What it means for the data type... For example, cd builder can be performed in mp3 Data Type and Audio Song format. THANX put cd audio on dvd responding from 4745454b in advance? I see 3 possible results.1) It works, but you will have a lot of wasted space on DVD. I think it will still be limited to 70 minutes of audio, so there will be a lot of wasted space.2) It works, but good luck trying to find a player to use it. As far as I know, the only place you can play this is on your computer, or on a DVD player. You probably can't play on portable CD players, because they don't recognize DVDs.3) It just doesn't work normal. My question is why? I can understand that I put .mp3 on dvd to save / archive. As for creating play discs, I'm going to stick to cd-'s. (They are cheap anyway.) Of course you can put songs on DVD responding in burninbush - data is data. The problem will be the players; If you want to play music using a putter, it's done, no problem. But dunno of commercial players to do so. Did you get a better answer? Post this tip to the discussion that you created. This weekend, at a nightclub in Harvard Square, Belle Linda Heffern will sing her favorite songs from several popular musicals, including ThreePenny Opera's Pirates Jenny and West Side Story's Something's Come. But now I'm helping with the presentation, and I'm the one singing. A co-founder of the Cambridge-based Ariel Group, Elepern is an accomplished cabaret singer who performs at least once a month. For the rest of her time, she coaches business people on how to communicate more emotionally and present more effectively. We follow your train though and we admire you for your logic. But we need to see how you feel about things as we want to connect with you as a person. I turned to 150 people to advise on the story, which was due to be delivered. I realized it was a structured presentation, so it was structured so I could plan exactly when the audience would fall asleep. Introduce. Point to a point. Point 2. Conclusion. Pass through Nodoz. I thought I needed professional help. Listening to me, 1pern agreed. First, she said I needed more animation. Instead of using logic to make a transition (now that you understand the first point, please switch to the second) I. Use expressive hand gestures and add an emotional color to your face. Heffern advised that I'm not suggesting you're gorgeous. So we tried the exercise. 1pern asked me to assign a topic (my neighbor) and start speaking. Every 10 seconds, she shouted different emotions: love, hatred, humility, happiness, and in the mean time, I made an expressive transition. (I love the people in my neighborhood and the sense of history, which I hate when I learn about crime on my block.) Time and again, Mr. 1pern pushed me to communicate with tools other than my voice. If I'm deaf - or in the back row - I should know in your body language what you're talking about, she explained. In fact, my voice was the next big challenge. Describing my voice in monotonous assumes I have a tone in the first place. So it was time for another exercise related to Shakespeare, this one. During the storm, Mr. Ulpern asked him to recite a four-line verse. Don't be afraid (Essal Merman yells from across the street); The island is full of noise (Seinfeld's high-breather whispering in his ear), sound and sweet air (James Earl Jones yawns), joy and unhurt (Kenneth Branagh plays the king). The idea she explained is to stretch your voice in the same way you stretch a rubber band. It snaps back, but it's more flexible than before stretching it. The biggest problem, though, was my hesitation to pause - a common presentation flaw. I would do points and then rush into yes without sinking points. I know that pauses feel a huge amount when you're there, Andypern empathizes, but for the audience, a few second pauses are generous. "Hold on," she said, adding that if she didn't stay silent, she would have to take a few steps on stage or drink water. No matter what I do, the purpose is the same: just stop talking. We visited the original presentation again and finished the crash process. Who would have thought it could be so attractive? Introduce. Pause. Fearful face. High voice. Point to a point. Pause. Excited one hand. Point 2. Pause. Finale. Applause. Siskel and Ebert. where are you? arielpern@aol.com Belle Linda Hlpem. I heard it, the music is very similar to that of SOS by Rihanna. I think it came out between the 1980s and the 1990s... The singer says this. " You run away, run away, oh, run away and as far as I know, that's not your chin. Thanks!
