11/30/10	Heavy snow might affect Apple Cup SPOKANE — Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region braced for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of snow on the city today. Brace yourself for more snow, ice and slick roads. The National Weather Service said a new storm will dump up to 2 feet of snow in the Cascade Range today. Already dealing with one of the snowiest Novembers on record, the Spokane region readied for a new storm expected to drop up to 8 inches of new snow on the city. A storm packing heavy snow moved across the Cascades and Eastern Washington on Tuesday, and the region braced for days of additional snowfall. The National Weather Service issued a winter storm warning for the east side of the state, along with the Olympics and Cascades. Four to 8 inches of snow was expected Tuesday and Wednesday in the Spokane area, which already is having one of its snowiest Novembers ever. Up to 18 inches is likely in the Cascades. "The Interstate 90 corridor is expected to feel the brunt of this storm, from Snoqualmie Pass to Spokane to the Idaho/Montana border," the weather service said. Rain returned to most of Western Washington, but heavy snow is falling in the mountains and parts of Eastern Washington where forecasters also warn of freezing rain in places. The National Weather Service has a winter storm warning in effect through Friday afternoon for the Cascades. Up to a foot of new snow is expected. A winter storm warning is in effect until Saturday afternoon for parts of Eastern Washington including Spokane, Colville and Pullman. Non-stop snow is forcing the city of Spokane to declare a stage 2 snow emergency Saturday, sending crews to plow city and residential streets 24 hours a day. Snow is forecast for much of eastern Washington until at least early next week. Inches of snow and ice already cover many parts of the region. On Saturday, the Washington Interscholastic Activities Association canceled a state high school playoff game in Pullman due to ice conditions. A storm packing heavy snow is moving across the

10/16/12		WSP arrests man after rollover accident Posted: Tuesday, October 16, 2012 1:00 am A 37-year-old Uniontown man was arrested Sunday evening for alleged driving under the influence after rolling his vehicle on State Route 195 at the south Pullman bypass. The Washington State Patrol in Colfax reports the man was traveling southbound around 7 p.m. when his vehicle left the roadway, striking a state transportation department sign and then rolling off the road. The man was treated at the scene for scrapes to his head, and a dog inside his vehicle was uninjured. (Tom)

8/11/12		Move-In Day At WSU Posted: Aug 11, 2012 5:42 PM PDT PULLMAN, Wash. - Summer is winding down for thousands of students heading off to college. This weekend, more than 4,000 Cougar freshmen are moving into their new digs on the Washington State University campus. All Saturday afternoon, family after family, with their arms loaded making trips in and out of dorms. First day of class is August 20th. (Tom)

8/28/12		'Dunes' closed due to trashed recreation area near Pullman Posted on August 28, 2012 at 10:16 AM PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) -- A popular recreation area along the Snake River near Pullman will not be open for Labor Day because it was trashed last weekend by hard-partying visitors. The Corps of Engineers closed the Illia Dunes after more than 3,000 visitors left broken bottles and beer cans on the beach and littered parking lots with trash, creating health and safety hazards. The corps says it doesn't have the resources for such a big cleanup job if visitors can't pick up after themselves. The Tri-City Herald reports the dunes are a popular recreation site with sandy beaches on the south shore of the Snake River about three miles downstream of Lower Granite Lock and Dam. (Tom) Note: access to the area is by way of SR 194, which is just south of P14.
