $7...lunch money for a school year: $368...gas money for a school year: $512...getting an education that puts you ahead of the game...Priceless.

The tech center, also known as the CATC, is a place where students can go to get hands-on experience for their future careers. Here, students can study six different career pathways. These include over twenty different courses, which range from Early Childhood Education to Law Enforcement. "The class I'm in is very interesting. We reconstruct crime scenes, take pictures of murder weapons, and [take pictures of] victims," senior Chris Carrington said. Students have the opportunity to meet people from different schools. "Getting to know people from other schools is always fun. It exposes how other school districts work," senior Nicole Anderson said. "My class is like my second family," junior Chris Hulce said. There are a lot of reasons why students attend the tech center. It varies from getting to leave the high school to getting a head start in a career. "I go to learn the basics to help me later on in life," Automotive Service Repair student, junior Chris Sanders said. Junior Zach Jones attends the CATC for Computer Aided Design. "I want to learn how to design my own car. Besides, I get a free copy of the software," Jones said. The tech center allows students to earn college credits while still in high school. Most of the students' learning is not done in the classroom. Students can co-op, go to camps, and work with real life situations. "I recommend going there, it is really educational, and you basically are getting college credits for free," junior Haley Barnett said. In this facility, students get to meet new people and have an opportunity to learn in a more hands-on environment...Priceless.

During class, junior Zach Shippell tests the pH level of the water. "I was checking the pH for hydroponics. It [hydroponics] means water works. It is a way to grow plants without soil. We use a rock wall," Shippell said.

In an effort to fix an amp, junior Ben DeGraw and senior Matt Greer check its voltage. "I got shocked pretty bad once doing that. My left arm turned numb. My word of advice is to be careful, or you could end up like me," DeGraw said.

Junior Sarah Wright types a lesson plan for her class, which includes fun activities for children. "We work with pre-schoolers for a month. We go outside, do activities, play, and I read to them," Wright said.

1 Cadet teaching has many opportunities available for the people who take it as a class. "I thought it would be a good learning experience, and I might want to be a teacher," senior Danielle Hainline said. 2. Standing alongside his brother, freshmen Brandon Carr, in Mr. Kelly Williams' metal class, is senior Robert Carr. "I plan on going to college and majoring in mechanical engineering," Carr said. 3. For senior Kayla Miller the opportunity to take office practice with Coach John Hamlin was an easy decision. "I wanted to spend more time in the pool [because] I practically live here," Miller said of her time spent in the pool area.

Many people prefer cadet teaching over traditional classes because it gives them a break from the routine academic classes. "I definitely like it better because there is no homework, no tests, [and] all I have to do is drive to the middle school," senior Karla Stevenson said.

Answering the phones in the athletic office for Mrs. Laura Altic is senior Tom Albaugh. "One day I hope to be a secretary for [senior] Michael Hughes because I like answering phones; it's a fun job," Albaugh said.

1. With a hand on her music book, senior Tiffany Maddux helps a student keep beat while she plays her cello. "My favorite part of cadet teaching is for them to understand something after I explain it to them," Maddux said. 2. While interacting with the English class at the middle school, senior Dawnnette Cole helps a student with questions on his assignment. "I wanted to do cadet teaching because I wanted the experience, and I am looking into teaching," Cole said. 3. Senior Ashton Anthony plays in a badminton match during office practice. "I like gym, and my office practice is just like another gym class," Anthony said.

Sometimes office practice can be a time to study, do homework, socialize, and for some, even skip and go out to lunch to make the day a little shorter. "Biscuit [senior Chris Curren] and I planned to have gym class together so that we can leave together and have a bite to eat," senior Matt Stefan said. For those taking cadet teaching, the impact that they see might be a little bit more evident because they can see the immediate results in the classroom. Some people actually take office practice or cadet teaching to help them prepare for college majors, or the work force, or even to improve their skills. "I practice organizational skills, and I have been working on being more responsible by not smacking little freshmen around," senior Dennis Holmes said. While you might not be pursuing a career in teaching, there are some necessary tools that many people have learned through cadet teaching or even through office practice. "I was debating between being a teacher and being a nurse, and cadet teaching helped me lean towards nursing. My most priceless moment was the Christmas project. Just being able to work with them and getting to know them has been my favorite part," senior Leah Brown said. Whether it is helping a child learn a skill or helping out one of their favorite teachers, the opportunity to help is what makes these classes priceless to so many people.

While in video game club sophomore Brad Peek smiles as he puts another win on the board. "I'll play anyone who will fight me, I'm not scared because I'm just that good," Peek said. Showing his excitement after a big game is sophomore Andy Blankney. "I had just won the biggest title in video game club. Obviously, I was very excited," Blankney said. Winning games can be a very big achievement in video game club, especially when you can claim to be the best.

Playing for Laughs

Video gamers around here may find that after a long day of school filled with homework and pressure, there is only one place to go : Mr. Fitzpatrick's room for some competition. "My favorite part of video game club is being able to beat Mr. [Mike] Fitzpartick at whatever we're playing," sophomore Brad Peek said. Video game club can be a lot more than sitting around hanging out with friends; it can be about getting to know someone you normally wouldn't talk to. "Video game club is a lot of fun, but it's also very competitive," sophomore Richard Wood said. As many people might think, video games can get addictive, and sometimes very frustrating. "The worst thing is when you're on a level you can't pass. That's the worst," freshman Jacob Leach said. Some of us will remember the times we spent doing homework and taking exams, while others of us will remember the times spent with our friends and the laughs we had, and that is priceless.

Playing against freshmen Jacob Leach, and Gordon Leung, is sophomore David Hayes. "I love Madden 2005 because it's a safe way to play football; I can't get tackled!" Hayes said.

Demonstrating his ability to look cool, calm, and collected is English teacher Mr. Mike Fitzpatrick. "I know it embarrasses the kids to get beat up in video game club by their teacher, but I have to release my pent-up aggression somehow," Fitzpatrick said.

In the middle of a game are sophomores Richard Wood and Elliot Kellogg. "We were playing Sonic Adventure 2, and I was explaining to Richard what just happened," Kellogg said.

As he concentrates hard on the task at hand, sophomore Matt Ivey looks on for a victory. "I was in the middle of WWE Smackdown, and I had a feeling I was going to win," Ivey said. 2. Freshmen Gordon Leung laughs as he beats his top score. "I like video game club because I can play games I normally wouldn't get to play at home," Leung said. 3. Sophomores Andy Blankney and Brad Peek have some fun after school. "Video game club gives you something fun to do after school with your friends. We all yell at each other, and it's a blast," Blankney said.

Cheering, falling, laughing, screaming— these are all very common scenes in the Sixth Man crowd at a basketball game. “Sixth Man is a life- changing experience. You haven’t lived until you have seen Shmite [senior David Smith] do cartwheels,” sophomore Adam DeWolf said. Sixth Man gives people an opportunity to get involved in sporting events who might not play in a sport. “I liked just cheering the team on and being there to support them. They did well when we were there,” freshman Crystal Ramon said. Some students feel that there is not an even turn out from all of the grades in the Sixth Man crowd. “Sixth Man was sweet this year because it was mostly seniors so it made it a lot more fun,” senior Kyle Lautzenheiser said. The Sixth Man crowd is very diverse in the types of people who comprise it. Everyone is welcome. One may find everyone from jocks and athletes to video game and drama club members. This is part of what makes the Sixth Man so unique. Whether they’re falling on a three pointer or just rooting on the team, being able to actively show support for the basketball team... priceless.

1 Goofing around in the Sixth Man crowd are sophomore Shannon Bridges and senior Tom Albaugh. “I was wondering if Shannon would like to go get a slice of pie with me after the game,” Albaugh said. Yelling in the crowd with a smile on her face is Bridges. “I couldn’t take my eyes off of Tom’s hot tiger glasses,” Bridges said. Also cheering in the crowd are freshmen Gabriela Fratta and Taylor Gieson-Bayley, sophomores Courtney Martin, Jordan Sander, Courtney Lamoureux, Casey Barnes, Bridges, Morgan Buzzell, Jenna Kiessling, and Clay Robinson, junior Ralph Ramon, and seniors Ashley Dupuis, Michael Hughes, Nick Hopkins, Brendon O’Connell, Adam Jenks, David Smith, Albaugh, Jake Simmons, and Becky Kish. 2 Laughing at Simmons is sophomore Heidi Elston. “Jake was talking into his little microphone thing and was just being funny,” Elston said.

Dressed up as a nerd is senior Michael Hughes. "My favorite part about Sixth Man was just being on the sideline with all of my friends cheering on the team. When they win, it's the best feeling," Hughes said.

With his hands up in "spirit fingers" is senior Vachan Cheruvatath. Senior Joe Hudson also watches the game. "I skipped my meeting with G-Unit to watch the guys tear it up, and they did," Cheruvatath said.

When the Sixth Man falls down on a three pointer, it can be a very painful experience. Laughing about this are senior Meagan Mackey and sophomore Casey Barnes. "I was just getting up and laughing about how it [falling] hurt with my friends," Barnes said.

Working the ghetto theme at a basketball game are seniors Morgan Damron, Vachan Cheruvatath, David Smith, and Meagan Mackey and sophomore Joe Dyer. "It was fun to be a part of Sixth Man this year because most years I did cheerleading. It was convenient because I could go straight from the game to the hood," Damron said.

"Being a senior means slacking off all the time and seeing your friends for the last time," Hopkins said. 3. Working in the computer lab are Becky Budesky and Becky Kish. "The most important part of your senior year is just graduating," Budesky said. 4. Sharing a humorous moment while working on the float are Danielle Hainline and Amy Baker. "I tripped over a paint can and Amy helped me up. I couldn't do anything but laugh for making a fool out of myself," Hainline said. 5. Here Jake Simmons assists the seniors in building the graveyard of their float. "I was helping the seniors win by 92 points. 1. Crazy day is a homecoming week event where anybody in the school can be unique and dress up in any way they want. Geana Godde and Hannah Howard have lunch and watch for other crazy outfits. "It [crazy day] is a day to be different. It gives me a chance to show my true color," Godde said. 2. For the second consecutive year, Mrs. Julie Smith's English 11 Honors students plan an event called Huck Finn Days. Cam Lake pulls up his web page to show people his interpretation of the book. "It [Huck Finn Days] was really interactive. You could get loose and have fun. You really could get into the character," Lake said. 3. For Tabitha VanWormer, Natalie Kirylo, and Sarah Anderson, the boys swim season is a high priority. "We go to swim meets for the love of the sport, but mainly to see the guys in speedos," Kirylo said. 4. Attending football games is one way to show your school spirit. Chad Kalkowski and Eddie Lucke enjoy a jv football game while watching it from the stands. "You only go to high school once, you might as well go to the games and get the most out of it," Lucke said. 5. To Brandon deJong and Paige Gordeneer, going to football games is a great way to support their friends on the football team. "The energy of being part of the crowd, being with friends makes it one of my best moments in high school," deJong said.

1. Working on a go-cart, in Introduction to Industry class, is David Cohoe. "It's a really fun project, but the go-cart is probably going to blow up," Cohoe said. 2. The display in the show case, is being set up by student council is Mandy Hoffmann. "Being in student council this year was kind of crazy because of the nickname, but I was glad to be a part of it," Hoffmann said. 3. The new nickname can be an opportunity for a fresh new start for some students, Assisting Liz Gehrig with the voting are Adam Dewolf and Meredith Line, "Since I'm going to be here for the next two years, I wanted to make sure I got my vote in for a good nickname," Gehrig said.

1. All the work put into making the go-karts, may pay off on racing day. Racing the go kart is Jack Townsend. "I was happy that all our hard work paid off when we took the victory," Townsend said. 2. Crazy day can be a time to celebrate the chance to act wild. Sophomore Courtney Lamoureux shows that its okay to have crazy side. "I was just tired of not having any school spirit, so my friends and I decided to go all out this year," Lamoureux said. 3. I've played the viola for five years, and not that many people play, so it's unique," sophomore Ashli Brown said.

1. Bench pressing in freshman gym class is Joe Baxter. "We had some free time in the weight room, so I was pumping some iron just for fun," Baxter said. 2. Ready to cheer on the crowd are Taylor Potter and Morgan Hazel. "It was fun to cheer and fun to root for our guys. Being in front of the crowd doesn't make me nervous, it's just really exciting," Potter said. 3. Painting can bring out the best of Abby Genise's stories to Kay Fitzsimmons. "We were painting our dreams, which was really fun, and Abby was telling me about her most recent one," Fitzsimmons said. 4. Forest Newton vents his latest troubles to sophomore Ashli Brown. "I was talking to Ashli about how I got in trouble last weekend and now I'm grounded for a while," Newton said. 5. Freshman gym turned out to be a great opportunity for Lacey Plane and Raquel Widemon to try one of Mrs. [Julie] Gibson's work-out tapes. "This is how we keep up our hot bods. Mrs. Gibson helps us a lot by playing her work-out videos," Plain said.

Business teacher Mr. [Adrian] Harkey discusses the importance of a business class in high school to sophomore Liz Gehrig. "You need a general business class because then you will be able to manage all the money you make from the WNBA," Harkey said.

Not pictured left are custodians Rob Brodock, Bill Ellis, Charlie Henker, Walter Raginia, Jerry Stepp, Mark VandenHeede, and Bill Walters. The reason why there are no custodians pictured is because they will rarely ever allow someone to take their pictures. The clean empty hallway shows evidence of them off somewhere else working.

1. Math teacher Mr. [Jerry] Triage helps sophomore Elliot Kellogg with what looks to be a hard problem. "In a right triangle, the length of the square of the length of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the lengths of the legs," Mr.Triage said. 2. Art teacher Mrs. [Barbara] Bonte laughs at the picture being taken of her. "I was trying to make some cool, fun jewelry to show my class the next day," Mrs.Bonte said. 3. World Cultures teacher Mr. [Dan] Coddens dreams of being just a little bit taller. "I wish I was this tall," Mr.Coddens said.

Being part of a team...Priceless.

1. The varsity soccer team's record definitely showed improvement from last year. Team unity may have played a big part. "We were a pretty close team. I was the signature asian player with a solid pre-game bark that couldn't do anything on the field. We all knew our roles," senior Vachan Cheruvatath said. 2. Sometimes a good bet is the best motivation. Putting around to prove a point is senior Nick Hopkins. "Shmite [senior David Smith] bet me $10 that I couldn't make this putt. I made it. I'm still waiting for that $10 though," Hopkins said. 3. To score points in basketball, one important element cannot be forgotten. "Where's the ball?" senior Evan Sharpley said. 4. Enjoying an easy practice is sophomore Marissa Loughrige. "Well, I was practicing on the ball machine. It's a great way to work on your stroke because you just do it over and over so you can catch what you're doing wrong. I also think it's more fun than some of the other drills because it's so easy. It's just annoying to pick all the balls up after, but that is just part of playing tennis," Loughrige said. 5. Being part of a team can be a great way to get involved when moving on up to the high school. Freshman Stephanie Johnson did just that. "I'm glad that I do a fall sport, especially being a freshman. It kind of made everything click," Johnson said.

1 Intensity and concentration are two of the most important factors in swimming, practicing these is freshman Megan Dobbertein. "During warm up before the meet I was concentrating on all my events," Dobbertein said. 2 Here in the pool, senior Becky Kish goofs off while waiting to start swimming. "Just being on the team and getting to know people that I wouldn't normally get to meet is my favorite part of being in swimming," Kish said.

1 All work and no play is definately the theme of swimming... yeah right! "I was getting pumped for the meet," junior Alex Gary said as she goofs off before a meet. 2 Swimming the butterfly is junior Sarah Brewer. "I was really nervous going into the season, but because of the amazing support of my teammates and spectators, I improved a lot," Brewer said. 3 While on the diving board, sophomore Ashley Smith looks down while preparing for her dive. "The other two divers graduated last year so I was the head diver this year and it was fun getting to help out the other divers," Smith said.

Goggles on the Prize

Goggles: $12...swim cap: $6...razor: $3... knowing you gave it your all at the SMAC meet...Priceless.

This year, the swimmers ended their season at the Division II State Finals. "The rush that you get during a race pays off for all the heart and hard work you put into it," senior Kayla Miller said. Juniors Sarah Anderson and Danielle Hurst qualified for the SMAC East Division. At the SMAC East meet, the team just missed second place by one and a half points behind Harper Creek. "I most look forward to competing against Battle Creek Central because the talent is close and there is a lot of rivalry and we get a large turn out from parents and students during that meet," junior Alex Gary said. Five swimmers qualified for state, but none qualified for the following day of competitions. Those five swimmers were juniors Alex Gary, Martina Kuehn, Sarah Anderson, and Danielle Hurst, and sophomore Meg Oerther. "The peak of my season was, really, the conference meet, so state was really a let down for me," Hurst said.

Staring intently at her teammate is junior Martina Kuehn. "I felt honored to do the cards for [junior] Sarah Anderson," Kuehn said. Fellow teammate, senior Danielle Hainline, glances in Kuehn's direction.

1. Freshman Angela Eash is frustrated with Mr. Foreman but is still having fun. "I was frustrated because I had to pick up all of the tennis balls and Foreman kept making me serve, but I was still having fun," Eash said. 2. In her last match sophomore Marissa Loughrige lunges to hit the ball. "I lost three times but I won the last one," Loughrige said. 3. Ready to hit the tennis ball is freshman Kierstin Elliott. "I got this one and I am not going to lose this match!" Elliott said.

Newbies Hop'n To it

Hopper: $17...tennis racket: $175...skirts: $40...learning how to play tennis...
Priceless.

Being new to the tennis game is nothing new to this team. "I came there [to try-outs] and didn't know how to play tennis at all and learned through the season. I came out 7-4 just for matches. I thought it was good for my first time playing tennis," sophomore Britny Owens said. After new teammates came and the old teammates returned, they became a winning team with new or improved skills. "We started with a team with five girls that hadn't played tennis before this year, and it turned out to be a winning season with a record of 6-3-2. They improved their skills and supported each other," coach Pam McCann said. While learning all the skills to become better tennis players, they also had fun just being a team. "It was fun being on the team because everyone got along, and we had fun playing together," junior Erin Cooley said. Through practice and play, teammates came away with different roles. "I came away with leadership," sophomore Kadie Quada said. Being on a team is great, but being on one where you have fun and learn at the same time is priceless.

1. Doing Mr. Foreman's station during practice is sophomore Shannon Bridges. "Foreman's station was easy that day because he had a can of Coke," Bridges said. 2. Freshman Kay Fitzsimmons played really well at her last match. "I felt I was playing really well. I kept slamming the ball over the net. I was ready for anything and I won the match," Fitzsimmons said.

1. After their matches were completed, sophomore Meredith Line, freshman Angela Eash, and sophomore Britny Owens sat and waited for everyone else to finish up. "I was worn out because Angela and I had a tough match. We had just won," Line said. 2. Talking about her match with Mrs. Kline Line is senior Alix Behmer. "I was telling her that I won my match, and it was 30 to 40 minutes long," Behmer said. 3. Here Owens is concentrating while getting ready to serve. "I was concentrating really hard because I was trying to win the match, and I did," Owens said. 4. Freshman Abby Genise grabs her forehead in embarrassment. "I was going to do an overhead and I hit the tennis ball and it hit a girl's head. I was embarrassed and people laughed," Genise said. Junior Erin Cooley looks on.

1. "I learned a lot with my different opponents," junior Allison Carlton said. "I feel that I grew as a tennis player. I plan on playing next year, and I hope that it will be a good year," Carlton said. 2. Junior Kaitlyn Post hits the ball back to her opponent. "Jenna Kiessling [sophomore] and I try to keep each other focused during a match. We talk about what we're going to do next, whether to play Australian or Poach," Post said. 3. Injuries are always tough on players. "I was out during this game because I pulled my quad. It was still fun because I got to take all the stats," sophomore Kara Sherman said. Sherman congratulates junior Angela Leahy, sophomores Mandy Hoffman, Becca Ranville, Jenna Kiessling, and senior Karla Stevenson after a match.

1. Mistakes are those simple mess-ups that one normally does not think about. However, the little mistakes can come back and cause problems later. "Uh-oh, looks like a foot fault," senior Sheila Srinivasan said. 2. "I felt that I improved even though I didn't like Jody Foreman coaching us [Joke]. However, Mike was a big help," senior Lauren Hyland said.

"I just got done playing a really long match, and they wanted us to play again in ten minutes. Coach Foreman wouldn't let us because we needed more time to rest," freshman Amy Baranowski said. The players can use this time to rest, or as sophomore Mandy Hoffman is doing, finish homework.

Memories are a part of growing up. Sports can provide some of the most memorable moments in a person's life. "This was the first year [freshman] Amy Baranowski and I played together. It took a while for us to get to know each other. Amy and I got along really well. We will probably stay friends and play together again next year," sophomore Becca Ranville said.

Making a Racket

Racket: $200...tennis shoes: $75...a canister of tennis balls: $13...overcoming pre-season stereotypes...Priceless.

Sophomore Jenna Kiessling reaches for the ball. "Being on varsity was a really good experience for me. It changed a lot from jv. It was more fast-paced," Kiessling said.

"Many people thought that we would do bad this year because we had such a young team. However, we proved them wrong," coach Jody Foreman said. For the first year players, the pressure of being on varsity can be overwhelming. "We did so much more in just one day of practice than we did in one day on jv," junior Katy Dulaney said. "This was my first year ever playing tennis, so being on varsity was pretty fun. However, a lot of the time, I had no idea what I was doing," sophomore Mandy Hoffman said. During the season, the team also had to deal with injuries. "We ended up having thirteen girls on the team instead of twelve because [sophomore] Kara Sherman, who played 4th singles, hurt her leg. Allison Carlton [junior] filled in and played really well, and then by the time Kara was able to play again, Allison hurt her back. People kept getting injured, which seems kind of funny for tennis, but you know..." senior Sheila Srinivasan said. Even with all the pressure to do well and all of the injuries, the girls were still able to overcome their obstacles and succeed. The girls ended their season with a 5-6 record. The team placed third at the Portland Early Bird tournament, third at the Alma tournament, and 2nd at the Pennfield Invitational. At regionals, the team placed sixth. "It was hard to overcome everything we were faced with, but we believed in ourselves and we were able to prevail," sophomore Jenna Kiessling said.

1. Freshman Sam Dark is keeping a close eye on the competition as he is running. "We won the game, but they [Charlotte] were a tough and aggressive team to beat," Dark said. 2. Playing against Charlotte is freshman captain Joe Baxter. "I was trying to make a shot against Charlotte, and I did it. The guys on that team were very annoying," Baxter said. The team ended up winning the game, 3-2.

1. Sophomore Adam Dewolf walks down the field pondering where the ball will go next. "I was keeping an eye on the ball while walking to my position. I was hoping that we would win this game, and thinking about what I was going to have for dinner. I was really hoping it was going to be Teriyaki chicken," Dewolf said. As it turns out, they did win the game and Dewolf did have his Teriyaki chicken. 2. Freshman Josh Welch tries to get the ball before the Charlotte opponent does. "I beat him to the ball because I always beat them to the ball. I passed it to [sophomore] Colin [McCloskey], and he headed it in," Welch said. 3. Captain McCloskey runs to the ball after a teammate passed it to him. "I was chasing the ball around a corner," McCloskey said. Joining him in the chase for the ball were two Charlotte opponents, but McCloskey proved to be faster and got to the ball first.

Protect Your Shins

Shin guards: $40...soccerball: $20...cleats: $50...tying Portage Northern...Priceless.

The junior varsity boys soccer team had a winning season with 13-3-2. "Everything went very well. Not only did we learn a ton about the game, we enjoyed playing in the games and the practices," Coach Kail Robinson said. Freshman Alex Loveless agrees with Robinson. "The most priceless part of the season for me was traveling with the team and meeting new people. [We] also [had] fun on the bus and on the field," Loveless said. Freshman Brett Merkel feels that the season brought bonding for the team. "We learned how to work better as a team, and we bonded well," Merkel said. The team did better than they initially thought they would do. Freshman Lorne Juday thought his first soccer season of his high school career was priceless. "I had the satisfaction of knowing that we kicked butt," Juday said. The thing that sticks out in many players' minds is when the team tied Portage Northern. This was a bitter-sweet moment to sophomore Mario Ramon. "I was happy that we tied them, but we should have beaten them," Ramon said. Even though the JV soccer team had several loses, they are proof that the future of Marshall soccer is still alive and kicking.

During half time, after talking to Coach Robinson, the boys (sophomores Mario Ramon, Chris Deno, Christian Brown, Colin McCloskey, Adam Dewolf, and freshmen Austin Lord and David Devaney) always stretch and run again before going out and putting to use the coach's strategy for beating their opponent. "We were working hard so that coach would not torture us the next day at practice. We were also getting pumped to get back to the game," Deno said. Running sprints is not normal for most of the teams in the area. "I think we were the only team that did sprints before the game and during half time. It felt good and it got us going for the game," Devaney said.

1. Sometimes foreign exchange students have a hard time adapting to "American life." However that did not happen to be the case for Norwegian exchange student senior Chris Gravaas. "I had a great experience playing soccer in the United States. I made friends with all of the guys on the soccer team and I hope to stay friends with all of them," Gravaas said. 2. Timing is everything. Sometimes it is best to let it expire. "I was wasting time [on the throw in] because we were actually winning the game," senior Kevin Schook said.

Lacing It all Up
Soccer ball: $25...shin guards: $30...cleats: $125...improving from the previous season...Priceless.

Although this year's varsity team did not have a winning record, (8-10-2), they feel that they have improved. "This season we definitely improved, although we did not always work as a team," junior Ralph Ramon said. Even though they did not always work as a team, the team finished seventh out of sixteen teams in the conference. Towards the end of the season, the situation got better. "This season had a change for the better. We learned to work more as a team towards the end of the season. I am definitely looking forward to next season where I hope we can work as a team right from the start, and we will most likely work on that factor during the off-season," sophomore Remy Dillon said. Coaches and other team members also had an impact on the way things went this season. "Actually, this was the season where I really came to love soccer. My teammates and Coach [Kevin] McCauley really helped me find my desire to play and to give it my all," junior Josh Lord said.

Acting skills can come in handy, even during athletic events. "I was faking the injury to get the foul, and it turns out, it worked!" junior Craig Maisner said.

1. Preparing her horse for a show is freshman Jordon Seely. "I was getting my horse ready for a big show. I was kind of nervous because this was my first year showing, but I already knew everything I needed to know to do my best," Seely said. 2. Senior and captain of the equestrian team, Amy Baker, rides through the night after a tough meet. "Our team was very excited after this meet because we had just qualified for state. It was an intense moment and down to the wire if we made it or not," Baker said.

1. As the only guy on the team, freshman Shayne Smith is quite content. "Being the only guy was a fun experience for me. All the girls came to me when they needed a shoulder to cry on, and I got a lot of attention. For being my first year riding in high school, I guess I rode okay," Smith said. 2. Juniors Salena Nickels and Jordon Seely talk during spare time at a meet. "Jordon and I were just waiting to practice. We were talking about how nervous we were before the meet and trying to calm down," Nickels said. 3. Junior Ashley Wright talks to her dad while waiting for a class. "My dad helps me with all my classes. He holds my horse for me while I go and change my outfit because I have back to back classes. Changing so quickly was one of the most difficult parts of this season since I only have a few minutes to change," Wright said.

Spurred to Excellence

Finishing twelfth in state and winning the equestrian district nine straight times in nine years...Priceless.

Some people call equestrian a hobby and others may call it a sport. However, the equestrian team, consisting of one senior, three juniors, and three freshman, call it time, money, bonding, and most importantly, championships. Time—the team this year put a lot of time into becoming what they are today. This was the first year they had arranged practices. Not only do they have arranged practices, but many of the members spent their own time on working with their horse for hours. “I have my own horse at a farm, so I spent time working with her on my own to get her ready to show,” freshman Jordon Seely said. Money—another big aspect of being a part of equestrian is the financial demand. People may not realize, but equestrian is probably one of the most expensive sports out there, and the school doesn’t pay for anything. “Equestrian is known as the rich man’s hobby because, on average, a member may spend about $700,” senior Amy Baker said. Bonding—this is not only between the fellow teammates, but between the rider and the horse. To get the horse ready for showing and riding, the rider has to work with them. They have to somehow find that special “connection” between the horse and rider in order to be the perfect mates. Last of all, Championships—they have won nine straight districts. “It was such a relief and so overwhelming because it was down to the wire, and we had all worked so hard to win,” junior Sara Heaton said.

At the Coldwater meet, freshman Betsy Hassinger waits in line for her turn to show. “I was just waiting for it to be my turn. It was very hectic at times because I didn’t know very much, and I was always racing around to get things ready. After a while, I finally got used to the swing of things and equestrian seemed to be a lot more fun,” Hassinger said.

1 Senior Tom Albaugh makes a strong finish. "I know Nick [Dillman] is better than me, but all I am thinking is TOTAL DOMINATION," Albaugh said. 2 Pulling into place is freshman Andrew Mickus. "It [running cross country] was a great way to start out my high school career," Mickus said.

1 Junior Matt Leahy makes it to the finish. "It wasn't a very good race; but then again, nobody does good at Harper," Leahy said. 2 Sophomore Brandon Jordan sprints to the finish line. "I did better this year than I did last year, so even though I am not as good as Nick [Dillman], I am pleased with the times I got," Jordan said. 3 At the Harper Creek meet, junior Andrew Leahy works to finish midway through the race. "I like cross country mostly because you get to hang out with your friends," Leahy said.

The men ruled the land this year in cross country. From town to town they dominated the fields. Throughout their dual meets the men's record was 7-1; their only loss to Kalamazoo Central. Senior Mike Hughes didn't have the best season due to the tendonitis in his knee. "I wanted to be able to help the team, but I felt good that I was still able to support them at the meets," Hughes said. Through injuries, illness, and the heat, running to these boys is more than a sport. They have to put in a lot of their free time to contribute. "The best part of the season is the day before a race when we run through the Greevers Nature Center. It is a laid back and beautiful run," Coach Unruh said. Some of the best memories from cross country aren't even related to running. "It was 80 degrees out and we were running for ten miles. After about the sixth mile, [senior] Tom [Albaugh] stopped and picked up this half dead racoon off the side of the road. He carried it on his back for the rest of the run and at the end, we took it to the veterinarian and it lived," Hughes said. So, what happened to the racoon? "It even went on to have little racoon babies," Albaugh said. In a season of injury, long runs, and rescued racoons, memories are what make cross country priceless.

Even in the middle of the Harper Creek race, rounding the last curve, junior Nick Dillman thinks about food. "I am always thinking about what I am going to eat that night...always food," Dillman said.

Test of Endurance

For the girls on the cross country team, it can be an accomplishment just to finish the race. But to place is something even better. It's Priceless.

Cross country may not be everyone's idea of a sport. However, many of the girls on the cross country team will tell you it is a lot of hard work. "The practices were really hard and I was tired, but I had so much fun with my team during the meets," senior Kathrin Bungenburg said. Sophomore Katie Murphy became interested in running when her older sister took up running as a hobby. "I started running with my sister just for fun and when coach [Steve] Wissink saw me running, he asked me if I wanted to be on the cross country team. Of course, I accepted," Murphy said. Cross country can be a very fun experience. The girls are very close and have become like family. "After all the hard work, the team is more like family to me, and that is a priceless feeling that I will never forget," sophomore Kayla Vallar said. In the end, the closeness of the team is what really makes cross country priceless.

1. Senior Leah Brown, junior Sam Howard, 2004 graduate Beverly Twiss, and coach Steve Wissink support the girls at a meet. "I always make sure to take time to support our girls. We're such a close team, and we're always there for each other," Howard said. 2. Running in a meet is sophomore Lauren Kelley. "The thing that really made cross country [priceless] was the team itself. Everyone is always supporting each other, and all the laughs we had together was worth more than the season itself," Kelley said. 3. Sitting in the grass before practice is senior Abby Woodard. Woodard has been running cross country for three years. "Cross country is really fun, and the team is very close. You don't usually get that with any other sport," Woodard said.

1. Junior Cassandra Wissink strives to get to the finish line. "Cross country is always a blast. Every year is even better than the last," Wissink said. 2. Running in a meet at Saginaw is senior Lindsey Merkel. "There's no sport more exciting than running. It is a true test of athleticism and a great way to spend your time," Merkel said. 3. "Cross country really helped me understand and appreciate the sport of running. Before, I never realized the mind set that is needed. It opened up my eyes and now I enjoy running better," junior Maegan Hendershot said.

1. Finally able to run in meets again is sophomore Erin Fitzpatrick. "This was a great year for me because I was finally over my injury and able to rip the minutes off," Fitzpatrick said. 2. Senior Amber Murphy is not new to the cross country team. She has been running XC since she was a freshman. "I stayed in cross country so long because I really like my team and the coach, and I also like staying skinny," Murphy said.

1. The putter, junior Bryan McKenney, is taking his time on the green. "I love golf," McKenney said. 2. Senior Dave Smith is getting eye level hoping it will improve his shot. "I was trying to get a feel for the green; everyone, especially Nick Hopkins makes fun of me, so I cry a lot," Smith said. 3. Watching his team take their turn on the green is senior Nick Hopkins. "I had a good year. It was a lot of fun," Hopkins said.

1. Concentrating on his swing is junior Justin Zanotti. "I was concentrating on the alignment. The stroke was good, the contact was solid, but I missed," Zanotti said. 2. "I'm trying to take my mind off of the sport because it helps me relax," freshman Mitch Kirylo said. Do not fall back, Mitch. 3. Freshman Spencer Townsend is holding a follow-through after a good swing. "We had a good season, and we finally beat the undefeated Lakeview," Townsend said.

Golf shoes: $55...golf balls: $29...golf clubs: $300...tying with Lakeview in the SMAC division...Priceless.

Freshman Dustin Lasky is definitely keeping his eye on the ball. "It was fun getting the experience, and I cannot wait until next year," Lasky said.

Near the end of practice, sophomore Drew Lasky is taking a break from the putting green. "After practice, I always wash my golf balls," Lasky said.

"The first eleven meets were the best meets I have ever seen any of my teams play," Coach Tom Reynolds said. During Marshall's Invitational, the boys had a team best total of 299. "All of the golfers played and placed well for the year," Reynolds said. Unfortunately, they did not make it to state because of some tough losses. "The beginning of my season went really well, but near the end I did not get enough practice and my game began to slip," freshman Cory Lafountain said. The JV team was growing all year, improving players for the future varsity team. "For me, the year did not start out so well, but I improved my game and ended up on varsity by the end of the year," junior Steven Lasky said.

1. Waiting to go in during overtime, sophomores Amanda Jeffreys and Stephanie Parshall are feeling the importance of this play. "I knew that if we blew this next play that we would lose the game," Jeffreys said. 2. At the last game of the season, freshman Kelly VanDyke goes for a rebound. The players can feel it in the air. "I did not want to leave the court. The more we played the game, the more we felt it. We will not be able to play together again 'till next year," VanDyke said.

1. The intensity of a game is what some players live for. "They had this play where their coach yelled something and they [the players] all crowded you. It was intense," sophomore Casey Barnes said. 2. Sometimes, the huddle can be more intense than the game itself. "I think that was the most exciting, tense game of the season, especially our huddle," freshman Betsey Hassenger said. In the huddle with Hassenger are freshmen (left to right) Chloe Swegles, Julie Horan, Taylor Giesen-Bayley, Coach Delmotte, Devon Pehrson, Hassenger and Laura Misiak. 3. Good defense is a key part to a good team. "We knew that we had to play really hard defense or we were going to lose," sophomore Casey Byrne said.

Pulling It Together

The freshman girls came through their season feeling generally pleased with it. "Our season, as a whole, as well as my own, was pretty good," freshman Laura Misiak said. The freshmen ended their season 13-7. The junior varsity girls basketball team had a season full of surprises and disappointments. "It was surprising that our season didn't go better; we were a good team," sophomore Amanda Hammond said. To sophomore Erin Wills, the transition of coaches was definitely a rough patch. "We had a disappointment at the beginning of the season that caused a little anger. We were really upset when Coach Harkey left. However, we still managed to pull out of the season with a great coach, Coach McCormack," Wills said. The girls ended their season on a good note, winning their last game by 5 points against Loy Norrix. "Winning our last game of the season was the best way to end it," sophomore Amanda Jeffreys said. "Casey Byrne [sophomore] made up this hilarious dance and called it the Harlem Shake. We laughed so hard!" sophomore Courtney Martin said. Even though the team laughed together, they also cried together. "Losing Coach Harkey was hard, there were a lot of tears that night," Byrne said. Laughter and tears aside, it was the final win that made the difference in the girl's season. The JV ended their season 9-11.

Sportsmanship is something that is discussed widely among coaches, athletic organizations, and even in professional sports. Comments and sportsmanship given by the other team affects how the game is played. "I was getting really worked up because of some very rude comments from the other team," sophomore Morgan Buzzell said. The three captains, sophomores Casey Barnes, Buzzell, and Stephanie Parshall, are returning after a timeout due to unsportsman-like conduct that the other team was displaying.

1. Junior Tara Fitzsimmons gets ready to shoot a freethrow, which are not as easy as they look. "Basketball was really intense this year. It required so much hard work. There was also a lot of pressure on people to win, but it was so much fun," Fitzsimmons said. 2. The girls team has a special cheer they do before games. "It's our little team time to get us pumped up," senior Andrea Phillips said. 3. As the girls flood onto the court, one of their many rituals is a quick pep talk from their coach. "Our coach always gathers us up before games to encourage us and get us ready to play. It's always really fun because it not only gets us ready, but it makes us feel more like a team," junior Tonya Robinson said.

As the girl's basketball team ran onto the court during home games, all you could possibly hear were the cheers from their fans. The team had an outstanding season and attracted more attention than a lot of them expected. "I think I can speak for everyone when I say that the people watching us made us feel like a million bucks," senior captain Jenna Williams said. "Ballin' days are what I live for." The girls finished their season with a record of 22-2. One of the team's many excitements was beating Lakeview. "The season went by really fast. It ends so quickly. We didn't want to lose in regionals. We killed Lakeview twice, though. It's weird because they used to beat us every time," senior Anna Braner said. Though they had good times, there were also some disappointments. "The season went really well, but it was a heartbreaker for our two losses to be to Niles. I couldn't have asked for a better season though," senior Kelly Hughes said. Now that the season is over, the one thing that Williams and Braner will always remember is, "Good players make good plays; good shooters keep shooting."

1 "The season was a lot of fun and the team did really well. I'm looking forward to next year's season," junior Emily Scherer said. Here she anticipates her opponent's next move. 2 Patience is definitely a virtue, which senior captain Jenna Williams proves. "I was waiting for the ball to come back into play so I could get my ballin' on," Williams said.

1 "Sometimes as I'm watching my teammates play, I try to get some pointers from them," sophomore Liz Gehrig said. Here Gehrig and Anna Braner sit out for some rest. 2 Running off the court after an awesome play is junior Paige Dickerson as she gets some high fives from her teammates. "It was really fun having the spotlight for a moment. The hardwork pays off," Dickerson said. 3 As she steps up to the line to shoot a freethrow, senior captain Meagan Mackey starts focusing. "I knew I was about to sink this one. You can't get any more focused than that," Mackey said. 4 At the home game against Sturgis, all of Jenna Williams' teammates cheered her on. "We were all cheering for Jenna after she scored her 1,000th point. We were so happy for her," junior Allison Miltenberger said.

1. Freshmen Tyler Wintersteen and Jon Billings prepare to knock down the quarterback, and working together, they achieve their goal. "Jon and I were going after the quarterback and ended up nailing him," Wintersteen said. 2. Playing football can be a hard game to play. Here freshman Andy Ayala is lying down. "I was lying down on the ground after a hard play because I needed a break," Ayala said. 3. Doing the job that you are responsible for can greatly help out your team. Freshman Maurice Ansley does his job and helps his team. "It was my job to block the center so people could run through. I crawled up under his legs and knocked him over," Ansley said.

1. Teamwork and practice is what makes a team. Here, sophomore Zach Mansfield is helping out a fellow football player. "I was helping [sophomore] Jake Crull with his punts," Mansfield said. 2. Freshman Matt Siebert is forcing his opponent down. "I was going to make a stick on the running back," Siebert said. Siebert succeeded in making his stick after the play.

Freshmen Andy Ayala and Wyatt McCulley lay in a pile up with the other team. Ayala's desire to make this play successful led to the pile up at the end of this play. "I had a strong desire to make this play and I was stressed about winning the game," Ayala said.

Football can sometimes be a confusing game. Knowing what to do with the ball, even in surprising circumstances can sometimes be confusing. Freshman Kelly Morrison ponders on what he should do next. "I was thinking, 'What should I do? Should I grab the ball and run, or should I wait to see what happens?' I was so confused," Morrison said.

Pump it Up

Sophomore David Cohoe talks to a fellow team member sophomore Vince Hanna. "I was telling Vince that it was a good play and I was getting the team pumped up," Cohoe said.

"What time is it? Game time! What time is it? Game time! Any dogs in the house let me hear you!(Bark)." This chant can be heard before the beginning of every junior varsity football game. The voice chanting is sophomore Tony Ramirez along with his fellow team members. "Before every game we always do a chant to get us pumped up," Ramirez said. Sophomore Terrence Glover remembers how the team got rowdy and crazy after they did the chant. "The chant got the whole team out there and ready to go. It got the whole team rowdy and crazy, and it got us pumped up," Glover said. The junior varsity team had a rough season, and ended with a 6-3 record. "As a group, the kids faced some adversity. They had the choice to either stop working and let the season finish, or work hard and finish the season great. They decided to work hard. This season wasn't about wins and losses, it was more about character. They developed as much on the field as off the field," junior varsity coach Jim Hendershot said. The freshman football team also finished their season with a 6-3 record. "We had a core of talented athletes, who worked hard every day to make us successful. I look forward to seeing them play jv and possibly varsity next year," freshman football coach Mike Fitzpatrick said.

Crossing the Line

Practice jersey: $30...mouthguard: $3...cleats: $60...making a million memories...Priceless.

Football. For some it is only a sport, but for senior quarterback Evan Sharpley and his brother, sophomore Ryan Sharpley, it is a whole lot more. "This year was really great because Ryan and I got to play on varsity together. We always hoped that would happen my senior year. Even though this was my last year of playing for Marshall, at least Ryan still has two years left to play here," Sharpley said. The varsity team shared a lot of memories. "I had a really great memory from when we played in Coldwater. Their team was on their 10 yard line. I intercepted the ball and took it to the 30 yard line, but then I got tackled," junior Jordan Dryer said. Sometimes, even on a team, individual triumphs are the most memorable. "The only touchdown I made this year, as a senior, was at the homecoming game. I came really close other times but didn't make it," senior Kevin Libbrecht said. Other times, the memories one shares with their team are most important. "Our practices were a lot of fun. Kevin Libbrecht and I messed around a lot. I'm really going to miss hanging out with the guys," senior Joey Hutson said. Memories are easy to come by whether they are individual or within the team but in the end they are always...priceless.

1. Senior Matt Horan, while preparing to block his opponent, has some serious thoughts in his head. "Oh, god. Oh, god. Oh, god," Horan said. 2. Receiving the ball from senior Evan Sharpley is junior Isaac Loughrige. "Once I got the ball, I knew nobody could touch me, so I danced around the defense. It was nothing," Loughrige said. 3. Holding the ball for junior David Boehmer to kick is sophomore Ryan Sharpley. "I'm so glad I got to play with my big brother!" Sharpley said.

1. Seniors Chris Curren and Eddie Sleeper are struggling to beat Harper Creek. "We were struggling in defense, but we picked it up the second half," Curren said. 2. Running against the crowd of the opposite team is senior Zach Wilson. "Everyone was falling, so I fell too. It proved to be a good strategy because we ended up scoring," Wilson said. 3. Leaving a player from Battle Creek Central on the ground in shame is senior Clint Burghdorf. "Run, Run, Run, as fast as you can, you can't catch me, I'm Clint Burghdorf," Burghdorf said.

1. Chanting with his team is senior Scott Allen. "I had more fun this year than any before. This was also the most important year of my career," Allen said. 2. Sophomore Kevin Pickleman is playing hard at the Harper Creek game. "I was getting ready to go sack the quarterback," Pickleman said.

Glitter: $5...ribbon: $2.50...sneakers: $30...cheering your team to victory...Priceless.

"Be aggressive", "Defense", and "Spirit" are just a few of the cheers that reach the ears of the fans at both the football and basketball games. It is not just the games that keep the girls together. Sometimes the cheerleaders hang out after the games. "We had a dance off one time. All of the cars in the parking lot got in a circle and we just danced forever. It was a lot of fun to just hang out and have fun with the girls," senior Amber Petersen said. In both football and basketball the cheers can help the players get excited and aggressive. "I like it when the team wins and they do well. It is a great feeling to be able to help cheer the guys on to a win," sophomore Jessica Peacock said. The girls can provide the players with spirit, encouragement, and nourishment. "They provide us with a goodie bag before each game so, I guess they are ok," junior David Boehmer said. For whatever reason the girls joined the team, whether it be the friendships or the experience, the memories will stay.

1. Being a senior can sometimes be hard when it comes time to leave. Senior Morgan Damron experienced this during football season. "It was sad at the last game. It will be hard not having the best seats in the stadium," Damron said. Also showing their spirit are senior Carynne Curtis and juniors Shannon Tallent and Molly Grant. Cheerleaders add spirit and energy to the crowd and to the players. Sometimes it works the other way. "It's fun to get the guys and the fans pumped up because when they do, you get pumped up too," senior Amanda Sobel said. For some it was their first time cheering. "This was my first year, and it was a great experience. It was the most fun sport to be involved in socially," senior Lindsay Doneth said.

1. "We went through a lot this year. However, overall it was a great season," sophomore Becca Ranville said. Sophomore Tiffany Allen feels the same. "Our season started off kind of rough. But, it ended up being a lot of fun," Allen said. 2. People get involved in sports for all sorts of different reasons. "I started because my friend got me into it. I really like cheering. It is fun to help the guys and the crowd get excited about playing," sophomore Emily Neil said. Cheering alongside of Neil is freshman Morgan Hazel. 3. Sophomores Courtney Lamoureux, Brittney Young, and Jessica Peacock show off some of their moves. "We learned a lot of new dances at cheer camp. We just had to show them off," Lamoureux said.

1. For some it is all about being in front of a crowd. "I like being in front of people. It is a lot of fun to get the fans excited," freshman Morgan Hazel said. Helping Hazel get the crowd excited is freshman Taylor Vaughn. 2. Vaughn and freshman Keely Kreger take a break. "It was a lot of fun messing around with Keely," Vaughn said.

1. Frustrations are a common thing in all sports. Sophomore Ashli Brown is working through one as she is dancing at one of the dance teams many performances. "The pressure of messing up in front of hundreds of people was a big frustration for me," Brown said. 2. Lying on the floor in the middle of a dance routine is junior Melinda Toney. "My favorite part about this dance was the partner part. I also liked the ripples," Toney said. 3. Ending round one at Loy Norrix are seniors Alaina Collins, Danielle Hainline, Rachel Corralez, Katie Risnes, and Kate Grooms, junior Liz Leahy, sophomores Heidi Elston and Shannon Tobin, and freshman Kaitlyn Dimaria. "My favorite part about this round is the kick because I can see my foot in front of my face," Corralez said.

1. Junior Sarah Russell is thoroughly enjoying the experience of dancing. "It's really fun because I've been dancing since I was really little, and I really enjoy it," Russell said. 2. The act of going over and over the basics is one complaint. Seniors Katie Risnes and Rachel Corralez are trying to find some way to enjoy this task. "I have to keep thinking to keep my motions tight, otherwise we have to do the boring drill over and over again," Risnes said.

Running drills in practice is an important element in a winning squad. Here senior Kate Grooms, sophomore Hiedi Elston, freshman Kaitlin Dimaria, and sophomore Shannon Tobin are practicing these drills. "Since it's required by all teams, we need to practice so we can get a good score at competitions," Grooms said.

The splits require lots of stretching and practice. Showing their practice in this area are senior Danielle Hainline, sophomore Heidi Elston, senior Rachel Corrales, and freshman Kaitlyn Dimaria. "I actually started doing them [the splits] this summer when I started cheerleading. I took me about two weeks of practice plus stretching every night to get it down," Dimaria said.

The Competitive Cheer team had a good season even through the challenge of having many new girls. "We had a good season. We had a brand new team except three girls, [so] this was a building season for us," senior Danielle Hainline said. The team reached their goals and exceeded expectations. "The girls have improved a lot over the season. Reaching their goals, they stepped it up and have done things they didn't think they could," senior Kate Grooms said. The Dance Team started a little rough, but stepped it up as the season progressed. "After a couple of hard practices, we pulled together and had good performances," junior Sarah Russell said. The team also started their season as a divided team. "We were separated into two groups, the returning girls and the new girls. By the end of the year we came together as a team," sophomore Hallie Dopp said. Both of these teams had different challenges to overcome, as well as some of the same ones. Both had to deal with new people. While the dance team had to deal with divisions amongst themselves, the Competitive Cheer Team had to deal with learning the 'ropes'. But the girls from both of these teams only had one thing to say at the end of the season. "It was priceless working together with my new friends and watching us get better through the season," sophomore Tiffany Allen said. Working together and making new friends are just some of the priceless memories that the girls take away from their experiences this year.

Developing the strength to get on someone else's shoulder's can be hard. Practicing this are senior Alaina Collins and sophomore Heidi Elston. "Trying to get the strength to get up there is hard. Plus I'm so short and she's so tall," Elston said

1. Sophomore Mike VanDerMeulen goes up for a free throw as junior Josh Lord watches in the background. "I was working hard to score the post and draw the foul. I made the shot to finish off the three point play with a free throw," VanDerMeulen said. 2. Sophomores Andrew Egger, Micheal Clark, VanDerMeulen, Vince Hanna, Wil Mayo, Adam Kingston and junior Mike Edwardson pump it up on the bench. Even though they may not get as much playing time as the starters, they make it a point to show their support. "I was checking out that hot lady in the front row. She was good looking," Kingston said. 3. Taking a personal time out is freshman Joe Baxter. "I was really tired, and I was trying to listen to Coach [Andy] McCormack. He was giving me a pointer," Baxter said.

1. Freshman Josh Welch practices his fundamentals out on the court. "You've got to have your eye on the ball and [also] on your man," Welch said. 2. Junior Danny Nielsen goes up for a lay-up. "I was about to dunk it, and then I got fouled," Nielsen said.

Sometimes, especially during a tough game, the huddle can be a scary place. Freshmen Kelly Morrison, Sam Dark, Josh Welch, Trevor Smolinski, and Marc Neidlinger huddle up during the game against Sturgis. "In this game against Sturgis, we just didn't execute," Dark said.

Sophomore Andy Fox sets up a successful pick for sophomore Colin McCloskey. "I was setting a good pick for Colin so that he could get a drive to the basket," Fox said. "I made it [the basket] to get the lead," McCloskey said.

Netting Skills

Warm-ups: $30...team shoes: $75...summer camp: $280...putting up that shot at the buzzer...Priceless.

Both teams this year knocked down their competitors. The freshmen ended up 14-6 and junior varsity pulled up at 18-2. The freshman got to play Sturgis three times. The first time they beat Sturgis at their own court. The second time Sturgis beat the freshmen at home, and the third time was in the championship game at the Coldwater Tournament. In the championship game the freshmen were down the whole game, when, in the fourth quarter, Matt Siebert threw up a shot, and it swooshed through the net as the buzzer sounded. Freshman Kory Hershock thought that the season was spectacular. "Especially at both of the Harper Creek games with my hot hand scoring a career high 16 points. This was a great addition to my freshman year," Hershock said. The junior varsity had only two losses. Coach [Nick] Dent was very pleased with the boys this year. To Coach Dent the fun games were the ones that came right down to the wire. "The most exciting game was when we were playing Loy Norrix at Loy Norrix," Dent said. At the end of the fourth quarter, sophomore Drew Lasky shot a three point shot at the buzzer to put the team into the first of two overtimes. "I always seem to do better when I am in a crunch time, so when that buzzer was down to two seconds, I knew it was my time to go," Lasky said. The good times seem to override the bad. "I remember the good times were the ones that made me sit on the edge of my seat. I got really excited when we would be tied, but I also liked it when we were up by a lot and I got to show off my skills," sophomore Andrew Egger said.

Freshman Matt Siebert puts one up for the team in their game against Sturgis. "It was a fun, intense game. It was close the whole way through," Siebert said.

1. Some players have a special routine when they step up to the line, while others just step up and shoot. But most players want to achieve the same goal: to put the ball into the hoop. "I was concentrating and was determined to make the free throw because they have a big importance. They can even decide the outcome of the game," senior Matt Stefan said. 2. To have a better chance at getting a rebound, one has to step in front of the other player and put their backside into the other players stomach and box out. "The game was tough, and I knew that I had to box out to help us stay in the race for the SMAC east," sophomore Shane Storey said. 3. When one steps to the line, they often concentrate really hard. But concentration can break when distracted. "I was distracting the shooter so he wouldn't make the basket. I decided to wave my arms. However, I think that the odor from my armpits was more distracting," senior Evan Sharpley said.

1. Point guards are typically the ones who run the show. They make sure everyone is doing what they are supposed to, so the play runs smoothly. Junior Bryan McKenney was one of the lucky ones who was appointed the position this season. "I like being able to run the show, it is an important job. I like being under pressure, it makes everything more exciting," McKenney said. 2. Bench sitting is not always all that bad, especially when you are cheering on your teammates. Doing just that are juniors Kevin Hershock and David Boehmer. "Being in the right spot on the bench is everything. It determines whether we win or lose," Hershock said. 3. When a player is open out on the court, they usually want a teammate to realize it and pass them the ball. "I was watching a teammate drive to the hoop and waiting in anticipation for them to kick it out to me so I could hit a three pointer," junior Mike Brotherton said.

1. Cookies and milk might seem like the perfect dunk as children; however, things have changed. "Dunking is not just for milk and cookies anymore- it's perfect only for me, though," senior Clint Burghdorf said. 2. Coaches can be a big influence on how their players play. They give them advice on and off the court. "Coach [Dan] Coddens was telling me after I came out of the game, what we should be doing and not be doing out on the court. That really helped me with my game against Lakeview," sophomore Jake Crull said.

Take it to the Hoop

Basketball: $20...Shoes: $90...Uniform: $140... crowd yelling "We want Stix!"...Priceless.

As one walks into the gym on a Tuesday night, the atmosphere can be as welcoming as it is on a Friday night. One can hear the familiar noises of a basketball bouncing, screaming fans, and proud parents cheering on their sons. One can also hear the Sixth Man cheering on "our boys." One of the most recognizable cheers is "We want Stix!" "When I hear them cheering for me, I feel appreciated, and it pumps me up," senior Andrew [Stix] Hunt said. Although there is a lot of cheering during the game, many fans remain focused on the court. The boys finished with a 10-12 record this season, which some players were disappointed about. "I think in the beginning we were a strong, yet young team. [Then] injuries happened to three of our starters and we couldn't get back to where we left off," junior Tyler Kelly said. Others were quite proud. "I am very proud of the team. We overcame many injuries and I am extremely proud of all their effort," Coach Dan Coddens said.

1. Freshman Stephanie Johnston keeps her cool during the third game against Harper Creek. "We ended up beating Harper Creek, but we had to play three games with them. It was a very intense game. It was probably the best we played all year long, and we have a lot of fun too," Johnston said. 2. Sophomores Casey Byrne and Hannah Guerra concentrate on making a good pass against a Lakeview server. "We won one game and went three games with them. We all played really well, but Lakeview is just a good team. They have always been our biggest competition, and we were all at our highest intensity levels possible," Byrne said. 3. Blocking a Harper Creek opponent are sophomores Marissa Loughrige and Chelsea McGill. "It was a really good game. We lost, but it was so close. Maybe if we would have closed the block, we would have blocked the girl and won," McGill said.

1. Sophomore Mandy Hoffmann shows her form on how to set the ball. "I had just set the ball to a teammate during the Battle Creek Central match. I never realized how good my form looked though. One thing I do know is that we won that match," Hoffmann said. 2. Concentrating on the play is freshman Gretchen Suehr. "I came from Portage Northern and was new to the Marshall volleyball program. However, I did play while at Portage Northern, so I had some experience. I think our season went pretty well, and we really improved," Suehr said.

Sophomores Chelsea McGill and Casey Barnes wait for the ball to be returned to their side. "I was just waiting for the ball to come back to our side. I always have to be on my feet moving because I am the setter. It seems as if I am always anxious, though," Barnes said.

Freshman Devon Pehrson focuses on Mattawan's server. "I was excited because it was our last home match of the season, and we won, too! We were really happy we beat them because they beat Lakeview, and that was an accomplishment for us. Overall, our season went well compared to previous years," Pehrson said.

Drills and Skills

New shoes: $65...knee pads: $20...getting the first hand experience to prepare for the varsity level...Priceless.

Most volleyball teams start their season setting goals for the year. This is exactly what the junior varsity and freshmen teams did. They tried to set their goals high, yet set goals they could accomplish. One major goal both teams set was to beat one of their rivals Harper Creek or Lakeview. "We accomplished part of our goal. We beat Harper Creek one time at one of our tournaments. That was a pretty exciting moment," sophomore Amanda Jeffreys said. Overall, the freshman team went 35-24, and the junior varsity went 11-16-3. However, the teams had to work hard to accomplish these goals. "Coach Katie wasn't too hard on us. It was more having fun, but at the same time working hard while we were doing whatever we did," freshman Catie Watson said. The girls attended practices every day doing drills that included serving and hitting. Both teams got the first hand experience to prepare for the upcoming varsity level. Learning new drills and skills and getting the experience playing on a lower team can be priceless. "I was really impressed with the outcome of both the freshmen and junior varsity teams. They have really improved since the beginning of the season. I am excited to see how things will go next year," varsity head coach Mike Loveless said.

Serving the ball during a match is freshman Kyle Hakes. "I'm pretty sure I was serving during the Niles game. If I can remember right, I served up a few aces too. We also won that match, but in three games," Hakes said.

Warmups: $60...shoes: $65...being "pantse" in front of a bunch of guys... Priceless.

Most of the varsity volleyball team members were seasoned players. There were five returning seniors, all of whom started. The team also consisted of three juniors and two sophomores. Due to the fact that most of the team has had prior varsity experience, most knew what to expect this season. "We were like a roller coaster. It depended upon which Marshall team showed up to the match that determined whether or not we were going to win that particular match or not," senior Ashley Goodrich said. There were many inside jokes, but there is one that sophomore Courtney Lamoureux will always remember. "One day I was pantse in front of the varsity boy's basketball team," Lamoureux said. "Pantse" is when teammates come up behind another player and pull up their spandex, sort of like a wedgie. Sophomore Stephanie Parshall was almost "pantse" but managed to avoid it. "They didn't ever want to do anything to me, they did try once, but I knew it was coming and I ran off," Parshall said. The girls finished the season with a score of 25-19-4.

1. Approaching the net to hit a spike is sophomore Courtney Lamoureux with senior Tiffany Silvers close behind. "I improved a lot this season. I got my timing down and got smarter with the ball [compared to last year]," Lamoureux said. 2. Also preparing to hit a spike is junior Maegan Hendershot. "[The most difficult part of the season was] overcoming my my mental challenges, but [the best part was] experiencing a higher level of competition," Hendershot said. 3. Junior Tara Fitzsimmons watches to see if the ball is coming her way. "This year the team fit well together. We all worked well as a team and got along well," Fitzsimmons said.

1. Going for a pass is senior Ashley Goodrich. This season the team got to districts, but lost. "Losing districts [was hard] because it was the last game of my volleyball career, and it was emotional," Goodrich said. 2. After winning a point members of the team go to the middle of the floor and cheer, here are seniors Tiffany Silvers, Amber Petersen, Ashley Goodrich and Ashley Dominique, juniors Maegan Hendershot and Emily Scherer, and sophomores Courtney Lamoureux and Stephanie Parshall. "[The best part of the season was] all of the jokes that we had in games and practice," Parshall said. 3. Senior Lindsay Doneth will always remember this year because of all of the fun that she had. "[My most memorable part of the season was] staying in the St. Joe hotel room with a really fun group of people and eating buckets of ice cream," Doneth said. (The picture also includes senior Tiffany Silvers).

1. Senior Tiffany Silvers serves the ball to win another point for the team. "We could have gone further than we did, but I still love the game itself," Silvers said. 2. Standing for the national anthem is senior Amber Petersen with junior Emily Scherer, sophomores Stephanie Parshall and Courtney Lamoureux. "I was really nervous for the big game. I had butterflies in my stomach," Petersen said.

Shaving Off Time

At the beginning of the boys swim season, there were some people who thought that because there were so few team-members this year, they would not do as well as they had in the past. "Even though we had small numbers and a lot of new people, we still did really well this season," junior Dan Hibler said. It is not just about the success that they had, it is about the friendships that were made within the team. "It was a good year. We all became close as a team and got better as the year went on," freshman Taft Tice said. The seniors from this year will be missed by many of the swimmers that are returning next year. "Swimming just won't be the same without my military boys [seniors Austin Gauthier and Chris Carrington]," junior Brandon deJong said. The team ended with a season record of 4 - 5, with seniors Matt Sherrill, Chris Carrington, and Austin Gauthier, and juniors Nick Weaver, Dan Hibler, Caleb Kerr, and Max Pickering going to state.

Practice becomes a daily routine for sophomore Kevin Fleury. "Swimming is more work than I imagined. Some sports try to claim bragging rights over who works harder, but the truth is no sport other than swimming practices morning and night," Fleury said. After swimming for hours at a time, junior James Hamaker found out how to keep going. "I play songs in my head. It's an easy way to keep going," Hamaker said. Junior Nick Weaver is concentrating on his swim and how he can make it a better one. "I was trying to force on my swim and the technique that I need when I swim," Weaver said.

1. Before every dive, many divers find some way to go over their dive. "Right before I dive in a meet I listen to music to pump myself up. I also visualize my dives in my head before I'm up," senior Matt Sherrill said.

2. After the meet, senior Austin Gauthier and junior Caleb Kerr wait to find out how their team did. "I was disappointed, but I knew in my heart we won," Gauthier said. 3. In his last year of swimming in high school is senior Chris Carrington. "I enjoyed swimming all four years here and the experience of it," Carrington said.

1. Lap counting the 500 yard freestyle for junior Brandon deJong is junior Max Pickering. "Guys always lose count during long races so it always helps counting for them," Pickering said. 2. While swimming, freshman Jon Davis thinks about which animal his team would be. "[We would be] a parrot because we are loud and obnoxious and very flashy because we like to parade around in our speedos," Davis said.

1. Practice can make perfect, as junior Brian Vandorsten can agree with. "Every practice coach [Sue Hutchings] makes us do stuff we don't want to do, but it helps," Vandorsten said. 2. Watching their fellow teammates are senior Jami Lafferty and junior Amanda Nelson. "I watch my teammates to see what the lane conditions are, and it helps," Nelson said. 3. No, this is not synchronized bowling. Seniors Dennis Holmes and Courtney Barnes practice their release at Marshall Lanes. "I never complain about how much we practice, but about what we do while we are practicing. It does make us better," Holmes said.

1. On his approach, junior Ben Hill thinks about making a good shot. "When I'm up to go, 'make the shot count' goes through my head," Hill said. 2. Junior Whitney Fowlkes practices her techniques. "You have to practice every day like [in] everything else to get better," Fowlkes said.

Taking a break during a meet are senior Shawn Diver and junior Ben Hill. "Everyone was bowling well except Ben. He was struggling. So, we were giving him a hard time," Diver said.

Practicing for the next meet are freshman Betsy Hassenger and senior Jami Lafferty. Many athletes have advice for what to do to win, Betsy thinks about how to get better. "Practice and really think about what you need to change to get better," Hassenger said.

Knock em' down

Bowling ball: $200...shoes: $34...bowling a perfect game...Priceless.

One cannot usually pick up a ball and right off bowl a perfect game. Practicing is almost always the way to being able to knock down all ten pins. Senior Jami Lafferty practices with the team and supports them at meets. "Practicing and listening to what my coach tells me is how I get better at bowling," Lafferty said. One can still have fun practicing though. "We are crazy, yet reserved, wild, yet calm, and know how to have fun," junior Cam Lake said. Just as the mood of each practice can vary, so can the thoughts that go through the bowlers' heads. When it's time to bowl, some bowlers think about practice and what they can do to get a strike. "[I think about] all the stuff that we've learned about throwing the ball," sophomore Bradley Wright said. For freshman Gordon Leung there is a line that appears. "I imagine a line to the pins, to hit at the right spot to get a strike or a spare," Leung said. Bowlers join the team for a assortment of reasons, from bowling from a young age to just liking the game. "I joined bowling because I like to bowl," freshman Joe Lorenzen said. "I started bowling at a young age, and I guess I just figured to join the team," freshman Betsy Hassenger said. No matter the reason for being on the team, members find a way to enjoy themselves. "We are one strikingly awesome team!" sophomore Melissa Shedd said. The bowling team ended up going on to state, so all of their practice paid off. Even though the team lost in the first round at state, they put up a good fight.

Talking with some friends at regionals is sophomore Josh Parks. "We were talking about how everybody was doing so well working as a team at regionals," Parks said.

Taking It to the Mat

putting all of your opponents into submission...Priceless.

The sport of wrestling can be considered one of the most physically strenuous and technically challenging sports in the world. Unfortunately, it is often overlooked. A large degree of skill and ability is necessary to compete in wrestling. "A good wrestler is physically and mentally strong...wrestlers must have courage, determination, and heart. You can't be afraid to lose but you have to believe you can beat anybody," Coach [Kevin] McCauley said. They train for strength, but learning the techniques is what is necessary to win. "Of course [Wrestling] takes a lot of strength, but knowing the techniques is even more important because even if the other guy is a lot stronger, you can still pin him," junior Jeff Rosebush said. Luckily, many of those who do take part in this sport have what it takes to win. The Marshall team worked hard this year, and though they had a losing season with a record of 6-28, they are hopeful for the team's prospects next year. "The important factor of the team is that we are young. We had a tough year, but we'll be getting better next year and after that," sophomore Alex Braner said. "Hearing the guys talk about how it's going to be better next year and looking forward to our season with pride, was a great feeling," McCauley said.

1. Sophomore Alex Braner pins his opponent during a match. "It was one of my many pins for the season. I had a tough match but ended up with a victory," Braner said. 2. Senior Zach Wilson talks with the coaches. "I had just finished, and they told me what I did right when I executed my moves...they also show you things to fix," Wilson said. 3. Before wrestling, senior Chad Damon shakes an opponent's hand. "It's good to know what to expect before the match, to eye them down," Damon said.

1. Senior Zach Wilson, juniors Jeff Rosebush and Luis Sanchez, sophomores Mario Ramon and Justin Miller, and freshmen Charles Dean and Maurice Ansley gather together before the meet to talk with the coaches. "When we first start, we discuss strong points on the bottom and top. Our coach reminds us to use all of the techniques we learned. We also get together to support our team members and to cheer them on even if they win or lose," Sanchez said. 2. Trying to execute a technique, freshman Maurice Ansley works to defeat his opponent. "I was trying to slip my legs in, so I could put a Power Half in and turn him to his back. I won by points in the third round in six minutes," Ansley said. 3. Junior Jordan Dryer grapples with his opponent during a match. "This was one of the first matches of the season, but it didn't last very long. I tried to back-trip to beat him. He wasn't very good, so I was able to win," Dryer said.

Sometimes the finished product is not as important as the process one goes through to arrive there. "Even though our record didn't show it, I think we played good this year," sophomore Courtney Martin said. The softball team ended their season with a 10-19 record. In any sports team, players are almost always going to learn new things. "I'm glad I made the team this year. I had a lot of fun and experienced new things," sophomore Margaret Oerther said. Though the team did not do as well as they planned, the players were still pretty enthusiastic about the sport. "Softball rocks! Everyone should play it because it is a great sport," freshman Amber Coble said. The JV softball team played well this year, even though their record did not show it. The scores, though, improved from the past years.

1. Working together to tag out the runner are juniors Sarah Herman and Amanda Selner, while sophomore Hillary Frazier watches the play. "Our team really improved this year. It was a lot of fun getting to know the girls," Herman said. 2. Freshman Rachael Simmons releases her hold on the pitch while first-baseman junior Tabatha VanWormer watches. "I joined softball because the intensity of the game is so high, especially when you are up to bat. All I want to do is crack that ball over the fence," Simmons said. 3. Listening to your coach can be a very important part of being on the softball team. Selner tries to do her job. "I was playing short-stop. I had fielded the ball and doing what my coach said, looked two and go one," Selner said.

1. Team work can be very important while playing on a sports team. Sophomore Rachel Russell works with her team to try and get somebody out. "I was throwing the ball from the outfield trying to get somebody out," Russell said. 2. Junior Tabatha VanWormer tries to help her team take the lead. "I was trying to get an RBI so we could take over the lead," VanWormer said. 3. Softball can be an intense game and can give players a lot of adrenaline. Freshman Brittany Despins swings the bat. "I joined the softball team because when the ball is coming at you it gives you such a rush and more adrenaline to play the game," Despins said.

1. The love of the game can really help players be more enthusiastic about the sport. Sophomore Hillary Frazier swings the bat at a game. "I joined the team because it's a sport that I'm good at and I love to play," Frazier said. 2. On a sports team, it is not all about playing the game it is about making friends also. Junior Jessica Lowell misses the ball after a play. "I enjoyed being on the JV team. It was fun and I made a lot of friends. This season was a lot more succesful than the last two years," Lowell said.

1. With victory in mind, sophomore Courtney Lamoureux waits for the ball as a member from the rival team comes her way. "I was getting ready and intense for the ball to come. I was really focused, because we needed to win for the SMAC East championship," Lamoureux said. 2. Senior Anna Braner dodges the bat and catches the ball at the same time. "When I'm behind the plate I'm just concentrating on catching the ball and throwing the runners out," Braner said. 3. Dust flies and sophomore Chelsea McGill smiles as she slides her way to safety. "Someone was trying to tag me out, so I slid, but I slid wrong. At least I was safe," McGill said.

Thrown Together

Glove: $15...ball: $5...visor: $6...sharing victories with friends...Priceless.

Running, throwing, batting, catching...these and more are what the girls on the varsity softball team do often, whether at a drilling practice or at an intense game. They do it as a team, too. With the victories and the losses, the hits and the misses, and even with the sweat under the sun, they are a team of friends. "Ending up with everyone being friends was priceless for me," sophomore Casey Barnes said. And being friends brought them a long way. "It was a fun team and we got along really well, that's why we went so far," sophomore Liz Gehrig said. Embarrassing moments can be some of the great memories to laugh at and remember. "I will always remember when [senior] Andrea [Phillips] tripped over home base and slid all the way across the ground," junior Courtney Brown said. With a team like this, who could help but smile knowing that the opponents fear you? Especially with a record of 26 wins and only 6 losses. The team has made it through Districts and into Regionals. In all, making friends and memories along the way is what made this season priceless.

1. Senior Meagan Mackey throws herself into a pitch against a rival Beaver. "It was a great season this year and I wish I could do it all over again," Mackey said.

2. As she warms up for the practice, senior Stephanie Stockel throws the ball to one of her teammates. "We had a hard start with our first game against Homer, and if we could have started out as good as we turned out to be, this season would have been perfect," Stockel said.

3. Senior Katie Risnes and sophomore Liz Gehrig keep their eyes on the game as they wait for the ball to come their way. "I was on my way to back up second on a possible throwdown," Risnes said. 4. Before the game begins, senior Andrea Phillips practices throwing the ball to her teammates. "I was warming up the guns to knock out the Beavers," Phillips said. 5. Senior Kristen Spicher is in position as she watches the play. "I was waiting for the pitch in a close game," Spicher said. 6. At practice, sophomore Casey Barnes winds up. "What's been priceless for me this year was getting a chance to be with the upperclassmen and having a better experience by being on varsity," Barnes said.

1. While returning the tennis ball to his opponent, sophomore Eric Ebner ponders his best qualities. "Not only am I the best player alive, I am also the best looking and the most stylish. I mean, check out my shoes. They're awesome!" Ebner said. 2. Junior Eddie Lucke and freshman Spencer Townsend get more tennis balls for practice. "Who thinks that they can return my next serve?" Townsend said. 3. At practice is sophomore Clay Robinson working on his technique. "[I was] thinking about how I can't hit a real backhand, so I settled for my normal slice," Robinson said.

For the love of the game

Priceless.

Tennis is often thought of as an individual sport, however their efforts make up a team score. Some of the boys have to learn to depend on each other to succeed as a team, but that isn't always the case. When a person plays singles, they can't depend on anyone else but themselves to do well in the match. For doubles, though, there is another person that can help to pull their share of the weight. To some people, winning isn't everything. The experiences the players have while on the team can mean a lot, too. To win, and have a good time playing, coaching can be key. "Mr. [Jody] Foreman was a great coach and made the season fun," junior Eddie Lucke said. Also, some say that to do well in tennis a person needs more than just natural talent. A big part of the game can be the mental aspect. A team member might need to be able to size up their opponent to try to figure out the best way to beat them. "Tennis isn't all about the skills. Half of the game is mental, and that's what it takes to win," sophomore Chris Deno said. Growing as a team can be more important than winning. It sometimes seems that this is how coaches look at the success of their team, but this year the JV team did very well and had a 7-2-1 record. "We improved a lot. We had a very strong team this year. We had a really, really good season and they were a fun team," Foreman said. Through all of the wins and losses, often the most important thing is that the team sticks together to the end of the season. Most would agree that the JV team seems to have accomplished that this year.

Sometimes the point that is the hardest to win can be the one that matters the most. Returning a serve is junior Kam Loveless. "It was an intense volley, but I won the point," Loveless said.

1. Starting a match out the right way can be vital to win, so getting the serve you want can be very important. "I smashed an insane serve into my opponent's grill," junior John VanZant said. 2. Winning may not be everything, but it sure feels good. Sophomore Brian Lucke proves the point when he won the match with an ace. "I was watching my game winning ace," Lucke said. 3. About to start the next round is freshman David Devaney. "I was getting ready for my next serve," Devaney said. 4. Bad weather can spring up at any time to ruin a game and there are those like sophomore Jack Townsend who want to have bad weather. "I was doing a rain dance and hoping that the match would be cancelled," Townsend said. 5. Sophomore Wil Mayo lunged to save a serve from a teammate during practice. "I wish my shorts were longer," Mayo said.

Having a ball

Incoming players helped to create a different environment for the team. "This year, all of our doubles teams were new. It was a big accomplishment for us to go as far as we did," sophomore Adam DeWolf said. The tennis team did go far, making it all the way to State. That meant a lot to some of the players. "Getting 20 points at Regionals and making it to State was the most important accomplishment this year," junior Daniel Hibler said. The boys ended their season with a winning record of 10-2.

1. Freshman Henrique Boscolo and sophomore Adam DeWolf slap hands during a match. "We were using the team communication that Crandall had taught us. That's good tennis," DeWolf said. 2. Junior Dan Hibler keeps his form as he tries to give a return. "This was my first year on varsity. I did really well in part because of my partner," Hibler said. 3. Senior Michael Hughes tries to keep his head in the game. "I was at the net and I was concentrating really hard on the ball, but I was distracted because [senior] Kevin Schook was standing at the next net and he was looking really cute," Hughes said.

1 Junior Tyler Sauerbrey slams a shot back at his opponent. "I like tennis," Sauerbrey said. 2 Senior Jacob Simmons and sophomore Adam Kingston sweat it out in a doubles match. "Everyone wants to be the winner, but really . . . who could beat Adam and I. We don't flee . . . ever," Simmons said. 3 Senior Kevin Schook tries to stay at the top of his game. "I was perfecting the drop shot that [senior] Nick Hopkins taught me . . . that's good times," Schook said.

1 Senior Nick Hopkins focuses in on his opponent. "I was starting him down because intimidation is key in the game of tennis," Hopkins said. 2 Senior Brendon O'Connell waits for the return at a tournament at KCC. "It was a tough match, and tournaments are always hard because it takes a lot of energy to play all day. I was trying to make sure that I got a win, and I did, so it turned out all right," O'Connell said.

1. Playing with a back up plan is freshman Hannah Richardson. "I was thinking that if she got the ball away from me I was going to knock her down," Richardson said. 2. Watching the new addition on the defense is sophomore Samantha Kipp. "[Sophomore] Sarah [Willits] has been a good addition to the defense this year and taking the position of [junior] Sarah Karr. It has been fun working with Sarah. I hope to work as we have been, for years to come!" Kipp said. 3. Sophomore Cassandra Boehmer waits to make a move if sophomore Anna Harlow doesn't do it first. "I was ready to dominate the Vic girl if she got by Anna," Boehmer said.

1. Back in the game of soccer is freshman Gabriela Fratta. "I haven't played soccer in a very long time, but coming back to it was a lot of fun. Just being out there with the team was awesome," Fratta said. 2. Out on the field is freshman Crystal Ramon, working together with her team. "I feel that our team has improved so much over the season. At first I think that we were all kind of doing our own thing, then at the end of the season we all came together and had three great wins to finish off the season," Ramon said.

Sophomore Rebekah Galang throws the ball in to her teammate, freshman Angela Eash. "I was trying to run as fast as I could so that I could get to the ball before the defense," Eash said.

While junior Salena Nickels traps the ball and passes it to another teammate, junior Megan Mankerian watches from the sideline to sub-in. "We have been working on just trapping the ball and setting up plays. So I was concentrating on getting the ball to the forwards," Nickels said.

Uniting on the Field

Team sweatshirt: $30...soccer ball: $25...cleats: $125...learning that soccer can be more than just competition... Priceless.

When talking to the JV soccer team one will most likely find that improvement was a key part of the season. "I got in shape and improved at my game by getting more aggressive. We all improved a lot and came together as a team," sophomore Anna Harlow said. Although the beginning of the season was a little shaky, as time went on the team found their groove. "We started out kind of rough, but the more we got to know each other the better we played. We all pulled together for a good season with a record of 7-7-2," sophomore Rebekah Galang said. Coming together as a team was not the only thing they had to overcome. They had to become flexible and change positions as teammates could not play. "I think we did well as a team. We came together as a team and played different positions while people were out hurt or sick," junior Megan Mankerian said. Most of the team members came away with a memory that will stay with them for awhile. "Beating up Mr. [Adrian] Harkey at our last practice [was memorable]. I got to know people better and learned that soccer can be more than just competition," sophomore Kensington Myers said. Ending the season with three straight wins... priceless.

Sending the ball back into play after blocking a shot is freshman Kelly Vandyke. "Goalie is a bigger position then everybody thinks it is. It takes a lot of hard work and concentration to learn the sport," Vandyke said.

1. Playing a game of leapfrog during a team practice, are juniors Tara Fitzsimmons and Emily Scherer. "We were slacking off in our sprints, so Brad made us leapfrog all the way back to get our water because he knew it would tire us out," Fitzsimmons said. "I was having fun until Tara's butt fell on my head. I had a headache the rest of the day," Scherer said. 2. Outside the bounds, senior Katie Wolf kicks the ball back into play. "Every time I make a corner kick, I find a grass hill to set it up on. That's my technique for a good corner kick," Wolf said. 3. As the ball rolls down the field, juniors Sarah Anderson, Danielle Hurst, and Teresa Taft run close behind to recover it. "It was really hot, and I was really mad at the referee because a girl had grabbed my jersey and pulled me down and the ref called it fair. I still played really well. It was probably my best game," Anderson said. "I'm usually there to back people up when they are going for the goal. I was thinking, 'come on Sarah, you can do it'," Taft said.

Bend It Like a Hawk

Soccer Shoes: $125...practice ball: $25...jersey: $30...breaking away for a goal...Priceless.

The weather is harsh, the game is hard, and the rewards are few. Yet time and again, the girls step up to the challenge and make great soccer teams. This year is no different. In effort, teamwork, and spirit, the players of the girls' varsity soccer team have worked all season. They all know that it takes dedication to make the team take off, even when it seems like the game goes on forever, and they can't go any further. "It gets monotonous running back and forth down the field, but I still like playing soccer because of my competitiveness. It takes a lot of endurance and motivation, but when the team pulls together, our hard work pays off," junior Danielle Hurst said. Sophomore Mandy Hoffmann felt like they were a good team even during the difficult games. "This season had a lot of ups and downs, but we always ended up having a good time," Hoffmann said. The team ended the season by making it to Districts with a record of 10-7. As well as having a winning season, the players felt that they improved this year, too. "I shot a lot during practice, and I feel that I did much better at scoring goals this season," junior Tara Fitzsimmons said. All the practices and being able to rely on teammates make a player feel more confident on the field. So when a player is making a break for the goal, she goes all the way trusting in her own skill and in that of her team...Priceless.

1. High in the air, sophomore Morgan Buzzell refines her skill as a goalkeeper. "We were working on high balls and my form because during the game the day before, I misjudged a ball and the other team scored," Buzzell said. 2. In a fight for the ball, sophomore Casey Byrne makes a move to take the ball away. "I had been screamed at so much by [Brad McCormack], our assistant coach, not to 'poke' at the ball, so I knew I had to stay between her and the goal so she couldn't burn past me and score," Byrne said.

3. Poised to stop a shot from junior Tara Fitzsimmons, Morgan Buzzell moves in while sophomores Mandy Hoffmann and Jenna Kiessling look on. "We were running drills and we had to make the ball past two defenders to make a shot. We had to practice passes and especially passing to feet," Kiessling said. Through practice, the girls were given the opportunity to learn what they have to do to win in a game. As a goal tender, having the right skills are important to Buzzell. "[A goalie needs] a lot of self confidence, good judgement, and the knowledge of how to get to and catch the ball. Of course, you also have to be ready to do whatever it takes to make the save," Buzzell said. 4. Both going for the ball, senior Amber Petersen and freshman Abigail Longhurst collide during practice. "Abby didn't stand a chance against me, the soccer goddess. I was definitely going to steal the ball," Peterson said. "The 'soccer goddess' thought she could get it from me, but she lost the ball this time. Who's the 'soccer goddess' now?" Longhurst said. 5. On the field during a difficult game, senior Kelly Hughes makes a move around her opponent. "It was cold and it was a tough game, but every game is fun to me," Hughes said. 6. On the practice fields, senior Lauren Murphy tries to charge past sophomore Casey Byrne and freshman Kay Fitzsimmons. "I was practicing like a fierce lion because I knew the big game was on the line," Murphy said. "We were playing two on one at that time. I was able to take it around Lauren and pass it off to Casey," Fitzsimmons said.

Bats Loaded

Beginning the season below standards was the junior varsity baseball team. JV player, sophomore Kirk Byrens, tells about his season. "Our year started out rough, but by the end we started winning, and now we will become the best team ever," Byrens said. The freshmen baseball team could be described as less than perfect. Freshman Mitchell Kirylo looks on the bright side. "I liked baseball a lot, it was my first year playing, and Coach [Joel] Ritter was great," Kirylo said. This year, the freshmen ended their season with just two wins. With the season over and another one on the way, the boys will have plenty of time to practice and become better for the year to come.

1 Even through a really tough season, humor can be found. Freshman Wyatt McCulley prepares to swing as the team looks on. "We were the two win wonders," McCulley said. 2 On the mound preparing for the throw is freshman Jason Hodge. "Baseball season was great and I have to say pitching was awesome," Hodge said. 3 Freshman Jeffrey Lindsey watches the ball after he hits it during a home game. "I love playing home games. Even though not very many people come to watch it's still a cool field to play on," Lindsey said.

1. Balance and momentum is a good thing to keep while rounding second base. Doing just that is freshman Matt Siebert. "Wow, I look better than [sophomore] Lee [Silvers]," Siebert said. 2. After diving for the ball and missing is sophomore Josiah Loughrige. "I dove for the ball and missed it. I was terrible, but the other 99% of the time I catch the ball," Loughrige said. 3. Silvers was strutting around after catching the ball, confident in the way he looks. "Dang, I look sexy in this uniform," Silvers said.

1. Hard at work is sophomore Jake Hoag. "I had to work really hard to earn my spot as first baseman, and now that I am there it feels great," Hoag said. 2. In the outfield is freshman Brandon Schroeder. "Baseball was fun even though we weren't that good," Schroeder said.

1 Keep your eye on the ball is a saying throughout many sports, however keeping your eye on the ball in baseball can help out a lot. "Usually you are supposed to keep your eye on the ball. But, at that particular time up to bat all I could think about was [junior] Charlie Ramos," senior Kevin Libbrecht said. 2 Pinch runners can play a major part of the game even though they aren't always playing. Senior Clint Burghdorf is doing just that. "Here I am being the pinch runner for Lil' [Ryan] Sharpley. This was usually the only time I got to play because I was so bad at batting. One time, I told myself to swing the bat, but for some reason I decided to kick the baseball instead," Burghdorf said. 3 When the pitcher can't find the ball, it may not be a good thing. "Uh-oh! Have you seen my baseballs?" senior Evan Sharpley said.

4 Coaches can help out the players, and sometimes even players help out the coaches. "The umpire made a bad call and I was getting ready to hold [Coach Jerry] Triece back, as he was telling me not to react to the bad call," junior Charlie Ramos said. 5 Down and ready for anything to come his way is sophomore Darren Langford. "I am always prepared. Anything that is hit towards me always ends up in my glove," Langford said. 6 Along the fence cheering on their teammate are senior Kyle Lautzenheiser and sophomore Mark Galloway. "I am pretty sure that we were watching [senior] Evan [Sharpley] bat, yeah we probably were.. we were always watching him," Galloway said. "I was standing up because Evan was up to bat and I knew he was going to hit a homerun," Lautzenheiser said.

Most catchers squat throughout the whole game, so it is not really a wonder why they have defined leg muscles. "Being a catcher is such hard work. I mean, just look at those leg muscles. I've definitely earned them," sophomore Ryan Sharpley said.

Sport seasons can have their good times and their bad times. "It was a fun season. We had some male bonding... and a few diseases," senior Rob Swanson said.

Stepping to the Plate

Glove: $70...Cleats: $90...Bat: $175...Having one of your key players go to a Division One college to further their career...Priceless.

If one wanted to go to the baseball game and did not know how to get there, here is a suggestion: stop and listen for a minute or two. As one approaches the baseball field, one can hear the fans cheering, the ball cracking off of the bat, and the familiar calls from the umpire: "Out!", "Safe!", "Ball!", and "Strike!". One of the "key" players contributing to the team was senior Evan Sharpley. "Evan was definitely one of the better players on our team. He contributed a lot to our team and I think he will help his team out at Notre Dame next year as well," junior Tyler Kelly said. Almost every team has their routines. "Every time someone hit a home run, we would all go to home plate, surround it, and cheer him on. Then as he came into home, we would congratulate him and someone would always hit their helmet against his," senior Shawn Diver said. Even individual players have their own routines. "I liked to sit on the bucket [of baseballs] during the games. When I sat on it, we played well. But, when I did not sit on it, we would not play so 'hot'," junior Josh Lord said. This season was full of mixed feelings. "This year was different than all of the other ones I have played. I am happy how we have all come together as a team. But I am also disappointed that we did not do better. We might have been able to do more, if we were more consistent," junior David Boehmer said. Although the team has had its ups and downs, they still managed to finish the season with a winning record of 19-11.

1. Being new to any sport can be tough. However, some players excel against the odds. "Even though it was my first year, I really tore it up on the course," freshman Lacey Plane said. 2. Sophomore Kadie Quada looks to see if her shot is lined up. "The top five did really well this year. Having such a young team this year, everyone did well," Quada said. 3. At the end of a season one of the best things could be to look back on how hard one worked to accomplish their goals. "As a team we improved so much. We worked hard all season and in the end it paid off," senior Marguerite Johnson said.

It's Tee Time

Golf Balls: $5...putter: $150...polo shirt: $50 ... growing as a team for next year...Priceless.

Some people may think that golf is an easy sport. However, if you ask many of the girls on the team they will tell you otherwise. "Lots of us have spent hundreds of dollars on lessons. We spend just as much time practicing as everyone else. We play nine every night along with practice for four hours," junior Elizabeth Leahy said. Along with practices, the girls have meets on any given combination of days during the week, including the weekends. This year, there was even a match on the day of prom. "The match was in Traverse City. We were unable to go because three of us were going to prom and there would have been only four girls left. There would not have been enough girls to officially compete," senior Marguerite Johnson said. With each match, the girls improved little by little. "As the days went on we gradually got better as a team. We each improved and worked better together," sophomore Amanda Haefele said. This year the girls played against Charlotte and Coldwater in the Marshall Invitational, the Big 16, and Regionals. Johnson qualified for state this year and shot an 88. The girls finished sixth of fifteen teams at the Big 16 Tournament and seventh of seventeen teams at Regionals.

1. Stereotypes can sometimes be hard to break. However, this year's team was able to do just that. "We surprised a lot of people this year because we did really well. Many people thought that we would not do well," junior Elizabeth Leahy said. 2. Every season can have its problems. Whether it be injury, illness, not doing as well as one would like, or having a divided team. "I thought that we had a good season even though we didn't make it to State as a team," freshman Taylor Giesen-Bayley said.

3. A young team can be an obstacle to overcome. "I was really nervous about this season. We had a very young team but we did really well," junior Elizabeth Leahy said. 4. Every game or match can be used as a learning experience. Freshman Taylor Giesen-Bayley stands next to a Charlotte player and watches the other girls play. "Charlotte was not a big competitor this year. It was a great opportunity to really focus and work on our skills," Giesen said. 5. Each year can be a chance to improve one's own personal statistics. "I did a lot better this year. I was really proud of how much I have improved," sophomore Amanda Haefele said. 6. Confidence can be one of the many keys to success. "I did really well this year. I was a sophomore and I was third on varsity. I was sweet," sophomore Kadie Quada said.

1. At the two mile at a home track meet is freshman Britta Seifert. "I was thinking about everyone I hate because they weren't running and how much pain I was in and they weren't, [and don't forget] the longer your race the cooler your face," Seifert said.

2. Sophomore Alisha Dadow is preparing for her hand off with senior Tiffany Silvers. "It was our first hand off together and it was fun to run with Tiffany on her last meet," Dadow said. 3. For many, track provides the opportunity to take their mind off of things. Running during a home meet are freshmen Christine Chaney and Abby Genise. "I enjoy running because it helps me take my mind off of things and I find it fun to run," Chaney said.

1. Focusing on the task at hand is freshman Christine Phillips. "I was trying not to trip because earlier I tripped while walking to my place, and I was also trying to finish," Phillips said. 2. While being counseled by Coach [Steve] Wissink, junior Tara Fitzsimmons prepared for her first track meet. "I joined the track team later in the season and it was the first meet and I was nervous and Coach Wissink was helping me out," Fitzsimmons said. 3. Many of the girls made the endeavor to state. Sophomore Kayla Vallar was one of the girls that went to state. "I was so pumped to make state. All of us girls did good even though we didn't win all the meets we still did a really good job, and got a lot of medals. I'm really proud of relay girls and definitely give credit to the coaches," Vallar said.

Baton:$15... set of 5 vaulting poles:$1,200... track spikes:$65... getting to run at state... Priceless.

1. Sophomore Ashley Smith was filled with many thoughts as she was running to pole vault. "God, I hope I make it over, I really hoped that I would make it," Smith said. 2. While many find it stressful to compete in their track events, many people find ways to loosen up and have some fun with their friends. Doing so are sophomores Erin Fitzpatrick and Katie Murphy, senior Leah Brown, and junior Sam Howard. "We were having fun and were trying to loosen up right before our meets," Fitzpatrick said.

While many people believe that track only consists of running, there are many other activities that are involved besides running. Many students find track to be an extra skill to pick up along the way that will help them physically. "I accomplished the art of running with shin splits, and I'll do track next year because all of the hotties will be there," sophomore Taylor Gilmore said. Team effort prevails in track more often than not, and many races are won by the mere seconds that team effort is demonstrated. "[There was] team effort on the four by two hundred relay. They had to make sure that they had their hand-offs right," sophomore Stephanie Parshall said. While participating in the events at state, the relay team for the eight hundred mile consisting of Emily Scherer, Kayla Vallar, Tiffany Silvers, and Maegan Hendershot, placed ninth. The realization that many athletes become aware of is the idea that they have many fans alongside the sideline cheering them on regardless of the outcome. "When you're running in a race the cheering of teammates makes you want to work your hardest," sophomore Lauren Kelley said.

1. "When I run the hurdles, it makes me feel like a leaping antelope," junior Jordan Dryer said. This year, there were opportunities to make memories too. "I remember when [junior] Nick Brubaker fell in the 300 Hurdles at Jackson Northwest. Wow, that was funny," Dryer said. 2. "I get set in my blocks, always look around, thinking to myself, I hope these guys aren't fast," sophomore Marcus Vallar said. 3. As junior Danny Nielson is flying over the bar, he shows that high jump can be very exciting to watch. "I do high jump because it's not just clearing the bar that feels sweet, but also having teammates cheer you on," Nielson said.

1. Distance could be one of the hardest events to run and not to mention the longest. Though, with everyone cheering you on, it could make a big difference. "My favorite part of the race is when I hear people cheering for me. It really does make you run faster," freshman Ben Hicks, running along with [freshman] Andrew Mickus, said. 2. Everyone may have their own way to unlock their full potential. Leading the way to the finish line is freshman Maurice Ansley. "The key to success is the weight room," Ansley said.

Track does not just include running events. In fact there are five different field events: high jump, long jump, pole vault, discus, and shot put. Soaring to clear the pole vault bar is sophomore Josh Parks. "At first it's scary to go up so high, but once you get used to it, it becomes natural," Parks said.

While racing on our home track against an opponent from Lakeview, junior Bryan Berger had his mind on other things, one of which was food. "I was really running to Taco Bell, but I kind of got lost," Berger said. While Berger never managed to make it to Taco Bell during the race, he did manage to place.

Relaying on Each Other

Track sweatshirt: $20...deodorant: $3...breaking your wrist as you cross the finish line and still managing to place...Priceless.

Imagine the sound of a gun piercing your ear, adrenaline rushing through your body as you chase to the finish line. Finally, breaking the tape and gasping for air, you realize your race is finished. This is what it can feel like to run for the boys track team. Winning is not everything. Between those long bus rides and running, jumping or throwing your PR, (personal record), may come not only the ups but downs that can make track what it is supposed to be. "A ton of new boys are going to contribute and score points in the next few years," coaches Steve Wissink, Ben Dorr and Jim Hendershot said. Teamwork may be defined as having teammates support you, whether it's holding your blocks or cheering you on. Track is a team sport, and relying on teammates could help add to your success. Even with the helpful hand, there were some down sides according to the team. "I learned a valuable lesson this year in track. You run with feet, not your hands," junior Ralph Ramon, who broke his wrist, said. When mistakes happen, sometimes it's hard to deal with. "I love throwing, but I hate throwing bad. When I do make a mistake, I get mad and start talking to myself," sophomore Jeremy Karns said. There are many different perspectives on what track is all about. "Still I love track because it's an individual sport, but at the same time you're helping the team," Karns said. For some, track is all about guys in short shorts, running in circles. For some though, it can be about that one priceless victory that can make the season worth all the work.

"Besides the wind in my hair, I run track because some people are so far in front of me, it looks like I'm ahead of them," junior Nick Dillman said.

1. Though many students may think that dissecting an animal is disgusting, some may think of it as a good learning experience. Senior Kelly Hughes works on putting her chicken bones together. "I think the chicken project was fun, and it was a great learning experience on the anatomy of a chicken," Hughes said. 2. English class is not all about writing papers and correcting grammar, it can also be fun. Juniors Emily Ours and Elizabeth Kipp participate in Huck Finn Days. "While reading the book Huck Finn, we did Huck Finn Days. Liz and I had a blast creating our clogging dance," Ours said. 3. Cadet teaching gives students the opportunity to work with younger kids. Senior Danielle Hainline works with a child while helping him read a book. "I enjoyed [cadet teaching] because I got to interact with many children and help them with their problems," Hainline said. 4. Health classes can really make a big impression on someone, especially when the electronic babies are sent home. "After having the baby, it showed me that having a kid is a lot of responsibility, and I don't want [kids] for a while," freshman Terrence Thurston said. 5. Helping fourth graders with geometry is junior Kellie Fry. "My group and I were singing a song about rays. We were also teaching the students about lines, segments, and planes," Fry said.

1. Mrs. [Diane] Long leans in to tell sophomore Morgan Buzzell one of her infamous stories. "I'm not sure what I was telling her, but I have a feeling it was something about Tampa and invading pirates," Long said. 2. Listening to Mrs. Long give advice are juniors Lindsey Reynolds and Sarah Karr, and sophomore Holly Carlton. "We were listening to Mrs. Long because she was telling us what we needed to do for the day, and that we needed to make sure everyone made the deadline on time," Reynolds said. 3. Assembling letters for Mrs. Long to send out are seniors Rebecca Arnold and Shu Ni, and sophomores Holly Carlton and Allyson Miko. "We do a lot of things for Mrs. Long so she doesn't have to worry about them and she can concentrate on the more important aspects of yearbook," Miko said. 4. Sophomore Katie Maynard and Miko are comparing pages with each other. "Allyson and I were correcting each other's pages before turning them into the editors. We like to check them first so the editors don't have as much work to do," Maynard said. 5. At the computer wrapping up their pages are sophomores Abbey Kidder and Erin Wills. "I was beginning to feel really stressed out because I was trying to get my page together, but I saved my pictures to the wrong folder, so I had to go back and resave them all," Wills said.

Making the Deadline

When signing up for yearbook, students might not really know what they are getting themselves into. It proves to be hard work from day one. However, in the end, most will find that every mind boggling moment is worth it. "Sometimes yearbook can be stressful, but when you see everyone finish their pages and the book gradually coming together, it makes it worth all of the extra work," senior editor Sheila Srinivasan said. It takes a lot of time, a positive attitude, and a good imagination to make the yearbook great. "I came into the class thinking this was going to be easy. After I realized it wasn't that easy, I still kept a positive attitude so I could continue coming up with new ideas. A lot of my seminars were spent in the yearbook room as well as many days after school," sophomore Megan Sherrill said. While yearbook can be difficult and time consuming, it can be a lot of fun. "I love all of the food we get to eat along with the random days Mrs. Long buys us pizza. I also really like listening to all the stories people share," sophomore Kayla Valler said. Countless hours of work, stressful deadlines, and a million copies later, yearbook students present a finished book to MHS, and that is priceless.

Admiring a previous yearbook is sophomore Meagan Pickering. "During lunch when me and my friend sophomore Bobbi Litton hang out in the yearbook room, we look through the old books and try to get new ideas to make the yearbook better," Pickering said.

With books on her head trying to keep it from exploding due to an information overdose is senior editor Amy Baker. "We were learning so much that day I thought I was going to go crazy. Yearbook is such an intense experience, but I love all of my yearbookers so much that it's worth it," Baker said.

Working at the computer to make a deadline are sophomores Amanda Miller and Megan Sherrill. "I really needed some help finishing up my page and Megan was there for me. She is such a good pal," Miller said.

1. After completing their articles for The Interchange, sophomores Rachel Russell and Kurt Juday are taking a well deserved break. "I was relaxing in class because we just finished the final layout for the paper," Russell said. 2. Juniors Sam Howard and Sean Schoenherr look over their articles to make a few final changes before they go to print. "Deadlines are really hectic, and I'm always pulling my hair out at the last minute. It's a wonder that I have any hair left," Howard said. 3. Being part of The Interchange staff requires a lot of creativity, efficiency, and a lot of thinking. "I was deep in thought. Newspaper does that to me. Being close to [senior] John Swender always makes me ponder the infinite universe," senior Jill Baylis said. 4. Junior Katherine Carlton works on correcting one of her articles for the newspaper. "It takes a lot of hard work and dedication, but when I see the paper come out at the end of the month, I have an amazing sense of accomplishment and pride," Carlton said. 5. Concentrating on the task at hand is sophomore Elaine Magiera. "Kurt and I were struggling to come up with ideas for the article we were co-writing. It's a lot of fun, but working together doesn't always make it easier. But we're a team, and our team wins," Magiera said.

Hot off the Press

When thinking of the newspaper, many do not think of how much hard work goes into producing one each month. Newspaper, however, can be a very hectic class. The students have the freedom to choose what they write, but they have to think also about what interests the readers. "The kids I get to hang out with in newspaper, the freedom of choosing and writing about what's important to me, everything I've learned has all made journalism, and block six in general, priceless," sophomore Elaine Magiera said. Even though it can take a lot of hard work and dedication, The Interchange staff can have their share of fun. There almost always seems to be laughing, since most of the kids in the class are doing something that they love. "Newspaper is a lot of work, and when it is close to the deadline, everyone is stressed out. I love producing The Interchange because when the students see what they wrote for the first time in print, and how everything looks when it's pulled together, they say with amazement in their eyes, 'Wow, I did this!' That's what newspaper is all about," advisor Diane Long said. Even though newspaper can be stressful, when the finished product comes out... priceless.

Looking at the computers with advisor Diane Long are seniors Rachel DeWolf and Lauren Hyland. "Mrs. Long was showing us pictures that we could use in the newspaper," Hyland said.

Demonstrating to fellow senior Matt Sherrill how to do something on the computer is Lindsey Merkel. "It's really important to try to produce a quality paper. Our goal is minimal suckage," Merkel said.

Seniors Grant Shymske and Sara Petrulis and junior Anna Pizzimenti work on their articles for the newspaper. There were only a few short days until the deadline. "I was busy working on finishing my article for The Interchange," Shymske said.

1. In order to play an instrument one has to have a sense of hard work and dedication. "Solo and ensemble is a very stressful time. Things happen that you don't want to. [Senior] Becky [Kish's] bridge fell off and we had to run and get my sister's [sophomore Katie Arnold] cello. We ended up with a three, but [junior] Sarah [Brewer], Becky, and I decided it didn't matter what we got. It's how we became closer in the months prior to ensemble," senior Rebecca Arnold said. 2. Hard work can really pay off. "When I practice with my orchestra class, we work really hard to get the music just right. I think of the future concerts and know that it has to sound good, so that is how I make it sound," senior Kate Grable said.

1. Concentrating on his music sheet is senior Kipp Caron. "There is so much emotion that I want to express. [Sophomore] Kurt [Juday] is my favorite tuba playing Juday," Caron said. 2. Seniors Joey Caron and Nichole Anderson march down the hall preceding [Thursday's] homecoming events. "As you can tell, I have an intense look on my face. I was determined to get the students pumped up," Caron said. 3. As he lifts the largest instrument, the tuba, Kurt Juday keeps his head up enough to keep playing. "Every day I look forward to going to band to make beautiful music with Kipp. I will remember it for all time," Juday said.

Facing the Music

Rosin: $5...drum sticks: $9...replacement reeds: $11...performing in concert...Priceless.

When one thinks of band and orchestra, one should think of great students who are dedicated to music. These students practice, and they practice hard to make it sound just right. "We work very hard to sound good. After our concerts [orchestra teacher] Mr. [Justin] Valla makes us all wonderful pancakes, and they are great," junior Sarah Karr said. Some of the best times come when you are in practice, and those can be the toughest and most challenging times too. "We work hard on overcoming the challenges of a hard piece. When we accomplish the piece, I feel that a great weight has been lifted off my shoulders. It's very rewarding in the end. Band is also cool because we go on sweet trips like to Disney World. Plus, we get into football and basketball games free," sophomore Ian Peters said. "As I walk onto the stage, the music notes run through my head. I get butterflies, so I take a deep breath to become more relaxed. The best part of band is the music we play. Concerts are a great way to show off our skills," junior Elizabeth Leahy said. In the end beautiful music is... priceless.

Preparing to march is sophomore Brendon Infante. "Band is fun and it gives me an opportunity to express myself in musical ways. I enjoy performing for other people. It's fun, especially the half time shows," Infante said.

In order to get ready for their Christmas concert, sophomore Ashli Brown and freshman Dana Lowell practice together. "Orchestra is fun because you get to know more people, and you get to play fun music," Lowell said.

Some people are just born to perform. Junior Jessica Lowell, sophomore Nathan Pallett, and junior Mark Hageman make the necessary preparations for their next performance. "We were having fun playing music. We were getting ready for a totally awesome, fun concert. It's the best part of orchestra, hands down," Pallett said.

Amanda

1. Junior Paige Gordeneer, senior Jessica Mees, and sophomore Sidne Lyon sing a tune during class. "I think we were working on Christmas music here. It must have been a weird spot in the music by the look on my face," Gordeneer said. 2. Chatting with the others during sectionals is junior Brandon deJong. "I'm so happy...maybe I should do my hair?" deJong said.

1. Working together on their music are sophomore Ashley Misenar and junior Amber Steele. "We were doing breath marks and working on stagger breathing," Steele said. 2. Sophomores Ashley Banister and Leandra Watson, senior Karin Irestahl, sophomore Rebekah Galang, and junior Aleah Burdine practice their music during class. "Women's Ensemble is a lot of fun and it takes a lot of work, but it pays off in the end," Banister said. 3. Burdine and junior Alexandria Gary compare their music together during class. "It's a great class. I have fun expressing myself through music," Gary said.

Sing Out

Music: $25...uniform material per person: $80...trip to Toronto: $675...having the chance to sing with friends and do what you love...Priceless.

There are many different parts to the choir, and many different groups to which one can belong. Women's Ensemble, Advanced Ensemble, Marshall Singers, and Mixed Choir are all options for singers to consider. "If your voice is trained, any instrument, in my opinion, will be easier to play because you can hear the pitch," junior Jared Loyer said. Throughout the year, students work not only in class, but also practice in sectionals during seminar. Students get the chance to work on many different aspects of music, get to meet new people with the same interest in music, and then get to perform their music at concerts during the year. "Marshall Singers has definitely done a lot for me, and that is priceless," senior Will Newton said. Many students also participate in Solo and Ensemble, which is when students get the chance to perform music for judges and then get rated on their performances. In February, the Marshall Singers received a division one rating at Solo and Ensemble. "Music has really influenced my life in such a big way. It changed my mind about the direction I want to go in college, and I plan to continue next year," senior Darin Deweese said. Even though the class takes hard work, focus, and dedication, most participants would say the class is well worth it.

Seniors Matt Sherrill and John Driscoll listen to Ms. Petrich talk about their parts for Marshall Singers. "Whenever Matt and I sing together and he gets lost, I just say, 'Do what your heart tells you.' That's what I always do," Driscoll said.

Juniors Jared Loyer and Brandon deJong study their music during sectionals. "Marshall Singers has helped to further develop my understanding of music and the theories behind it," Loyer said.

1. Foreign languages not only help students understand other cultures, but they also help to achieve a better understanding in classes like English. Junior Shawna Frohm helps fellow classmate junior Sam Jones count ballots for Latin Club elections. "I think Latin is a really good class because it helps with a lot of other things like English vocabulary," Frohm said. 2. Spanish is considered the second language of the United States. Though learning it can be stressful, it can also be useful. "I think Spanish is a good language to learn because it's a popular language and it's fun for me," junior Tara Fitzsimmons said.

1. Learning a language is not all about memorizing vocabulary. It also introduces people to other cultures. Freshman Kalyne Allard completes her shoe for French class. "I liked making French shoes. It was fun because it teaches us about French culture," Allard said. 2. Instead of leaving out stockings for Christmas, the French leave out small shoes that are then filled with candy or toys. Hoping to get her shoe filled with goodies, freshman Gabriela Fratta makes her shoe in French class. "I remember we were making the French shoes, and I couldn't keep it together. I tried everything: tape, glue, and even staples. It just wouldn't stay together," Fratta said. 3. Foreign languages seem to get harder as the years progress. "I have always liked Spanish. However, the fourth year was more difficult than the others," junior Ashleigh Lough said.

Freedom of Speech

Trip to Quebec: $1,500...spending money for Quebec: $500...duffle bag for clothes: $20...knowing the language that will help you on your trip...Priceless.

Learning another language can be a challenge, so having some fun helps. Junior Sam Howard is making a pinata in Spanish class. "I had fun making the pinatas because it gave us a break from the normal grind of Spanish class," Howard said.

More than three quarters of the student body are currently studying a foreign language. While learning a foreign language can be hard, especially during the first year, it can also help students prepare for their future. "Learning a new language is very difficult, but after the first week it became easier. I think learning a new language will really help me in my future," freshman Selina Ramirez said. Though some students don't take their studies seriously, others plan on using what they have learned later in life. "Without studying a foreign language in high school you will be very limited in the future," junior Salena Nickels said. Languages can help students with many things such as memorization skills and speaking skills, and it can also help them communicate better, even in English. "I think [studying a foreign language] helps them [the students] be better communicators. They can learn to express themselves better while helping them understand other people's cultures," French teacher Ruth Berryhill said. Not only can learning a new language help students prepare for college, it can also help them if they want to travel. "Learning a new language will help me because I plan to travel to France and learn more about the culture," sophomore Amanda Frye said. All in all, learning a foreign language can be a help to many students in the future.

When learning another language, one will have to use skills that one has already obtained from other sources. Junior Emily Kelly models the logo choices for the Latin club tee shirts along with juniors Sam Jones and Chris Walsh. "We were choosing a logo for our tee shirts, and I was showing off my mad Vanna White skills," Kelly said.

Concentrating on making her shoe for French class is senior Shallon Southwell. "Making the shoes was pretty hard because they wouldn't stay together, but having them filled with chocolate and then eating the chocolate was really cool," Southwell said.

1. Hopefully, Mr. James Telfer has his thinking cap on because freshman Peter Newton and sophomore Eric Ebner have some questions for him. "Peter and Eric were waiting to get advice on their story telling selection," Mr. Telfer said. 2. Seniors Josh Carlton, Tory Ledbetter and sophomore Kimberly Ross take notes on public speaking. "This class will prepare someone for public speaking, and it will improve their self-esteem for future interviews," Carlton said. 3. Sometimes the littlest things can make or break a paper. Freshman Josh Damron concentrates closely on his interpretive writings. "This year for forensics I am doing [an impersonation of] Jeff Foxworthy," Damron said.

Case and Point

Podium: $40...legal notepad: $6...three ring binder: $2...meeting the exact time limit...Priceless.

Do you always seem to be able to get yourself in front of a group of people and entertain them with either an act or an argument? Forensics or debate may be just the class for you. This year the debate students have only one topic on their minds. Should the United States Government support the United Nations peacekeeping operations or not? Asking the students this question will not get an answer either because they have been divided in half to debate this argument. This year at state competition, Anna Pizzimenti, Chris Walsh, Caitlin Wills, and Kevin Fleury came back from state with a ninth place award out of division three. "Debate is a good outlet for my argumentative personality," sophomore Caitlin Wills said. At the end of the forensics semester, the strongest students participate in a competition that has twelve events. Six of them are interpretive reading events. "I hook up with my friends really early in the morning and we compete. At the end of the day if we do well, then cool," senior Sebastian Smith said. Competitions aside, what makes debate and forensics priceless is learning from Mr. James Telfer, the man of 105 years of debate and forensics teaching excellence.

1. Some people take a class for easy credits, but seniors Kipp Caron, Tim Posler and junior Max Pickering take Forensics because they are genuinely interested. "Forensics is a cool class because I am surrounded by people I know, and we are all interested in it," Pickering said. 2. Taking in life with a side of Coke is junior Sam Rodriguez. "I go to Burger King every morning to get free food. Mr. Telfer is cool about it eating in class," Rodriguez said. 3. Forensics isn't for everyone. In sophomore Amanda Newman's case this proved to be true. "I thought it would be a good class, but the speeches just weren't for me," Newman said. 4. Early mornings plus pages of notes equals one sleepy sophomore Kara Sherman. "I was really tired because we were taking notes. Not surprised, because we always do," Sherman said. 5. Look at that happy face. Sophomore Eric Ebner can't help but express his true feelings about notes. "It was note taking time, and I was loving it," Ebner said.

1. Ready to serve to his opponents, Mr. Tom Reynolds interacts with his students. “[Senior] Ashton [Anthony] and I were engaged in a huge death match badmitten game against [sophomore] Remy [Dillon] and [sophomore] Josiah [Loughrige]. I was getting ready to serve up a devastating, nonreturnable serve. Of course, we got the point,” Reynolds said. 2. After her fall, senior Meagan Mackey helps senior Tearynne Glover off the floor. “We were playing basketball, and [senior Justin] Van-hoose was telling me to get on defense. I tried a little too hard, and as I went to go and guard someone, my body went the other way, and I fell on my ankle,” Glover said.

1. Freshmen Annan Codde and Kyley Hakes practice their knitting skills while learning how to make scarves. “I was showing Kyley how to take a knot out. We were knitting the whole day and our hands were getting tired, but it was fun,” Codde said. 2. A needle and yarn in their hands, sophmores Adam Kingston and Jordan Sander concentrate on making their scarves. “I was trying to finish my scarf that I had to make, while helping Adam too because he didn’t understand what was going on,” Sander said. 3. Together, juniors Teresa Taft and Molly Duckwall, and sophomore Sarah Willet bake in the kitchen. “We were making cookies all day, and we were about to put them in the oven,” Taft said.

On the court playing a game of basketball in gym class, senior Andrew "Stix" Hunt dribbles the ball around senior David Walters. "I shook Walters and dunked on him as he tried to take the ball from me," Hunt said.

Interaction Satisfaction

Tennis shoes: $50...spare face shield: $1...yarn: $3...getting your first kiss from a CPR dummy...Priceless.

Classes where you just sit and take notes can get exceptionally boring. Unlike these classes, health, home economics, and gym use a more hands-on form of learning. Some of the highlights in health that you may remember could be the CPR dummies or the Baby Think It Over program. "Health is a kind of class where you learn how to affect your own and others lives individually, such as learning how to save someone's life with CPR," freshman Taft Tice said. Health and Design for Living are two classes that offer skills that may be useful in the future. Whether it's sewing, cooking, or planning a meal, you can use what you learn in Design for Living in your home life. "I enjoy Design for Living because I can use the things I learn in life. I like to cook, and I like spending time with Mrs. Tobey," sophomore Katie Fish said. In gym class, you can become involved in games or other activities that you enjoy, like basketball, kickball, or witch doctor. "I like taking a gym class because you can play sports that you like, [and also some] that you typically wouldn't play. It's about having fun and staying in shape," sophomore Amanda Hageman said. Although gym is only required freshman year, many others enjoy it and decide to take it as an elective for the years that follow. These classes all help students learn new things hands-on, and get students more involved and interacted in what they are learning.

Along with freshmen Gabi Fratta, Taylor Potter, and Katy Dow, freshman Adrienne Merrild practices her newly learned CPR skills. "We were practicing on infants. It wasn't very fun, but I think it was important," Merrild said.

1. Sophomore Jenna Kiessling glues together a sculpture project. "I was concentrating on getting my sculpture done. My favorite part was using the glue gun," Kiessling said. 2. Working on a blind sculpture project is freshman Coty Luke. "I like drawing the most, and I plan on taking art all four years," Luke said. 3. Down in the wood shop Andrew Blankney and Austin Lons are putting the final touches on the projects. "My favorite project this year has been cabinets, and I plan on taking wood shop for the next three years," sophomore Jeremy Olding said.

Creating the Arts

Paint brushes: $4...computers: $400... drill: $70... creating a masterpiece...Priceless.

Drilling, painting, and typing are all artistic abilities that come from the right side of your brain. "I plan on taking art my junior and senior year. Although it is mainly a hobby, I believe that it will help me in the future," sophomore Sarah Grable said. Art, Industry, and Computer classes are electives that may help you and your career in the future. Industry classes are electives that students take to improve their mechanical skills, and some people are taking them as a start to their college degrees and future jobs. "I'm only planning on taking industry classes this year, but the skills that I've learned will help me later in life," sophomore Ryan Sharpley said. The computer classes that are offered here are all very helpful for business life and every day high school life. Information Technology is the only required computer class, and it can be a big help to all high schoolers, as it focuses on typing and the main programs in Microsoft. "Info. Tech. was educational and I plan on using the skills in my business career," freshman Laura Misiak said. These electives could very well be the beginning of a career...priceless.

1. Senior Sheila Srinivasan draws during her independent study with Ms. Garrison. "Art this year, for me, has been a lot different than the last three years. It's much less structured because I have it as an independent study, but oh well," Srinivasan said. 2. Using the circular saw in woods class is senior Greg Reed. "This year we've only done one project: foot stools. This project wasn't very hard, but it was a lot of fun," Reed said. 3. Senior Joey Caron talks with Mrs. Christine Davis about his assignment. "Mrs. Davis loves it when I turn in other things with my assignments," Caron said. 4. In Mrs. Davis' computer class is senior Kelsey Travis. "I love my office practice with Mrs. Davis. She always makes me type her papers," Travis said. 5. Washing up after wood shop is freshman Eric Vaught. "I like to make things, and I like South Park," Vaught said.

1. While Mr. [Jody] Foreman teaches, senior Rachel Corrales turns to join into a conversation. "I was just laughing at the stupid comments from the people next to me," Corrales said. 2. Seeming quite interested in Mr. [Adrian] Harkey's speech is junior Ben Hill. "Oh, you know. Another excruciating day in Harkey's business class. Just kidding, it will help me in the future," Hill said. 3. As sophomore Andy Fox steps up to the podium, he demonstrates his business skill. "I was acting very business-like while giving a speech in Harkey's class," Fox said.

Selling the Goods

Calculator: $40...econ hoodies: $30...buying stocks: $2...knowing you are ready for the real world...Priceless.

As a required class for seniors, econ is taken seriously by some and not by others. Business can also be looked at in that way, except it can be taken during any year of high school and is not required. "Mr. Harkey's lessons will make me go far in life," senior Kevin Libbrecht said. Both are preparations for the real world. "If I were to start up a business of my own in the future, I think Econ would really help me out. It deals a lot with sales and marketing. It's also really easy to pass," senior Justin Vanhooze said. The importance of business and econ are usually recognizable throughout the world. "I think that econ is a good class. Even if you didn't go get a job that's related, it'll help you out," senior Andrea Phillips said. These classes teach a lot about life and help people better understand the professional world. "There were a lot of things that I learned in econ that business didn't show me. I think it would be good to take both classes if you were going to be in sales after graduation," senior Matt Stefan said. Each econ class sells a product such as wristbands, bandanas, sweatshirts, and water bottles to teach the responsibility of ordering, money handling, and advertising. While a lot of work is involved, the end product is...priceless.

1. Making econ a fun place to be is senior Kipp Caron. "[Senior] Steve [Sachs] and I were just discussing the fun involved in econ," Caron said. 2. As junior Cam Wood talks with his friend sophomore Matt Hoag, they listen to Mr. [Adrian] Harkey's speech. "It's important to listen to Harkey because everyone needs to know how to speak in front of large groups of people," Wood said. 3. Mr. Harkey thinks it is important for all people to have the skills learned in busniess. "It's important because you have to be able to communicate in all aspects of life. Not only business," Harkey said. 4. According to senior Morgan Damron, econ is a beneficial class. "Foreman teaches us things that will prevent us from choking later in life," Damron said. 5. Daydreaming the class away is sophomore Casey Barnes. "Sometimes I really enjoy what Mr. Harkey talks about. It can be interesting. But I was just a little out of it," Barnes said.

1. Junior David Boehmer and seniors Emily Sander and Katie Risnes are working on a lab in AP Statistics. "The class is fun because people like [junior] Mike [Edwardson] and [senior] Evan [Sharpley] are in there, but the tests are hard," Boehmer said. 2. Thinking of reasons for why you are a certain color in social issues are freshmen Britta Seifert and Mitch Kirylo. "The true color activity kind of helped me figure out why I have done the things I did, but I felt I was categorizing myself a little," Seifert said. 3. In chemistry class, sophomores Brian Lucke and Michael VanDerMeulen are making Christmas ornaments. "Chemistry labs are a lot better than taking notes because it is a lot less work, and I can talk to friends," Lucke said.

When thinking about math, science, and social studies, everyone might think of something different. "Even though they're [math, science and social studies] not the most fun, you always get something back. You get back knowledge that you don't know, but you need to know," sophomore Echo Wright said. When people are asked about an average class and what sticks out, the responses vary. "Fumbling around with a graphing calculator stands out in my mind," senior John Swender said. After all the homework and projects, students can still come away with more than what they started. "Math helps me develop my [mathematical] skills. [In] social studies I learn about our past and other [people's] culture," sophomore Sara Grable said. The best experiences are not always what they learn, but perhaps it is how they learned it. "I liked going to the river despite the fact I managed to fall in," freshman Abigail Longhurst said. With all these classes, students get the opportunity to understand the world they live in a little more. "Almost every career requires you to have some sort of background involving math and science. Although I dislike math, [it's] essential," junior Mark Olding said. Having the knowledge to make it in the real world...priceless.

1. In eighth block economics, seniors Rebecca Arnold, Jenna Sopko, Kathrin Bungenberg, Viviane Silva, Drew Brubaker, and Kevin Libbrecht are voting on what product to sell to the students. "Everyone was getting mad because we couldn't figure out [something] to sell that everyone would agree on," Sopko said. 2. Showing some fourth graders the hand movements in a geometry song are sophomore Shannon Tobin and freshman Amy Baranowski. "We were teaching the fourth graders about geometry and the hand movements that went along with the song. They really liked the song and sang it over and over again," Baranowski said. 3. Doing some research in biology are sophomores Kristen Hydon and Marissa Kinsley. "We were talking about how hot we look in goggles, and we were making a pie chart of people in our class that also look hot in goggles," Hydon said. 4. Juniors Jessica Lowell and Sarah Brewer are putting their chicken back together after dissecting it in anatomy. "Jessica and I had fun squeezing all the chicken organs," Brewer said. 5. Listening to the experiences of World War II from veterans themselves are juniors Katherine Carlton, Michael Maynard and Ashley Hatton. "I think it just made World War II a lot more interesting, and gave you an insight of the plight of the soldiers, hearing it from them, and not just reading it out of the textbook," Carlton said.

1. After eating lunch, junior Jared Loyer walks out of Jade Garden. "I really like Jade Garden because they have really good food and great service," Loyer said. 2. Enjoying a cup of hot chocolate is sophomore Katherine Buckenberger drinks a coffee outside of the Coffee Mill. "It's a good place to go and hang out with your friends while you enjoy a hot drink or a brownie," Buckenberger said. 3. Sophomore Caitlin Wills leaves Darling and Daughter's. "I like to shop at V & S because I get a discount," Wills said. 4. Gazing at a necklace in David's jeweler's is sophomore Ashley Rohn. "There was this really pretty necklace that caught my eye right away," Rohn said. 5. Juniors Kam Loveless, Katherine Carlton, and Chela VanSickle enjoy the parade after a dinner at Mancino's. "We had just enjoyed a lovely dinner at Mancino's and we were freezing while watching the parade," Loveless said.

1. Throughout an average day in high school, things may tend to get a little bit boring. That is why it can be good to have people like sophomores Danielle Krimmel and Bobbi Litton around. "Usually when people get their picture taken they just smile, but not me! I thought I'd switch it up and be kind of spontaneous," Litton said. 2. "I was carving a 'Nightmare Before Christmas' pumpkin. You can't carve through more than the first layer otherwise it's ruined. It's all about the technique," sophomore Dallas Dingman said.

At four corners are sophomore Gannon Switzer, senior Emily Scaers, and sophomore Justin Miller.

"I love blow pops, especially the purple ones. I can't believe I actually ate lunch because I was talking so much," Switzer said.

1. Chilling on first base during the gym game mat ball are seniors Amber Petersen and Katie Wolf, and freshman Kelly Morrison. "Amber and I always wait until the last minute, to make sure that the coast is clear," Wolf said. Getting ready to make their big run to second base, Petersen thinks, "The team is always stacked when me and Katie are on it," Petersen said. 2. The dodgeball game between the staff and students made some people go a little crazy. "Guns aren't allowed in school, but here's two locked and loaded," Mr. [Joel] Ritter said. 3. Sophomore Jacob Crull positions himself to make a catch during Thursday's homecoming events. "[The] sophomore class is so dominant that we always win the football hike and beat the seniors butts," Crull said.

Representing the sophomore class are Jacob Crull, Colin McCloskey, Amanda Jeffreys and Casey Byrne. "It was really hard to shoot the football like a basketball. So, I decided to rock it granny style," Byrne said.

Freshman Jason Hodge pitches during a home baseball game. "I pitched a change up to strike the guy out," Hodge said.

Amanda Sobel

Amanda,
You have always made us proud! Good luck at Albion College.

We wish you enough sun to keep your attitude bright, as well as enough rain to appreciate the sun more. We wish you enough happiness to keep your spirit alive, yet enough pain so that the smallest joys in life appear much bigger. We wish you enough gain to satisfy your wanting, but also enough loss to appreciate all that you possess. We wish you enough hellos to get you through the final good-byes.

We love you, and we are very proud of you!
Mom, Dad, Brett, and Travis

Joey Caron

Mr. President, congratulations on four great years! Joey, we couldn't be more proud of you. Much success at Michigan State. We know you are destined to do great things.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Jessie

Zach Wilson

Zach,

We are so proud of you and all your academic and athletic achievements throughout high school. You have worked hard and accomplished a lot. Set goals and we know you will have a great future.

Congratulations and much love,
Mom and Dad

Swimming during practice is sophomore Ashley Damon. "We had just won a meet, so everyone decided to have an easy practice," Damon said.

"The retro dance was fun, even though I looked really stupid, but I'm sexy, so I don't care," senior Jill Baylis said. Practicing his kayaking skills is senior Steve Sachs. "My speeches were like the freshman baseball team, terrible," Sachs said.

Neal Dopp-

May your future be as bright as childhood smiles. We hope your life is filled with love, happiness and success. You are an amazing young man!

Love,
Mom, Dad, Grandma, Hallie and Drake

Jessica Burmeister,

We are both so proud in what you have accomplished so far in your life and wish you the best of luck and joy in what is yet to come. They say what you overcome helps to define you as a person. And because with what you have overcome, it has helped you become a wonderful and loving daughter, and the beautiful young woman that you are today... May you reach for and catch all of your dreams now and in the future.

Love, Mom and Dad

Sean Brumbaugh

Having you for a son has been a blessing. From kindergarten to your senior year, you have made us proud. Congratulations on your graduation. Watching you grow into the unique, talented, and caring young man has been a joy. Good luck at Concordia University and remember we'll never be far away.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Clint Burghdorf

Dear Clint,

You are our little crowned prince who definitely knows how to follow your dreams, and the meaning of working hard! You have given 110% every step of the way. You know and display honesty, integrity and character, and that says a lot for a young man your age. But the greatest gift you possess is your knowledge of Jesus Christ, your Lord and Savior.

Follow your dreams and keep the good Lord #1 in your life, and He will guide you all the way! We love you, son, and are so proud of the young man you have become!

With Love,
Mom, Dad, Tyler,
& Cody

Seniors Joey Caron, Karla Stevenson, and Krista Trehwella have an inside meeting at the book store. "We usually have to conduct our book store meetings in secrecy. I don't know how this photo was able to be taken," Stevenson said.

Jill Baylis

Congratulations on your graduation from Marshall High School, Jill. We are very proud of you and all that you have accomplished. Best wishes as you continue your journey in college.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Kyle Sinclair

Kyle,

Congratulations on your graduation! We're very proud of you. It has been a short 18 years with so many cherished memories. We have learned as parents what it's like to have our hearts full of joy and pride from watching you grow and mature, and become the person that will forever have an irreplaceable place in our hearts.

Love,

Mom, Dad, Tanner and Grandma

Colophon

The 2005 Marshall High School Yearbook, THE DIAL, is 251 pages in length with 28 pages of color and an 8 page color tip-in. All page layouts were created by the yearbook staff and used in the program Adobe Indesign CS. The yearbook is nine by eleven inches in size. All photographs were scanned and placed using Adobe Photoshop CS. Underclassmen photographs and team photographs were taken by Prater Studios. Senior photographs were taken by a variety of private photographers. All candid pictures were taken by yearbook staffers using digital and traditional cameras. Cannon Digital Rebels were used for digital pictures and Cannon Rebel 2000s were used for traditional photographs. All traditional photographs were developed by K Mart. The yearbook costs about $32,600 to publish, and part of the total was raised from pizza fundraisers and community advertisements sold by the staff. This year it cost $48 to purchase a yearbook. The yearbook staff includes one advisor, Diane Long, three editors: Amy Baker, Sheila Srinivasan, and Lindsey Reynolds, and 31 staffers: Briana Ramirez, Katie Maynard, Amanda Willerick, Shannon Tobin, Megan Sherrill, Amanda Miller, Bobbi Litton, Shannon Bridges, Emily Neil, Shu Ni, Kara Evans, Meagan Pickering, Abbey Kidder, Jill Baylis, Casey Byrne, Ashley Goodrich, Kayla Vallar, Katy Dulaney, Allison Miltenberger, Allyson Miko, Craig Thomas, Katie Buckenberger, Erin Wills, Amanda Jeffreys, Morgan Buzzell, Michelle Shoup, and Lucas Fratta. Missing from photo: Katie Arnold, Rebecca Arnold, Holly Carlton, and Sarah Karr.

Walking out on the last day...

Priceless.

Every year comes to an end. The doors close and the halls are left empty. The schedule of the bells is interrupted, with the school left in silence. Lockers are left open and the books that normally occupy their shelves are put away for a summer of rest. For the students, the end of the school year means sleeping in, finding a job, and for some just getting to enjoy the sun. "Being done with high school makes me look back and think about all the good times I had at Marshall High. Senior year turned out perfectly," senior John Swender said. The 2004- 2005 school year brought a big change to the high school and the town. The name Redhawks was chosen by the students and a logo was designed and picked. "I really liked the Redskins. But at the same time I'm just glad to be moving on," sophomore Dustin Goodnight said. The students chose the nickname and voted on numerous occasions to narrow down the names and logos. "It was such a big moment for me, after working all year on picking a nickname, and seeing people finally agree to move on. Getting to announce the winner with two of my best friends [seniors Mike Hughes and Joe Caron] was the most priceless moment during high school for me," senior Steve Sachs said. While choosing the nickname was one of the most priceless moments for some this year, for others it was a simple moment with friends. "I was suprised by how fast freshman year went by. I really enjoyed meeting some new people and just making friends. My best times were playing sports with them," freshman Gretchen Suehr said. But for some people, walking out on the last day, remembering the good times had with friends, and the laughs you had during class are the most priceless moments of all.
