

File: 800.12.11.8.12

SHEET 15 LTPP TRAFFIC DATA LOG OF CHANGES AT GPS TEST LOCATIONS WITH PERM. AVC OR WIM	*STATE ASSIGNED ID	[P14]
	*STATE CODE	[53]
	*SHRP SECTION ID	[7322]

LOCATION SR 195 TYPE EQUIP. Piezo (Class 1)MP # 22.2 MODEL # IRD 1060

DATE OF CHANGE	TIME OF CHANGE	DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE	PERSON MAKING CHANGE	PHONE #	NEW EQUIP. SERIAL #
11/30/11		No Changes
11/12/11		Saturday's Arizona State game at WSU Martin Stadium has all the makings of an emotional one. It is Dad's Weekend, Washington State's second-to-last home game of the season and the day former Cougar Steve Gleason will be the honorary team captain. Saturday's game kicks off 11/12/11 at 7:30 p.m., and the game can be seen on Versus. (Tom)

11/30/10	Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the
----------	---	--	--	--

800.12-11-8-12

SHEET 15 LTPP TRAFFIC DATA LOG OF CHANGES AT GPS TEST LOCATIONS WITH PERM. AVC OR WIM	*STATE ASSIGNED ID	[P14]
	*STATE CODE	[53]
	*SHRP SECTION ID	[7322]

LOCATION SR 195 TYPE EQUIP. Piezo (Class 1)

MP # 22.2 MODEL # IRD 1060

DATE OF CHANGE	TIME OF CHANGE	DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE	PERSON MAKING CHANGE	PHONE #	NEW EQUIP. SERIAL #
7/14/11		7/13/11 Pullman-P14 Problem: "intermittently unequal axle detected" on both directions. Found a bad splice just below the conduit on sensor #1. Sensor #3 had a bad BNC. Replaced BNC on sensor #3. Disabled sensor #1 for now! Will have to come back with coax cable to splice it. (HN)	HN
7/5/11		July 5, 2011, 11:22 am U.S. Highway 195 has been closed three miles south of Colfax after a three-vehicle collision — with one vehicle that was hauling a horse trailer — that caused several injuries. One person has been life-flighted to St. Joseph Regional Medical Center with critical injuries, according to the Washington State Patrol, and another was transported to Whitman Hospital. WSP is still on scene investigating the accident and further details are expected later today. The Washington State Department of Transportation suggests motorists use either State Route 272 or 26 as U.S. 195 is expected to be closed for several hours jh
7/19/11		7/19/11 Pullman-P14 Pulled new coax cable and spliced to sensor #1. Cleaned inside cabinet (mice's drops). Plugged the conduits. (HN)	Hn

11/30/10		Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the Cascades and Eastern Washington. The National Weather service has issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. It says the snow will be heavy at times - 4 to 8 inches Tuesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. Rain and winds are forecast for the lowlands of Western Washington. The winter storm warning is in effect until early Wednesday. Published: 11/30/10 9:58 am SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. The National Weather Service said the new storm will also dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range. Rain and winds were forecast for the lowlands of Western Washington. A winter storm warning was in effect from early this morning until Wednesday morning for areas of Eastern Washington, including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Forecasters expected 4 to 8 inches of snow in those areas. "Travel on roadways will become difficult as roads become increasingly snow-covered," the Weather Service said. Spokane has already had more snow than the 13.7 inches recorded all of last winter. Mayor Mary Verner has declared a snow emergency, and city plows were working 24 hours a day to clear streets. The storms could have an impact on Saturday's Apple Cup football showdown between Washington and Washington State in Pullman. Several inches of snow are on the ground in Pullman, with more expected this week. The game is the latest the Apple Cup has ever been played. The Saturday forecast is for highs in the low 30s, lows in the 20s and a 30 percent chance of snow showers. (Tom)
----------	--	--	--	--	--

SHEET 15 LTPP TRAFFIC DATA LOG OF CHANGES AT GPS TEST LOCATIONS WITH PERM. AVC OR WIM	*STATE ASSIGNED ID [P14] *STATE CODE [53] *SHRP SECTION ID [7322]
---	--

LOCATION SR 195 TYPE EQUIP. Piezo (Class 1)

MP # 22.2 MODEL # IRD 1060

DATE OF CHANGE	TIME OF CHANGE	DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE	PERSON MAKING CHANGE	PHONE #	NEW EQUIP. SERIAL #
5/31/11		No change
5/10/11		Pullman-P14 Site inspected. Copied log and parameter files. Site looks good! (HN)	hn

11/30/10		Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the Cascades and Eastern Washington. The National Weather service has issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. It says the snow will be heavy at times - 4 to 8 inches Tuesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. Rain and winds are forecast for the lowlands of Western Washington. The winter storm warning is in effect until early Wednesday. Published: 11/30/10 9:58 am SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. The National Weather Service said the new storm will also dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range. Rain and winds were forecast for the lowlands of Western Washington. A winter storm warning was in effect from early this morning until Wednesday morning for areas of Eastern Washington, including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Forecasters expected 4 to 8 inches of snow in those areas. "Travel on roadways will become difficult as roads become increasingly snow-covered," the Weather Service said. Spokane has already had more snow than the 13.7 inches recorded all of last winter. Mayor Mary Verner has declared a snow emergency, and city plows were working 24 hours a day to clear streets. The storms could have an impact on Saturday's Apple Cup football showdown between Washington and Washington State in Pullman. Several inches of snow are on the ground in Pullman, with more expected this week. The game is the latest the Apple Cup has ever been played. The Saturday forecast is for highs in the low 30s, lows in the 20s and a 30 percent chance of snow showers. (Tom)
----------	--	--	--	--	--

800.12.11.8.12

SHEET 15 LTPP TRAFFIC DATA LOG OF CHANGES AT GPS TEST LOCATIONS WITH PERM. AVC OR WIM	*STATE ASSIGNED ID	[P14]
	*STATE CODE	[53]
	*SHRP SECTION ID	[7322]

 LOCATION SR 195 TYPE EQUIP. Piezo (Class 1)

 MP # 22.2 MODEL # IRD 1060

DATE OF CHANGE	TIME OF CHANGE	DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE	PERSON MAKING CHANGE	PHONE #	NEW EQUIP. SERIAL #
4/13/11		4/13/11 Pullman P14 Problem: NB sensor #1 is starting to fail (intermittently not activating.) Disable it for now. (HN)	HN

11/30/10	Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the
----------	--	--	--	--

SHEET 15 LTPP TRAFFIC DATA LOG OF CHANGES AT GPS TEST LOCATIONS WITH PERM. AVC OR WIM	*STATE ASSIGNED ID [P14] *STATE CODE [53] *SHRP SECTION ID [7322]
---	--

LOCATION SR 195 TYPE EQUIP. Piezo (Class 1)

MP # 22.2 MODEL # IRD 1060

DATE OF CHANGE	TIME OF CHANGE	DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE	PERSON MAKING CHANGE	PHONE #	NEW EQUIP. SERIAL #
3/31/11		No Changes
3/1/11		Neighbors fed up with 'Palouse weather' Posted on March 1, 2011 at 4:22 PM ALBION, WA -- More than 15 inches of snow have covered parts of the region in less than 24 hours. Now the entire Palouse region is digging out again Tuesday night. In small towns like Albion it's wet, cold and slushy. KREM 2 News went down there to talk to people who are fed up with the late winter snow. Kimberly Osborn says it's insane that she is clearing roughly 15 inches of snow on the first day of March. This is the second time she has had to dig a path first thing in the morning. Up the road, Nils Nelson is apparently used to it, he calls it "Palouse weather". Meanwhile, Laban Molsee remains optimist. He says there is light at the end of the snow packed tunnel and believes the snow will melt soon. The area also had to deal with a two hour power outage starting around 5 a.m. Tuesday. Note: Albion is located North of Pullman (Tom)

11/30/10		Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the
----------	--	--	--	--	--

File 800.12.11.8.12

SHEET 15 LTPP TRAFFIC DATA LOG OF CHANGES AT GPS TEST LOCATIONS WITH PERM. AVC OR WIM	*STATE ASSIGNED ID	[P14]
	*STATE CODE	[53]
	*SHRP SECTION ID	[7322]

LOCATION SR 195 TYPE EQUIP. Piezo (Class 1)

MP # 22.2 MODEL # IRD 1060

DATE OF CHANGE	TIME OF CHANGE	DESCRIPTION OF CHANGE	PERSON MAKING CHANGE	PHONE #	NEW EQUIP. SERIAL #
2/28/11		No Changes
2/16/11		MODERATE IMPACT US 195 Both Directions - US 195 from Pullman to Colfax is: Slush and snow covered. From milepost 22 to milepost 44 MODERATE IMPACT US 195 Both Directions - US 195 from Idaho State line to Pullman is: Slush and snow covered. From milepost 1 to milepost 20

11/30/10	Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the
----------	---	--	--	--