Introduction:

Hey Hey!

First off we wanted to say a HUGE THANK YOU! for purchasing our course and we look forward to helping you get started with building Authority Niche sites that Google LOVES.

We have poured our heart and soul into this course and wanted to really stack the value high so you can walk away knowing EXACTLY what you need to do to get started with building an authority site.

A few things we do want to mention before you dive in is:

1. This is NOT a get rich quick scheme. Making money online no matter what strategy you decide upon will take hard work and dedication on your part to become successful.

If you bought this program expecting us to have the Holly Grail of Loopholes that will make you Millions by next Thursday then please send us an email and ask for a refund because you are going to be highly disappointed.

But on the other hand if you are looking to build a long term business online and are willing to take the time to not only LEARN the business but TAKE ACTION by following a proven systematic approach to building authority websites then Congratulations we are going to take you on the ride of your LIFE!

Our goal by the end of this report is for you to not only better understand the power of SEO and how it works but to also know EXACTLY where to start to gain the results you are looking for.

You see the great thing about building Authority sites is that once you know and have a system you can follow, the sky is the limit on the amount of income you can generate.

To see just how powerful building niche sites can be we challenge you to do focus on nothing else for the next 3-6months and just simple focus on implementing and following what we outline in the report and see just how well it works.

You see one problem too many people trying to make money online have is jumping from one strategy to the next without sticking to one long enough to actually make money with it. So will you be one of the few who actually takes this report and runs with it? Or will you be the person who by next week is on to the next shiny object?

2. We have left NOTHING out in this report. You can take all the information contained herein and take the Google world by storm. That being said we have included all of our resources that we personally use in our business. Some free and some paid.

The free ones are free of course and the paid one's may have a small one time fee or a small monthly fee that we may get a commission from if you purchase using our link. This is 100% your choice and if you rather go to the website directly and not use our link then you are free to do that.

Also just because we mention a paid resource in the course we do not want you to feel as if you will not be able to make this work if you can't afford that particular service.

When I first got started I literally had 0 dollars to invest in paid services. I built ALL my links by hand until my sites started generating enough income to where I can start purchasing tools to make my life easier.

I also did my best to provide you with alternative FREE ways of getting the same results if you are one of those people who cannot invest in any services starting out.

Enough about that let's jump right into this bad boy!

Let's Begin:

All right guys so over the next few pages we are going to get into some of the most effective and powerful information to help you better understand SEO and how to get your websites ranked in Google - FAST.

When it comes to SEO it really comes down to 4 major things:

1. Niche Selection: Selecting a niche is probably going to be the toughest thing for many of you because EVERYONE wants to know the answer to the golden question: What is the BEST niche to go after?
2. Good keyword research: This is probably the most important step to the whole SEO process because the last thing you want to do is build a whole SEO campaign, spend months after months working your ass off to rank for a keyword that at the end of the day will not produce any results.
3. On Page SEO: Once you have your keywords picked out it's time to optimize the content on your website so that Google knows exactly what your website is about. We will be covering exactly how to structure your content properly for maximum results.
4. Off Page SEO: Once you have your website properly optimized it is time to get the buzz going about your site. Off Page SEO is basically getting links from high authority relevant places to let Google know your site is relevant for the terms you are trying to rank for. Here we are going to be covering many different back linking strategies like social signals, press releases (the free and cheap way), guest blogging (the easy way), web 2.0's, bookmarking, member blogs, but not only where to get these links but how to set it up for maximum results.

So let's not waste anymore time and get started.

Niche Selection:

So what is the best niche to get started in? The right answer is the famous "It Depends." It depends on what you know a lot about, what you know very little about, your budget, etc. If you will be writing the content yourself, outsourcing the content etc.

But over the next few sentences I hope to give you a guideline to helping you find the right niche for you.

There are a couple things you want to make sure you are looking for when deciding whether a niche is a good niche to enter.

A. Is it an evergreen niche? I personally love building sites in an evergreen niche because there will always be content for you to publish and you can expect to make money from that site today and for years to come.

B. Is it a buyers niche? Are people willing to spend money in the niche you are considering? One of the best ways to find out if people are spending money in your possible niche is to do a quick Google search and see how many advertisements shows up on the page.

If there are loads of advertising then that's a good sign people are spending money in that niche because companies are paying for that traffic.

If there are little to no ads showing up then it's a possible sign that not many people are spending money in that niche.

The reason you want to know if it's a buyers niche is because we want people who are going to be clicking on links and banners on your site which is how we get paid.

Regardless if the ads you are showing on your site are AdSense, Amazon, Clickbank etc you will not make any money if you are not in a buyers niche.

C. Get Targeted in Your Niche: One of the biggest problems many people make is being WAYY to broad in their niche selection.

It is no secret that going after the weight loss niche is a HUGE niche and perfect for making money online. BUT you have to be able to break it down and get really specific as to what sub niche within the weight loss niche you want to target.

Do you want to go after women?

Do you want to go after men?

Women who just had a baby?

Women over 40?

Men looking to get shredded abs?

Men looking to get bigger biceps?

Do you want to target Vegans?

Vegetarians?

You see all of these are big niches under the big health/weight loss umbrella and you can build an authority site in these kind of sub niches.

One last thing to keep in mind about niche selection is if you can identify a problem and put up a site that gives people valuable information along with a solution to that problem then you can make boat loads of cash with authority sites.

So those are just a few things to keep in mind on deciding what niche to enter.

It also helps to know a little about the subject of the first site you decide to put up.

Take me for example the first niche site I ever put up was about how to play Chess. My father taught me at a very early age how to play chess and it's a game that I still play to this day. So I truly enjoyed putting together that site.

Important Note*

If you were born under a rock and don't have a talent or know a lot about a particular subject then it doesn't really matter because we are going to talk about how you can either pay someone to write for you or how to properly research information to put together a high quality article yourself.

Keyword Research:

Keyword Research is really a skill all on it's own. If you get this wrong then you are going to be extremely frustrated when you spend months ranking for a keyword that ends up being a dud.

I am going to cover a few tips when it comes to keywords research here, but the best way to learn is to just go out there and do it.

No matter what niche you are in you are going to approach keyword research the same. Regardless whether your site is an authority niche site, e-commerce site, or a site promoting your own products/services.

It really does not matter what you are promoting the keyword research is always going to be the same.

You are going to find buyer keywords that get decent search volume and have acceptable levels of competition that will allow you to rank within 30 days - 3 months.

The key point here is BUYER keywords just as I mentioned before when talking about selecting a buyer's niche you want to keep that same mentality when finding keywords. Why do you want to target buyer keywords? It's simple, we are in this business to make money and we make the most money when people are in a buying mood.

A few examples of good buyer keywords are:

1. Review keywords: These are my favorite kind of keywords to target because the likelihood of someone making a purchase comes down to how well your review is put together and how well you guide them to make their final buying decision. Many times it's as easy as just validating why they SHOULD buy the product and where to get the best deal. (by clicking on your affiliate link of course)
2. Specific Product Model's: This goes hand in hand with the review keywords. If someone is searching for information on a particular model of a product then you can be rest assured they know what they want and are working their way down the buying cycle.
3. A few other types of Keywords that are good to target are keywords that identify a problem and you are able to provide them a solution on your website.

A lot of these keywords will start with words like:

How To
How To Stop
How To Prevent
How To Cure

So for example if someone is searching for "How To get rid of acne" you can provide a complete article outlining the different options on the market for treating acne.

I personally don't like to target keywords that get under 1,000 exact searches per month. The reason for that is because a position #1 in Google will get you about 40-50% of the traffic for any particular keyword.

If you are ranked #1 for a term that gets 1,000 exact searches per month you can anticipate getting 300-500 visitors per month for that keyword.

Now the way that I like to build out my sites I tend to target 15-30 keywords all who get about 1,000 searches per month so you can see how easily the monthly visitors start to add up.

I also sometimes bundle up variations of the same keyword to equal up to 1,000 searches per month. So let's say I find 2 keywords like "xyz product reviews" and "xyz product review" both who get 500 searches per month, I would then optimize one article on my site to rank for both keyword terms.

That way I still get the 1,000 exact searches but broken up into 2 keywords. And YES you can rank the same blog post on your blog for multiple keywords.

I've even gone as far as targeting one blog post for 3 different keywords. If one keyword gets 390 exact searches per month, the second gets 300 and the third gets 350 but they're all the variation of the same keyword then I would optimize one blog post for all 3 keywords.

I do want to be mention really quick that you do NOT have to just go after 1,000 searches per month. This is just my preference and how I choose to build my sites. You can do extremely well by targeting long tail keywords per blog post that each get 300-500 searches per month. You can publish 5-10 articles targeting long tail keywords and still get some good traffic. I don't want you to get discouraged if you are having trouble finding those 1,000 search keywords.

4. One last kind of keyword that you can target are celebrity terms. A lot of times when a product is being promoted heavily via TV, Radio etc the audience may not remember the name of the product, but they remember the name of the celebrity endorsing the product.

A perfect example of this is the Nikon 1 camera. Many people see the commercials and won't remember that it's called Nikon 1, but what they will remember is that Ashton Kutcher was endorsing it.

This causes people to go to Google and search things like "Ashton Kutcher Camera"

Another example of this is Lancome Perfume. Many women don't remember the name of the perfume, but they'll Google "Julia Roberts perfume"

You can make a TON of money targeting celebrity terms like this. Do you know of a big celebrity that's lost a lot of weight recently?

Do research for "celebrity name workout plan"

Now that we have keyword research out of the way it is time to get our website properly optimized.

On Page Optimization:

Domain Selection:

Now before you even think about doing the on page optimization on your website you need to first have a domain name. Now I won't go into how to buy a domain as that is very self-explanatory and whether you decide to go with Namecheap or Godaddy is up to you. (I personally recommend Namecheap since there is no upsells at all)

Since we are going to be building an Authority domain I suggest you pick something with some brand value.

Think cnet.com, engadget.com two of the biggest review sites when it comes to electronics and neither of them have an exact match domain for any particular keyword but yet are HUGE authorities.

Those are the kinds of sites you should be thinking about building from here on out. The way I look at it is as follows; you can either put up 100 small niche sites, each targeting a different keyword/product which means:

- You will need to buy 100 different domains
- Install Wordpress 100 times
- Install Your Preferred Plugins 100 Times
- etc etc 100 times.

OR you can:

- Buy 1 General Brandable Domain
- Install Wordpress Once
- Configure Your Preferred Plugins just once
- Publish 20,30,40,100 Articles under that same domain each targeting a different keyword

The later of the two will position you as the authority in your niche giving you more trust in Google's eyes while small niche sites leave you more open to penalty updates etc.

You will also start to see that your pages start ranking a lot faster just from gaining the trust of Google and continuing to grow your site.

Don't over think the selection of your brand able domain either. Just think about some of the biggest brands out there like the word Google, who would've ever thought something like the word Google could grow into the brand that it is today. Or take Amazon for instance, there is nothing in that word that tells you they are one of the largest e-commerce sites online. In both those examples they had to develop their brand into what it is today.

So once you have your domain selected it's time to start your site structure planning.

Site Structure Planning:

The point of building an authority site is to be able to publish content in various types of sub categories within your major niche.

There are a few things you want to keep in mind when building an authority site:

1. Each new post that you will be publishing will be properly researched for keywords to target. Both short tail and long tail keywords. Essentially you are going to want to get traffic from every single post on your blog. I really don't see the point of publishing articles for keywords no one is actually searching for.
2. Each new post will be properly optimized for the target keywords identified in step 1. The great thing about building an authority site is that not only will you begin to see traffic coming in to your site from your exact keyword you will also start to see traffic from "broad" and "phrase" match variations of your target keywords also known as "long tail keywords"

You can also easily optimize each post for multiple keywords as I mentioned previously. This can easily be done by mixing up the header tags for the different keywords, varying up the anchor text from your internal links from other posts, sprinkling the different terms in the article (wherever possible - if it does not read well do not insert your keyword) and also switching up the Alt text of the images used in your article assuming you are using more than one image.

3. Every post will also undergo their own back linking campaign as well as proper internal linking. With an authority site you will be able to create a nice internal link structure allowing Google to properly crawl every post on your site as well as crawl your site more often than the old school 3-5 post small niche sites.

Also since each post will be targeting a different keyword and be backlinked separately you can consider each new post as a new site on it's own. This goes back to the point I mentioned earlier, you can either create a new site every time you want to target a new keyword or just publish a new article on your authority site and rank that article for your desired keyword.

4. As your site gets bigger and bigger, you publish more and more posts, backlink each post etc, the trust and authority of your site will get stronger allowing all future posts and categories to gain trust almost instantly by proper interlinking the new content from the older posts which have already gained Google's trust.

This is how Cnet is able to easily rank a newly published article with virtually no backlinks, just solely from authority.

5. You do want to make sure that you are going to be targeting a niche and keywords where people are looking to spend money today and 5-10 years from now. That's why I love building review sites because there are ALWAYS things/products/services to review no matter what niche you are in.

As I mentioned previously you want to go after buyer keywords so that you are not only getting the hottest buyer traffic to your site, you can continue to publish new articles.

6. Be Patient: Building an authority site does take more time than cranking out 3-5 post niche sites in a 3-4 hour window. You have to stay committed to the long-term success of your site and know that if you follow the steps outlined in this report, Google will start to recognize you as the authority in your niche.

Now that we got a few ground rules out of the way your site is going to look is as follows:

Homepage

- Category 1 (example: TV Reviews)
 - Article 1 (Toshiba XYZ Review)
 - Article 2 (Panasonic XYZ Review)
 - Article 3 (Sony XYZ Review)

- Category 2 (example: Game System Reviews)
 - Article 1 (PS3 Review)
 - Article 2 (Xbox 360 Review)
 - Article 3 (Wii Review)

- Category 3
 - Article 1
 - Article 2
 - Article 3

- Category 4
 - Article 1
 - Article 2
 - Article 3

Based on the example above you will notice how easy it is to be able to cover several different categories/topics all under the same site.

Starting to build and structure your site in this manner will allow you to build an authority site just like cnet, engadget etc.

Authority sites are the new SEO in the post panda/penguin/hummingbird/ducks/chickens era if you want to be able to sleep at night and know that your site is update proof.

I typically like to create 3-5 categories per authority site and have 5-10 articles underneath each category.

Exactly how do you pick the categories for your authority site? The good'ol Google Keyword Planner of course.

Basically I like to use the Keyword tool to identify categories by casting out a wide net and filtering through the results to find keywords that people are actually searching for.

So I would search for the general term "reviews." By doing that I am able to identify that the keyword "television reviews" gets a good number of search volume.

This is a GREAT topic to start a website around because new TV's are always being released and people are buying TV's daily.

Once you identify the keyword "television reviews" I would then run a search for that term and see what comes up.

Running that search turns up A TON of great potential category keywords that will help me to build out my site structure.

From that I can set up the structure like this

Television Reviews - Main Topic

Different Categories we can publish under would be:

- LG Television Reviews
- Plasma Television Reviews
- LED Television Reviews
- LCD Television Reviews
- 3D Television Reviews
- HD Television Reviews

From there I would continue chopping down and identify what are the most popular TV's currently on the market for those particular types of TV's. I would identify 3-5 different model type of TV's that get good search volume that I can publish under each of those Categories.

One good place to check for these would be Amazon.com. Just go under their Electronics section and start to identify which TV's are the best sellers and start there.

Another great thing about starting to think like an authority site builder is that you can take this niche site even further and create additional categories and start talking about home theater systems, surround sound systems, movie screens etc.

So you can really grow the original topic of "Television Reviews" into a Massive all around home entertainment monster site.

I hope this section really helps you to get into the mindset of why you want to start building authority sites and why you should never put up a 3-5 page small niche site ever again.

Now that we got keyword research and Proper site structure out of the way let's get into Content Creation.

Content Creation:

When it comes to content creation there is really two options you have. You can either write the content yourself or you can outsource the content. It all depends on your budget. When I built my first niche site I wrote ALL the content myself even the 1500 word front-page article. I also put together the content for my second and third niche site.

Then once those sites started bringin in some decent income the first thing I outsourced was content creation and it was probably the best decision I ever made. It really cleared up a lot of time so I can focus on other things. Now of course if you are not in the position to outsource right off the bat then I will cover how you can still write a rocking article.

Writing an Article Yourself:

I always keep the same structure when writing my articles. Here is an actual image of how it all looks when it's all polished up and optimized.

<http://www.screencast.com/t/FvXI83w9>

I will be going into optimizing the content once we have it written.

Regardless whether I am writing a review, a How-To article or just a general article I always use that same structure. You have to keep in mind, humans are extremely visual beings, we love to look at pictures, watch videos etc.

I like to include both in just about every article I write. This way you will also be covering those who rather read and those who rather watch a video.

So let's get into writing the article. There is a simple 3-step process that you can follow to make sure you stay on track and don't include unnecessary information in your article.

1. What Do You Have

Here you will just basically be introducing the reader to what the topic of the article will be. You will also include the features, specs, etc of the particular product you will be talking about. Or if you are writing a How To you will cover the things the person will need to accomplish what you are about to teach them.

2. What Can it Do For Them: In this section you will be breaking down ALL the benefits that the person will get by following your advice, buying your product or the product you are recommending, It is also helpful to include the pros and cons of the product/service you are discussing. You want to make this the most important part of the article since people buy products and services based on what THEY will get out of it. The famous "WIIFM" factor (what's in it for me). I would also include some testimonials of past clients, customers etc.

3. What to do next: This is where your conclusion and your call to action goes. What action do you want the person who just read your article to take once they're done reading your article. Do you want them to click a link? Sign up to your list? etc

How this would look in an article would be as follows.

- Introduction
- Features
- Specs

- Benefits
- Pros
- Cons
- Conclusion

Now let's say you know nothing about the product you are going to be writing about. This is where your investigative skills have to come into play and just pretend as if you were writing a research paper for school.

The good thing is that a lot of the information you will need is already out there on the web, it's your job to find it and write it in your own words. Please by no means do I want you to interpret this as me telling you to go out there and blatantly copy someone else's content.

Not only is that unethical but it will definitely not help with your SEO. What we are going to be doing is taking bits and pieces of articles that are already out there, saving them to a notepad file and then writing our own article based on the information we have gathered.

One of the easiest ways to find such information is by doing a simple Google search for your target keyword and having a look at the information that is already out there. One of the BEST resources as well is where you can find testimonials from real people who have purchased the product.

There are several ways you can use these testimonials as well.

1. Look at the good ones and write down all the particulars that the person mentions. Things that only someone who owns the product will know. Like "The item exactly matches with original filter and it only took 5 minutes to install"

If I were to grab that piece of information and write something like this in my article "If you are looking to replace your old filter with the new series then you have nothing to worry about because it matches the old filter perfectly and it only takes 5 minutes to swap it out"

2. Look at the 3-4 star reviews as this is where you can get the information for your cons section. If someone gave the product a 3 or 4 star review then there is a good chance they are happy with their purchase except for 1 or 2 small details.

Like this review for example "the filter seems to only last about two months before it clogs and the water pressure works at about half of its original pressure" So based off of that statement I would write something like: "One downside to this filter is that the life span may be under 90 days. Some users have reported that their filter started to clog up and lose pressure after about 2 months of use."

Don't be afraid to write something negative about a product as well. If the product completely SUCKS then write a bad review about it. This can turn out to be a positive for you as well because you can offer people an alternative product that costs just the same that works way better than XYZ product.

You can find great reviews on both Amazon and the actual product owners website as well. You can also find great reviews on other retail store websites like WalMart.com, Target.com, Bestbuy.com etc.

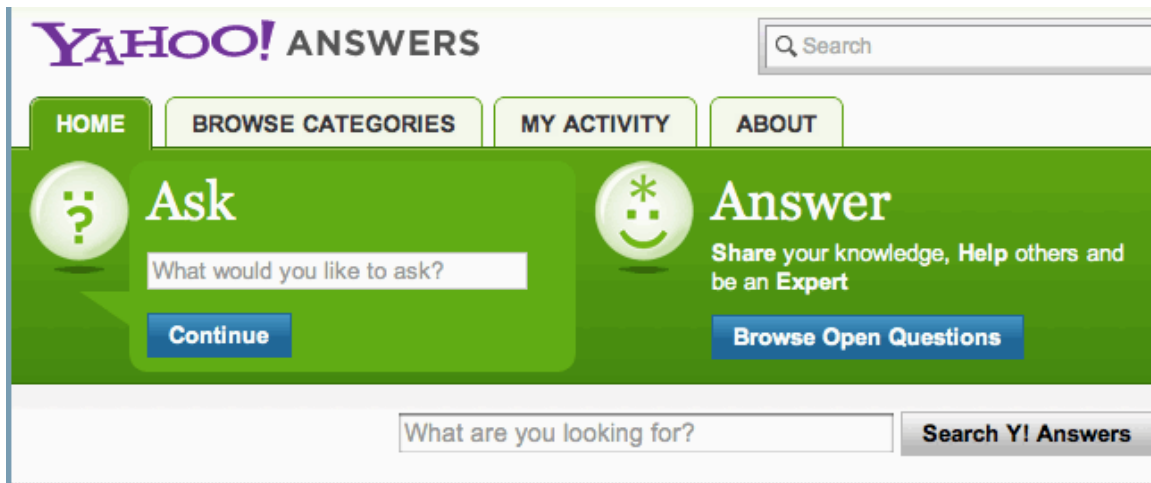

Some additional sources for you to find questions and concerns your potential website visitors are facing is by looking at forums in that specific niche.

To find some of these forums you can just simply do a Google search for "your keyword+ forum" From there you can start flipping through the forum threads and see what questions or concerns people are posting. You can also see what people are replying to those questions and concerns and also get some great content for your article.

This works well if you are going to be writing a "How-To" article and for just about any type of article for that matter. You can also find some great feedback on certain products by seeing what people are posting in the forums.

One last great resource for finding great content to write about is "Yahoo Answers" This is like a goldmine for finding what problems people are having in your niche PLUS the solution to that problem.

You can easily go to Yahoo answers and run a search for your particular niche and see a TON of different questions people are asking about in your niche. Not only that but a lot of times there are answers on there by EXPERTS in that particular niche or actual owners of the product or service.

This is the exact steps I take to write articles for subjects I know nothing about.

Keep in mind that all the information you will EVER need to write awesome content is already out there on the web. It's your job to find it and re word it into your own. You see just how easy I did this with the two examples above.

If you would like a KILLER resource on writing quality VIRAL content that attracts natural social shares and back links, then you can pick up my good friend Jimmy Wrex's "The 800lb Content Gorilla" report.

This report got Warrior Special offer of the day and sold like HOT Cakes for 7 days straight. I was able to convince Jimmy to let me throw it in as a free bonus just for customers of this report.

So Download it and Enjoy it! 😊

Following this outline you can easily crank out 500-1,000 articles in about 1-2 hours. I personally do not like publishing articles less than 500 words on my authority sites and I recommend you follow the same.

Once the raw article is complete it's time to find a related Video to go with your article as well as some images.

Finding a video is not very difficult. It's as simple as doing a quick Youtube search and finding valuable information on the subject of your article and embedding it.

If for some reason you can't find a video on your topic then you can write up a quick summary and create a video yourself. You don't even have to be on camera, you can use a screen recording software and just talk about what you wrote about in your article. (You can see an example of how I did this here <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Q5vBCuy4P1g>)

The other advantage of creating your own video like the one above is that you can also rank your video in both Google and Youtube for some additional traffic and affiliate sales.

However video marketing is a whole topic in itself and outside the scope of this course.

That is how simple it can be to either find a related video on Youtube or create one with a simple screen recording software. I personally use ScreenCast-O-Matic for screen cast videos.

Finding related images is something that really requires no special skill so I don't want to spend much time on it but you can easily find images by doing a Google image search or looking on Flickr.com

Optimizing Your Content:

Now that we have our article written, have the video and images we want to use, it's time to get our article queued up and optimized.

Before we get into optimizing our content it's important for you to remember that you are writing content for the users who will be reading your content and looking for helpful information so the last thing you want to do is insert your target keyword into your article where it does not read correctly just for the sake of keyword density.

If you want to win with Google you want to think like Google and what is the main reason Google updates their algorithm? To improve the experience of their users and make sure they get the BEST information in the shortest amount of time.

That's how you want to think, you have to remember that REAL people will be reading your articles and if you want to be the authority in your niche you have to be sure you have THE BEST information on the topic you are discussing.

So the following "checklist" is a simple guide to follow on optimizing your content but again if you can't insert your keyword into your article and still keep the quality then just skip it.

1. Have the Keyword In Your Main Title
2. Have the Keyword in Bold in the first paragraph.
3. Have the Keyword as the "Alt" Text on one image (you do not want to have EVERY image in your article have the alt text as the keyword because you may open yourself up to over SEO'd penalties)
4. Have the Keyword In the Body of the article as a clickable link linking to the article itself
5. Have the Keyword In the Last Paragraph in italics.
6. Have the Keyword in H1, H2, (I would include your keyword in H1 and possibly H2 depending on the length of the article. If it is a 1,000 word article then I will most likely have my keyword in H2 but that's about it. I would have an H3 as well but just to give my article some user friendly structure and most likely will not have my keyword in it. You have to keep in mind that Google is now targeting over optimized sites so having the keyword in H1 sometimes is enough)

The ones that will give you the most trouble to make sure they read correctly will be #2, #4 and #5 since you will be having to work it into a sentence in your article.

The way that I work in #2 and #5 into my article is very simple. In my introduction I usually say something like "First off I want to say thank you for being here reading my "insert keyword here" article, I plan to share with you the best information to help you understand whether xyz is right for you or not."

For inserting my keyword in the last paragraph I do the very same thing. I will usually write something like "I hope you found my "insert keyword here" article helpful and you now have a better understanding of how xyz works and are able to make a more informed decision..."

For inserting my keyword as a clickable link in the middle of my article I would write something like "If you have read other "insert keyword here" articles then you will notice that they too speak very highly of xyz" Or something along those lines that works into what the paragraph is about.

If you are brand new to SEO and are not really sure how to use the editing functions in Wordpress to insert Heading tags, Alt text etc then watch this quick video where I quickly show you how to do it.

That is pretty much it when it comes to optimizing your content. Keep in mind that since you are building an authority site you are going to follow the same On page optimization for each article.

Interlinking Content:

One last thing I want to talk about is properly interlinking your content. This is going to not only help keep users on your site for longer but it is going to help Google properly crawl all of your newly published pages. You will also be sending "inner link juice" from one page to another.

Interlinking is the simple task of linking one article to another from relevant anchor text mentioned on another article.

So let's say you write an article about "The Best Paddle Boards currently on the market" then a couple days later you write an article about "The Best Places To Go Paddle Boarding" in the latter article you talk about you're favorite brand of paddle boards, you can add a link back to the article about the best paddle boards and vice versa.

As well as manually adding these inter links every time you publish new articles there are a couple of Free Wordpress plugins that add some additional inter linking juice to your posts.

My favorite of the two is the LinkWithin Plugin. This cool plugin pulls the images and title of your articles and adds little thumbnails at the end of your article which will increase reader engagement as well as interlink your content. LinkWithin is free to use and it's pretty self explanatory on how to get a copy for your site by visiting their website.

The other free plugin is called "Another Related Posts Plugin" This plugin does the same as LinkWithin but without the thumbnails images. All it does is add a clickable link at the end of each article to other related articles. You can find ARPP by running a search inside your Wordpress dashboard under "plugins"

Of course I prefer LinkWithin because we are visual beings and we are more drawn to picture then plain text.

Outsourcing Content:

Let's say you have a budget and don't want to spend the time writing articles yourself and you want to streamline the article creation process. I actually put together an article on my blog earlier this year where I cover the two writing services in detail. I included the pros, cons of each service as well as a video that walks you through both services. You can read the article here

<http://zamuraiblogger.com.com/seo-content-writing-services/>

Ok so we have niche research, keyword research, proper site structure, content creation, optimizing content, and proper inter linking all covered.

We are now going to dive into the wonderful world of back linking. But I don't want to be like every other report that gives you such little back linking or WAY TOO much back linking information that you don't know where to get started. What I want to do is give you a week by week system for you to implement that will send your rankings through the roof.

Before we jump into the step-by-step blueprint to build your links let's cover Anchor Text Diversity.

Prior to Google's Zoo busting out of their cages and unleashing their fury on all webmaster's it was common to keep your anchor text at 70-80 even 90% with great results.

Nowadays you want to be more careful with the anchor text percentage you are using on your site and give it a more natural look.

Anchor Text Diversity:

The Anchor Text match we recommend now is as follows:

- 15% exact match anchor text
- 10% other variations of your keyword (Including phrase and broad matches of your keyword i.e long tail keywords. For Example if your main keyword is Weight loss you would include Lose Weight, how to lose weight, lose weight fast, tips to lose weight etc)
- 25% random anchor text (click here, read more here, find out more here)
- 25% brand keywords (Your Website Name - this is assuming you bought a brand able domain name as we mentioned at the beginning of this report.)
- 25% raw URL back links (<http://yourwebsite.com> - if you are linking to a specific article then use the raw blog post URL)

Let's go ahead and jump into your back linking plan of action.

Backlinking Plan of Action:

Week 1

In the first week of your site being live you want to not only be publishing a new article daily or every other day you want to keep the links between 50-60. If you are outsourcing your articles and order a bulk order of 10+ articles you can easily upload and schedule a new article to be published daily in one days work - just simply use the "schedule" feature in Wordpress.

As tempting as it might be to go to fiverr.com and order a huge blast of 1,000 links to your newly created site PLEASE do NOT fall into the microwave mentality. Remember we want to build a long-term sustainable traffic source that is immune to any kind of Google update.

One thing I want to talk about is velocity over volume. When it comes to a successful SEO campaign you want to develop a healthy link velocity for your website so that it grows "naturally" over time. The last thing you want to have is a scattered link velocity by building

1,000 links your first month then 100 the third month then 2,000 the next etc. This will look very unnatural to Google and open you up to a penalty.

In the first week once you have already published at least 2-3 articles we are going to send a few types of links. Please do keep in mind that since we are building an authority site each of the articles on your blog and each new one you publish in the future will go through this process.

Most of the links in the first week will be Social Bookmarks and Social Media links. There are 3 resources that I use to send these types of links.

1. SocialMonkee: Social Monkee is a great automated Social Bookmarking service that will allow you to send 25 social bookmarks to all new articles you publish. It also drip feeds the bookmarks over a minimum of a 9 day period or more so it all looks natural. They do have several plans and their entry level plan is just $7 which is WAYY inexpensive and you are allowed to send 25 social bookmarks to a new URL every 14 days.

The sites that Social Monkee submits to are privately owned sites so it is purely for link juice purposes unlike the next resource we will be covering.

2. Socialadr.com: Social Adr is another great way to build social bookmarks AND social media links as well. The difference between Social Monkee and Social Adr is that Social Adr is a community of people who bookmark each other's content on very popular sites like stumble upon, digg, delicious etc. So you can expect to not only get great quality links, you can get some great dick through traffic from these sources.

Social Adr does have a free option but it's more labor intensive than paying for one of their premium packages. If you use the free option you will have to sign up to all the sites they use which can take 3-4 hours or you can buy ready-made Social Adr accounts on Fiverr.com

Once you have the sites loaded up you will have to share to be shared, meaning your content will only be shared when you gain enough credits by sharing other people's content. Again if you pay for a premium package you can avoid having to add your social network accounts and you won't have to login daily to share people's content.

I personally use the $37 per month option with great success. It allows me to have 30 active URL's that are being shared for me on autopilot. You also don't have to worry about getting a boat load of links all at once because every time one of your posts gets shared it's shared on 10-15 networks.

They have also recently integrated Facebook likes, G+'s, tweets, and Pinterest shares but only for premium users. So you can also get some nice social signals. (if you do not know how to install social buttons on your blog be sure to register for the Wordpress Tutorials here)

3. SocialMaximizer: Now this is Social Bookmarking on steroids! Social Maximizer is just link Social Monkee but on steroids. With Social Maximizer you can choose the sites you want your content submitted to based on the page rank of the bookmarking site.

So you can go in and pay to have your content bookmarked on strictly sites that are PR1+, PR2+, PR3+, PR4+ etc. This is pay as you go service so you can go in and pay for bookmarking as you need it. It is a little more expensive but you are getting good quality high PR links.

What if I can't Pay For Any of The Services?

Let's say you are in a position where you are going to have to create your social bookmarks manually (don't be ashamed or feel pressured to have to pay for back linking services).

When I got started I did ALL my back linking manually until I started making enough $ to start outsourcing and paying for different services that made my life easier) here is a great resource that lists a ton of social bookmarking sites that have great PR where you can go in and sign up to bookmark your content. You can even sort through the ones with the highest PR.

The link below already has them sorted with the highest PR at the top.

<http://ingenioustalk.com/top-500-pr-2-dofollow-social-bookmarking-sites-2013/>

The last task for week 1 will be to create accounts for your new site on all the major social networks with links back to your site.

You will be creating a Facebook Fanpage, Twitter Profile, Youtube Channel, and Pinterest. All of these sites have a place where you can insert your website URL.

For Pinterest you will be creating a Board for your website and adding each of your new articles as well as homepage to your board. In the Wordpress Tutorials you will also learn how to add the "Follow Us" icons which link to your social media accounts.

So that is it for Week #1. Just a quick recap of what your homework is:

1. Publish and create 2-3 articles (don't forget to properly interlink your content)
2. Sign up for Social Monkee and submit your new articles to 25 bookmarking sites
3. Sign up for SocialAdr and have your content shared on Popular Social Bookmarking sites
4. Order high PR Social bookmarks from Social Maximizer or create them on your own using the resource listed.
5. Create Your Social Media Accounts

After week 1 your domain should be indexed by Google and you might already see your first few articles begin to show up in Google's index but most likely not in the top 100 results but this is normal since the site is brand new and still being developed.

Week 2:

During week 2 you are going to publish another 2-3 articles or if you used the "schedule" features in Wordpress you already have multiple articles scheduled to be published during this week. In terms of back linking we are going to send about 60-70 links during week 2 in the form of Press Releases, article marketing and blog networks.

We are going to kick things off in Week 2 with a nice shot of Press Releases. Press Releases are not the most powerful form of back links since Google knows that this is self promotion BUT it does help for diversifying the link profile as well as IP diversity. So there are 2 ways to do this. The free way and the paid way.

I am first going to cover how to have it done by a professional Press Release distribution service. A nice and inexpensive company that I use is <http://submitmypressrelease.com> Their starter package of $24.95 is going to give you about 40-50 back links from various different news sites including Google News, Bing News, and Yahoo.

You can also go to Green Light Articles and have a professional Press Release written for about $10 depending on the amount of words (400-500 words is fine) Keep in mind that in your Press release you are allowed 2 links in the body of the article and a homepage link in the resource section. So you will want to have your keyword as your anchor text for those links.

If you do not have $30-$40 to spend on having a press release distributed for you then I am now going to cover how you can use free press release sites to submit your press release. It is a little more labor intensive but still effective.

Here is a list of Free Press Release sites you can use to syndicate your press release:

<http://openpr.com/>

<http://www.sbwire.com/>

<http://www.widepr.com/>

<http://pressreleasepoint.com/>

<http://www.free-press-release.com/>

<http://www.newswiretoday.com/>

<http://www.1888pressrelease.com/>

<http://www.i-newswire.com/>

<http://free-press-release-center.info/>

<http://www.prlog.org/>

Now that you got your press release out of the way we are going to send some blog network links to your blog post. I know that blog networks have received some bad press over the last couple years since Google went on a massive deindexation of some of the major ones.

But now that you've purchase Zamurai PBN Blueprint, you'll be able to create your own and still get the same power they once had.

Private Blog networks give you some of the best and strongest link juice you can get because you are getting in context back links from high PR blogs that you control.

Blog networks still work you just have to use them more cautiously to adapt to the updates. Make sure that you are submitting relevant content to the networks and that your links are part of the article and not just in random places that doesn't flow with the sentence the link is in.

To post content to your blog network, I highly recommend using Spin Rewriter, it is a web based spinner so you can use it on both Mac and PC and you can access your articles from any computer since they get stored in your account. This is also going to come in handy for week 3.

Spin
Rewriter

In week 2 you are also going to want to submit 3 Original 500 word articles to some of the major article directories online. Again you can either write these yourself or use some of the services covered previously to have them write for you. Some of these include Ezine Articles, GoArticles, ArtidesBase etc. Below is a list of about 10 article directories you can submit to. In week 2 just pick 3 of the 10 we will use the others later on

<http://ezinearticles.com/>

<http://goarticles.com/>

<http://www.articlesbase.com/>

<http://www.thefreelibrary.com/>

<http://www.articleslash.net/>

<http://www.articlesnatch.com/>

<http://www.articledashboard.com/>

<http://www.articlecity.com/>

<http://artideclick.com/>

<http://artidealley.com/>

That is it for week #2. Just a quick recap of your homework:

1. Publish 2-3 articles on your blog (don't forget to properly interlink your content)
2. Submit your new articles to your Social Monkee account to get bookmarked
3. Add your new articles to your SocialAdr account.
4. Write or outsource a press release and either pay to have it syndicated or manually syndicate with the list of free press release sites provided.

5. Implement what you learned in Zamurai PBN Blueprint and start getting those High PR links.

6. Write 3 500 word articles and submit them to 3 of the 10 article directories provided.

Week 3:

During week 3 you are going to publish another 2-3 articles and remember you want to interlink your content as mentioned before.

During week 3 you are going to be building more blog network, web 2.0 links, member blog links as well as some guest blogging but don't worry we have a more streamlined way of guest blogging then having to track down web masters.

So remember the articles you created to syndicate into the blog networks? We are going to use them again this week to create our web 2.0 and member blog links. What you are going to do is set up accounts on the following sites:

Wordpress.com

Blogger.com

Livejournal.com

TypePad.com

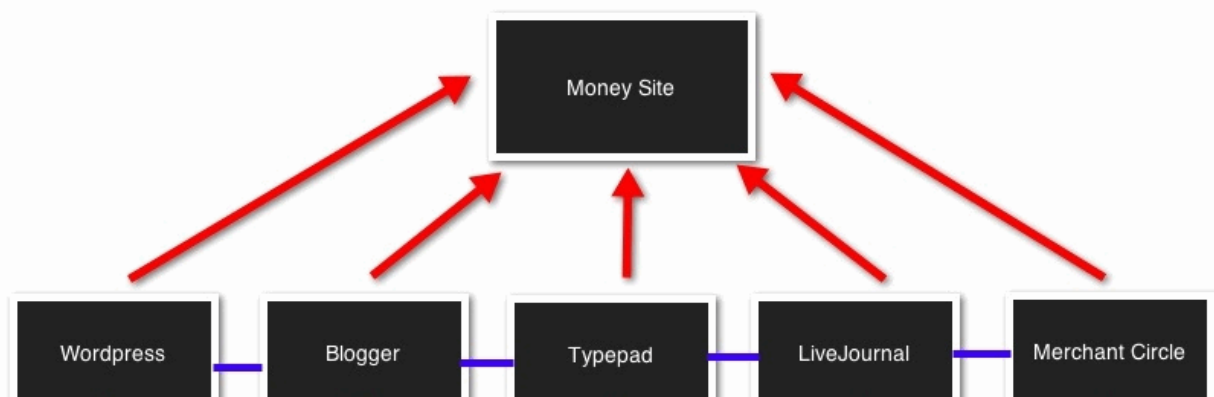

MerchantCircle.com (this one is a little tricky to find your blog but once you create an account and login > click on dashboard at the top right > then click on "Publish" in the top menu. This will take you to your member blog)

All of the websites above let you have a free blog on their site where you can publish articles and have links to your website. The cool thing about Spin Rewriter, which I mentioned before, is that not only do they store your articles in your dashboard but you can login at any time and simply hit "Generate New Version" and it will spit out a brand new unique version of your article ready to publish.

That is what we are going to do for each of the above sites. I personally add both images and videos also to the articles I publish on my web 2.0's and members blogs just to give it some styling but this is 100% up to you. I also keep the links in each article to a maximum of 3. 1 to the homepage and 2 to 2 other articles on my blog.

I also include one link to one of the other web 2.0 sites above. So I would link my Wordpress.com article to my Blogger article then Blogger to LiveJournal then LiveJournal to TypePad etc.

You can see how this works in the image below:

If this image is hard to see you can see a bigger image here:

<http://www.screencast.com/t/ROobZbuI>

Let's now jump into Guest Blogging. But not the traditional way most people think of Guest Blogging where you have to chase down web masters and hope they get your message and allow you to publish your article. I'm going to talk to you about a cool new free resource where web masters are waiting for good articles to publish but where you too can get some great articles to publish on your blog and save yourself some article writing time.

I am talking about ContentFacilitator.com.

Content Facilitator is 100% FREE to join, but has a monthly fee to use. They have one for $17/month and one for $47/month.

With the $17 package you can submit 30 articles to the network per month.

Again you can always partner up with one other person, split the cost, and you each have 15 articles to syndicate per month.

The great thing about Content Facilitator is that they do NOT accept any spun content or duplicate content. So unlike other blog networks we spoke about before, that allow spun content, you can consider Content Facilitator to be a Guest Blogging network.

Another thing that I like about Content Facilitator is that web masters are constantly searching the article database to find great quality, relevant content to publish on their blog. So not only are you syndicating great quality UNIQUE content you too can search the database to publish article onto your blog.

(The free option allows you to still publish articles to your blog. So if you want free content, but no backlinks that can be an option.)

There are a few different limitations that you can set to your article like how many times it can be published or if you want it to be published on just 1 blog. Since they don't allow spun content you want to keep this in mind and possibly put a limit of 3-4 blogs to be allowed to publish your one article.

I recommend submitting 2-5 articles to Content Facilitator in Week 3, depending on how quickly you are able to ramp up your posting points. So be sure to add a blog to the network as quickly as possible and start publishing content. Once you add an article to the network and someone published it you will be notified via email.

In week 3 you will also be submitting links to your own private blog network to get some more juice. I'd recommend building links to some of your inner pages.

That is it for week 3 here is a quick recap of your homework:

1. Publish 2-3 articles on your blog (proper interlinking)
2. Submit your new articles to your Social Monkee Account
3. Submit your new articles to your SocialAdr account.
4. Create accounts at the web 2.0 sites mentioned and post articles with link to your site.
5. Bookmark the Web 2.0 articles to your Social Monkee Account
6. Sign up for ContentFacilitator.com and add a blog so you can publish articles and gain points.
7. Submit 2-5 Articles to Content Facilitator depending on how many points you acquire.
8. Submit 2-3 articles to your PBN linking to inner pages.

Week 4

Depending how big of a site you are building by week 4 you should have between 12-20 articles posed on to your site. In week 4 we are going to be stepping things up a bit and creating 10 Web 2.0 and member blog sites, posting 20 blog comment links, posting 5 articles into your PBN, and post 3 more article to article directories.

Since you should now have a good amount of articles posted on your blog we are going to be syndicating your RSS feeds to some RSS aggregators for some extra back links as well.

All right so first off we are going to create 10 Web 2.0's/member blogs from the list below:

<http://www.Posterous.com>

<http://www.Netlog.com>

<http://www.InsaneJournal.com>

<http://www.WeBlogPlaza.com>

<http://www.WallInside.com>

<http://www.jukeboxalive.com>

<http://www.xanga.com>

<http://www.kaneva.com>

<http://www.supernova.com>

<http://www.areavoices.com>

Now the majority of the sites above are sites that allow you to have a free blog while a few of them are membership sites where you are allowed to have a member's blog. When you sign up to the membership sites just look for where it says "blog" or "blogs" and you will be able to start posting articles.

You can either write 3 new articles, spin them using Spin Rewriter and rotate the articles between the 10 sites or use some of the previously used articles that are stored in your SR account.

Remember that you are going to be doing the same as before where you are going to link one Web 2.0 from one other Web 2.0 property.

Now let's go ahead and move on to building some blog commenting links. Now I am sure you have heard about using blog comments for back links a ton of times. The reason for that is THEY WORK.

They not only work for back links but they also work for getting click through traffic to your blog if done correctly. Also it's one of the most white hat techniques you can implement since you are just leaving a comment on a blog you like with a link back to your site. (now of course there are ways to exploit blog commenting with automated tools but we are not going to do that) We are going for quality over quantity.

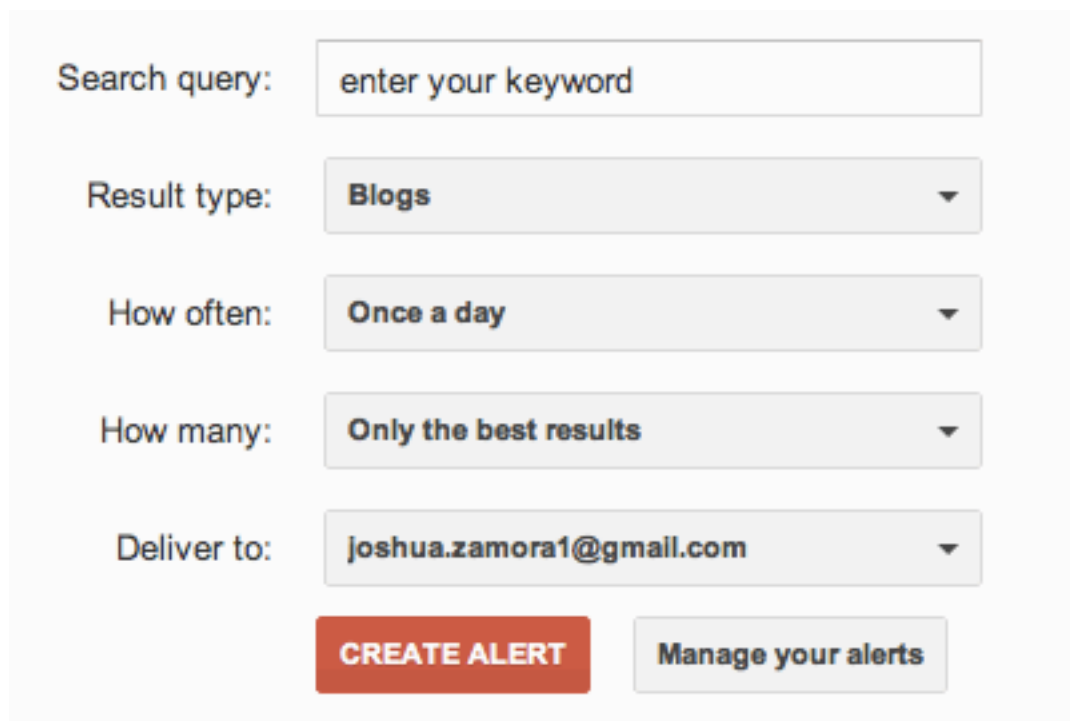

One thing I do want to mention before you start posting comments is to use an actual name in the "name" field of the comment. Some people try to use their anchor text as the "name" field but to me this looks cheesy and makes it 100% obvious that you are commenting purely to get a back link and may cause your comment to get rejected.

Also I'm sure I do not need to mention this but make sure you leave a comment that actually adds some value to the article. What I do is usually read the first paragraph a few sentences in the middle and the last paragraph, by doing this I get a good idea of what the article was about which allows me to leave a relevant comment.

The reason that I say 20 is because I want you to make it a habit to make at least 4 blog comments per day on relevant blogs. This is a task that can be done in about 10-15 minutes per day. However what we are going to do is to make sure that the blogs to comment on come to us instead of us going and tracking them down.

The way to do this is by setting up Google Alerts every time a certain phrase is mentioned on a blog. The image below shows exactly how to set this up. The good thing about Google Alerts is that it will send the information directly to your email and you can set it to email you "as it happens" or "once a day" either one of those two is fine. By using Google Alerts you are also making sure that you are visiting blogs that are actively posting articles so you have a higher chance of getting your comments approved.

The image shows the Google Alerts configuration interface. It consists of several input fields and two buttons. The 'Search query' field contains the placeholder text 'enter your keyword'. The 'Result type' dropdown menu is set to 'Blogs'. The 'How often' dropdown menu is set to 'Once a day'. The 'How many' dropdown menu is set to 'Only the best results'. The 'Deliver to' dropdown menu is set to the email address 'joshua.zamora1@gmail.com'. At the bottom, there are two buttons: a red 'CREATE ALERT' button and a grey 'Manage your alerts' button.

Another great way to approach blog commenting is to target sites that have the "CommentLuv" plugin installed. This plugin allows you to show the title of your latest blog post at the end of your comment.

Now it will be tough to find blogs with CommentLuv installed AND in your niche every time, so it's ok to get a few links from sites not in your niche while at the same time while using the Google Alerts to get relevant ones.

Setting up 3-5 Google alerts for different keywords in your niche should give you a nice jumpstart to blog commenting.

One last resource I want to mention where you can find blogs to comment on is BlogEngage.com. For those of you who are not familiar with Blog Engage this is a HUGE community where bloggers hang out and bookmark their content.

Not only that but the majority of the bloggers on Blog Engage will have the CommentLuv plugin installed.

There is a one time fee of $30 to actually join BlogEngage and be able to post your content BUT if you want to just use their site to find blogs to comment on you can do so by just browsing the homepage and going through all the bookmarks.

Ok here are 3 more resources that I want to share with you. I promise these are the last 3.

The following 3 sites are just like BlogEngage but FREE to join and publish content. So not only can you find blogs to comment on you can bookmark your content on these sites for some backlink juice.

<http://bloginteract.com/>

<http://www.blokube.com/>

<http://www.bizsugar.com/>

If you truly want to become an authority in your niche then hanging around those sites will definitely help you out tremendously. Just about every person who submits content into those 4 networks is actively building their brand and blog.

In week 4 we are also going to syndicate 2-3 articles into your PBN linking to inner pages.

You will also post 3 more articles to 3 of the 10 article directories mentioned before which you have not previously posted to.

The last step you will be performing in week 4 is to submit the RSS feed of your site to 3 major RSS feed services.

To find the RSS feed of your blog all you have to do is add /feed to the end of your site for example <http://yoursite.com/feed>

Once you have that URL you are going to go to:

IMT RSS Submitter (for this one you will have to create an account on this forum to use their tool) Once you have your account created just follow the link we provided to submit your RSS.

Bulk Ping Rss Submitter (this site does not require you to create an account to use their service and it's pretty self explanatory to submit the feed of your site.

950 RSS Submit (this site also does not require for you to create an account)

These 3 services do a great job in syndicating your RSS feed for some additional back links.

That is it for Week #4. Here is a summary of your homework:

1. Publish the remaining articles on your blog (proper interlinking as always)
2. Submit your new articles to your Social Monkee account
3. Submit your new content to your Social Adr account
4. Create and post to the 10 Web 2.0 sites provided
5. Set up your Google Alerts and post 20 blog comments in total (4 per day on average)
6. Syndicate 2-3 articles into your PBN.
7. Post 3 articles into 3 of the articles directories not previously used.
8. Submit the RSS feed of your site to the 3 sites provided.

Now that we have reached the end of Week 4 you should start seeing some results in terms of improved rankings. I predict that you should be between page 1 and page 3 depending on the competition of your keyword. With this system my sites are usually high page 2 low page 1 by week 4 if not sooner.

From here on out this is the basic outline that we will continue on a steady and weekly basis for the next 90 days. You want to be sure you use each of the back linking strategies we covered in this course on a week-by-week basis to ensure you reach page 1 of Google.

Here is a list of some additional web 2.0 sites to get you started in week 5:

<http://www.Bravenet.com>

<http://www.BlogCatalog.com>

<http://www.Blog.com>

<http://www.CampusBug.com>

<http://www.Geckgo.com>

<http://www.GetJealous.com>

<http://www.MyAnimeList.com>

<http://www.Migente.com>

<http://www.SOSBlogs.com>

<http://www.Thoughts.com>

<http://www.Nexopia.com>

<http://www.Newsvine.com>

<http://www.Weebly.com>

<http://www.Webs.com>

Remember to always be creating the broken link wheel from one web 2.0 to the other.

The Google Dance:

One thing I want to cover before you freak out is that your website will do A LOT of jumping around the SERP's during the first few months since your website is brand new and Google is trying to determine if you are worthy of being on page 1.

I have had a site shoot straight to position #2 in Google the first week of having set up the site and it'll stay there for a few days and then completely disappear.

I know this is completely normal so I just went on with my business building back links and 90 days later BAM my site went from no where to be found back to #2 overnight and has been there ever since. So you just have to remember to stay patient and give Google enough time to give you the authority you deserve and if you follow the blueprint we laid out above then there is not reason they shouldn't.

Conclusion:

All right you have finally made it! Congratulations on completing this course. We truly hope you enjoyed it and are fired up to get out there and take action. We feel we have laid out an easy to follow road map to building authority websites that Google loves that are going to be around in the long run.

It is now up to you to go out there and take action on the information provided. One thing I want to mention one more time is to be patient.

Building Authority sites is not a get rich quick scheme where you can expect to make hundreds of thousands of dollars by next week. This is a long-term strategy that if you consistently implement over time can start making you a substantial amount of money. You just have to be committed to stick to it until you make it work.

My advice would be to focus your 100% time and energy on 1-3 sites max during the first 3-6 months. You do not want to get crazy and start trying to create 10 authority sites every month.

Remember with authority sites we are going for quality over quantity and you can always expand and build upon an already existing site instead of starting a whole new one.

That is it from us if there is anything we can do to help please feel free to contact us.
